3928. Plaintiff Trevor Klett is an individual residing in Illinois. Klett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Klett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Klett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3929. Plaintiff Klodeen Klow is an individual residing in Illinois. Klow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Klow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Klow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3930. Plaintiff Robert Knapp is an individual residing in Florida. Knapp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knapp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knapp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3931. Plaintiff Terrence Knight is an individual residing in Illinois. Knight worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knight has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knight has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3932. Plaintiff Daniel Koester is an individual residing in Illinois. Koester worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Koester has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Koester has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3933. Plaintiff Paul Kossifologos is an individual residing in Illinois. Kossifologos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kossifologos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kossifologos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3934. Plaintiff Mariusz Kowalski is an individual residing in Illinois. Kowalski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kowalski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kowalski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3935. Plaintiff Robbin Krutsinger is an individual residing in Illinois. Krutsinger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 1994 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Krutsinger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Krutsinger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3936. Plaintiff Edgar Lambino is an individual residing in Illinois. Lambino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lambino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lambino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3937. Plaintiff David Lamz is an individual residing in Michigan. Lamz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lamz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lamz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3938. Plaintiff Jayson Land is an individual residing in Illinois. Land worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Land has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Land has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3939. Plaintiff Timothy Landry is an individual residing in Illinois. Landry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Landry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Landry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3940. Plaintiff Carlos Lane is an individual residing in Illinois. Lane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3941. Plaintiff Garrett Lang is an individual residing in Illinois. Lang worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lang has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lang has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3942. Plaintiff Easter Laramore is an individual residing in Illinois. Laramore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laramore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laramore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3943. Plaintiff Eddie Larry is an individual residing in Illinois. Larry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Larry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Larry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3944. Plaintiff Gregory Lasky is an individual residing in Missouri. Lasky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lasky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lasky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3945. Plaintiff Alfred Leato is an individual residing in Illinois. Leato worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leato has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leato has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3946. Plaintiff Richard Lee is an individual residing in California. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3947. Plaintiff Tim Leisten is an individual residing in Illinois. Leisten worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leisten has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leisten has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3948. Plaintiff Fabian Lema is an individual residing in Illinois. Lema worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 1999 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lema has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lema has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3949. Plaintiff Oscar Lema is an individual residing in Illinois. Lema worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lema has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lema has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3950. Plaintiff Sergio Leon Jr Jr is an individual residing in Illinois. Leon Jr Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leon Jr Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leon Jr Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3951. Plaintiff Renika Lewis is an individual residing in Illinois. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3952. Plaintiff Jonathan Lewis is an individual residing in Illinois. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3953. Plaintiff Debra Lewis is an individual residing in Illinois. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2004 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3954. Plaintiff Pedro Leyva is an individual residing in Illinois. Leyva worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leyva has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leyva has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3955. Plaintiff Jessica Leyva is an individual residing in Illinois. Leyva worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2005 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leyva has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leyva has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3956. Plaintiff Luke Linder is an individual residing in Missouri. Linder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Linder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Linder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3957. Plaintiff Marcus Little is an individual residing in Illinois. Little worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Little has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Little has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3958. Plaintiff Miecko Lloyd is an individual residing in Illinois. Lloyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois and Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lloyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lloyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3959. Plaintiff William Lofton is an individual residing in Illinois. Lofton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lofton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lofton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3960. Plaintiff Kelly Lopez is an individual residing in Illinois. Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3961. Plaintiff Luis Lopez is an individual residing in Illinois. Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3962. Plaintiff Eshawnial Lowry is an individual residing in Illinois. Lowry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2007 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lowry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lowry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3963. Plaintiff Dakota Luellen is an individual residing in Illinois. Luellen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luellen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luellen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3964. Plaintiff James Lynch is an individual residing in Illinois. Lynch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lynch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lynch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3965. Plaintiff Anwar Maali is an individual residing in Illinois. Maali worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maali has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maali has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3966. Plaintiff John Machnik is an individual residing in Florida. Machnik worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 1988 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Machnik has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Machnik has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3967. Plaintiff Oscar Maldonado is an individual residing in Illinois. Maldonado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maldonado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maldonado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3968. Plaintiff Louia Malley is an individual residing in Illinois. Malley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Malley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Malley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3969. Plaintiff Robert Manning is an individual residing in Illinois. Manning worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 1993 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Manning has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Manning has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3970. Plaintiff Kyle Marsaglia is an individual residing in Illinois. Marsaglia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marsaglia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marsaglia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3971. Plaintiff Clyde Marshall is an individual residing in Illinois. Marshall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marshall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marshall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3972. Plaintiff Tiana Martin is an individual residing in Ohio. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3973. Plaintiff Johni Mashu is an individual residing in Illinois. Mashu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mashu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mashu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3974. Plaintiff Ventsislav Maslarski is an individual residing in Illinois. Maslarski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2004 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maslarski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maslarski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3975. Plaintiff Kendra Mason is an individual residing in Illinois. Mason worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mason has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mason has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3976. Plaintiff Jason Mathews is an individual residing in Illinois. Mathews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2013 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mathews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mathews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3977. Plaintiff Joshua Matson is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Matson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3978. Plaintiff Christa Maubach is an individual residing in Illinois. Maubach worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maubach has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maubach has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3979. Plaintiff Heather Mayhaus is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mayhaus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mayhaus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mayhaus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3980. Plaintiff Matthew Mcallister, Sr. is an individual residing in Illinois. Mcallister worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcallister has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcallister has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3981. Plaintiff Andrew Mccarron is an individual residing in Illinois. Mccarron worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccarron has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccarron has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3982. Plaintiff Erika Mccaskill is an individual residing in Illinois. Mccaskill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccaskill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccaskill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3983. Plaintiff Michael Mccauley Jr. is an individual residing in Illinois. Mccauley Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Mccauley Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccauley Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3984. Plaintiff Mikel Mcclary is an individual residing in Illinois. Mcclary worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcclary has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcclary has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3985. Plaintiff Marcus McCormick is an individual residing in Illinois. McCormick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois and Georgia but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McCormick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McCormick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3986. Plaintiff Willstepnorm Mccoy is an individual residing in Missouri. Mccoy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccoy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccoy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3987. Plaintiff Anthony McDonald is an individual residing in Illinois. McDonald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McDonald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McDonald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3988. Plaintiff Daniel McFate is an individual residing in Iowa. McFate worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McFate has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McFate has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3989. Plaintiff Jeff McKinley is an individual residing in Wisconsin. McKinley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McKinley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McKinley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3990. Plaintiff Derrick McKinney is an individual residing in Illinois. McKinney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McKinney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McKinney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3991. Plaintiff David Medina is an individual residing in Texas. Medina worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2011 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Medina has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Medina has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3992. Plaintiff Oscar Mendoza is an individual residing in Illinois. Mendoza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mendoza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mendoza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3993. Plaintiff Janie Merrell is an individual residing in Illinois. Merrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Merrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Merrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3994. Plaintiff Dennis Mcdermott is an individual residing in Illinois. Middleton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Middleton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Middleton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3995. Plaintiff Micheal Miller is an individual residing in Illinois. Middleton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Middleton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Middleton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3996. Plaintiff Malika Miller is an individual residing in Illinois. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3997. Plaintiff Jeffery Miller is an individual residing in Illinois. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3998. Plaintiff Cassandra Miller is an individual residing in Illinois. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

3999. Plaintiff Vincent Miller is an individual residing in Illinois. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4000. Plaintiff Tyler Mills is an individual residing in Illinois. Mills worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mills has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mills has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4001. Plaintiff Aimee Miranda is an individual residing in Illinois. Miranda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miranda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miranda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4002. Plaintiff Markus Moore is an individual residing in Illinois. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4003. Plaintiff Aaron Moore is an individual residing in Texas. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2005 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4004. Plaintiff Josef Moore is an individual residing in Illinois. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4005. Plaintiff Donald Moore is an individual residing in Illinois. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4006. Plaintiff Dave Mooyin is an individual residing in Texas. Mooyin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2005 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mooyin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mooyin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4007. Plaintiff Nikia Morgan is an individual residing in Illinois. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4008. Plaintiff Joseph Mormino is an individual residing in Missouri. Mormino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mormino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mormino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4009. Plaintiff Eboni Morrison is an individual residing in Illinois. Morrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4010. Plaintiff Talisha Mosley is an individual residing in Illinois. Mosley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mosley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mosley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4011. Plaintiff Nicolas Moyer is an individual residing in Illinois. Moyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4012. Plaintiff Rosendo Munoz is an individual residing in Illinois. Munoz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munoz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munoz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4013. Plaintiff Zachary Murray is an individual residing in Illinois. Murray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4014. Plaintiff Mason Murry is an individual residing in Illinois. Murry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4015. Plaintiff Martin Naja is an individual residing in Illinois. Naja worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2022 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Naja has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Naja has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4016. Plaintiff Trevon Nash is an individual residing in Illinois. Nash worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nash has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nash has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4017. Plaintiff Mario Nechev is an individual residing in Illinois. Nechev worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nechev has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nechev has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4018. Plaintiff Robert Nelson is an individual residing in Illinois. Nelson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 1989 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4019. Plaintiff Deleoni Nelson is an individual residing in Illinois. Nelson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4020. Plaintiff Ernest Newton is an individual residing in Illinois. Newton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Newton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Newton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4021. Plaintiff Robb Nippa is an individual residing in Illinois. Nippa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nippa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nippa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4022. Plaintiff Donald Oconner is an individual residing in Illinois. Oconner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oconner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oconner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4023. Plaintiff Montez Oglesby is an individual residing in Illinois. Oglesby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oglesby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oglesby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4024. Plaintiff Richard Ohlund is an individual residing in Illinois. Ohlund worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ohlund has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ohlund has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4025. Plaintiff Eric Olan is an individual residing in Florida. Olan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2002 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4026. Plaintiff Paul Osipavicius is an individual residing in Illinois. Osipavicius worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2007 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Osipavicius has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Osipavicius has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4027. Plaintiff Andrew Ostrander is an individual residing in Illinois. Ostrander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ostrander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ostrander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4028. Plaintiff Mohsin Patel is an individual residing in Illinois. Patel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4029. Plaintiff Derrick Patterson is an individual residing in Illinois. Patterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4030. Plaintiff Steven Patterson is an individual residing in Illinois. Patterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4031. Plaintiff Junisha Payton is an individual residing in Illinois. Payton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Payton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Payton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4032. Plaintiff Dewayne Pedersen-Davis is an individual residing in Illinois. Pedersen-Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pedersen-Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pedersen-Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4033. Plaintiff Joshua Perez is an individual residing in Illinois. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2011 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4034. Plaintiff Jay Perez is an individual residing in Illinois. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4035. Plaintiff Nathan Perkins is an individual residing in Iowa. Perkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4036. Plaintiff Billy Phillips is an individual residing in Illinois. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4037. Plaintiff Fabian Pintor is an individual residing in Florida. Pintor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pintor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pintor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4038. Plaintiff Noel Poppe is an individual residing in Illinois. Poppe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Poppe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Poppe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4039. Plaintiff Tanesha Por is an individual residing in Illinois. Por worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2007 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Por has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Por has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4040. Plaintiff Lori Potenziani is an individual residing in Illinois. Potenziani worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Potenziani has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Potenziani has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4041. Plaintiff Manasseh Powell is an individual residing in Illinois. Powell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4042. Plaintiff Dwayne Powell is an individual residing in Missouri. Powell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4043. Plaintiff Samuel Putman is an individual residing in Illinois. Putman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Putman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Putman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4044. Plaintiff Gerard Pynckel is an individual residing in Illinois. Pynckel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2004 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pynckel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pynckel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4045. Plaintiff Jonathanjonathn Race is an individual residing in Illinois. Race worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Race has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Race has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4046. Plaintiff Kyle Richardson is an individual residing in Illinois. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4047. Plaintiff Hollis Riggins is an individual residing in Illinois. Riggins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riggins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riggins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4048. Plaintiff Ignacio Rivera is an individual residing in Illinois. Rivera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rivera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rivera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4049. Plaintiff Stephanie Roberts is an individual residing in Illinois. Roberts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4050. Plaintiff Kevin Robinson is an individual residing in Illinois. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4051. Plaintiff Robert Roccaforte is an individual residing in Illinois. Roccaforte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Roccaforte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roccaforte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4052. Plaintiff Gabriel Rodriguez is an individual residing in California. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4053. Plaintiff Alan Rodriguez is an individual residing in Illinois. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4054. Plaintiff Jorge Rodriguez is an individual residing in Illinois. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4055. Plaintiff Devon Rogers is an individual residing in Illinois. Rogers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rogers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rogers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4056. Plaintiff Brennen Rompa is an individual residing in Tennessee. Rompa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois and Tennessee from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rompa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rompa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4057. Plaintiff Jackie Ross is an individual residing in Illinois. Ross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2003 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4058. Plaintiff Theresa Rucker is an individual residing in Illinois. Rucker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rucker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rucker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4059. Plaintiff Justin Russell is an individual residing in Illinois. Russell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Russell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Russell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4060. Plaintiff Deshaun Rutledge is an individual residing in Illinois. Rutledge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rutledge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rutledge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4061. Plaintiff Nolan Ryan is an individual residing in Illinois. Ryan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ryan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ryan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4062. Plaintiff Jonathan Sander is an individual residing in Missouri. Sander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4063. Plaintiff Azael Sandoval is an individual residing in Kansas. Sandoval worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sandoval has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sandoval has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4064. Plaintiff Nicholas Sansone is an individual residing in Missouri. Sansone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sansone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sansone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4065. Plaintiff Larry Santorski II is an individual residing in Missouri. Santorski II worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santorski II has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santorski II has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4066. Plaintiff Jennifer Scherer is an individual residing in Illinois. Scherer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scherer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scherer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4067. Plaintiff Tom Schmerse is an individual residing in Illinois. Schmerse worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 1998 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schmerse has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schmerse has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4068. Plaintiff Robert Schmidt is an individual residing in Illinois. Schmidt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schmidt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schmidt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4069. Plaintiff Blaine Schnitker is an individual residing in Illinois. Schnitker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schnitker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schnitker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4070. Plaintiff Brooke Schwartz is an individual residing in Colorado. Schwartz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schwartz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schwartz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4071. Plaintiff Lisa Schwartz is an individual residing in Illinois. Schwartz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2004 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schwartz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schwartz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4072. Plaintiff Timothy Scott is an individual residing in Iowa. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4073. Plaintiff John Seesala is an individual residing in Illinois. Seesala worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Seesala has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Seesala has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4074. Plaintiff Felix Serrano is an individual residing in Illinois. Serrano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Serrano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Serrano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4075. Plaintiff Lacey Shadowens is an individual residing in Illinois. Shadowens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shadowens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shadowens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4076. Plaintiff Michael Shannon is an individual residing in Mississippi. Shannon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shannon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shannon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4077. Plaintiff Kenneth Shannon is an individual residing in Missouri. Shannon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2010 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shannon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shannon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4078. Plaintiff Eugene Shelby is an individual residing in Illinois. Shelby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shelby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shelby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4079. Plaintiff Lisa Simmons is an individual residing in Illinois. Simmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4080. Plaintiff Edward Simonson is an individual residing in Illinois. Simonson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simonson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simonson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4081. Plaintiff Antoine Singleton is an individual residing in Illinois. Singleton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Singleton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Singleton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4082. Plaintiff Marion Skillings is an individual residing in Illinois. Skillings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Skillings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Skillings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4083. Plaintiff Chris Skirmont is an individual residing in Illinois. Skirmont worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Skirmont has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Skirmont has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4084. Plaintiff Doreen Skriver is an individual residing in Illinois. Skriver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Skriver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Skriver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4085. Plaintiff Stephen Smiley is an individual residing in Illinois. Smiley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smiley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smiley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4086. Plaintiff Joyce Smith is an individual residing in Iowa. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4087. Plaintiff Kyle Smith is an individual residing in Illinois. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4088. Plaintiff Crystal Smyles is an individual residing in Illinois. Smyles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smyles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smyles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4089. Plaintiff Jaime Solano is an individual residing in Illinois. Solano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Solano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Solano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4090. Plaintiff David Spann is an individual residing in Illinois. Spann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4091. Plaintiff Jack Staniszewski is an individual residing in Illinois. Staniszewski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Staniszewski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Staniszewski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4092. Plaintiff Matthew Stapleton is an individual residing in Illinois. Stapleton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stapleton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stapleton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4093. Plaintiff Dalbert Steele is an individual residing in Illinois. Steele worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steele has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steele has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4094. Plaintiff Mitchell Stepanek is an individual residing in Illinois. Stepanek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stepanek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stepanek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4095. Plaintiff Jeff Stepp is an individual residing in Illinois. Stepp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 1998 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stepp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stepp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4096. Plaintiff Kenneth Stevens is an individual residing in Illinois. Stevens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4097. Plaintiff John Steward is an individual residing in Illinois. Steward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4098. Plaintiff Cory Stolberg is an individual residing in Illinois. Stolberg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stolberg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stolberg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4099. Plaintiff Larry Strahan is an individual residing in Illinois. Strahan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Strahan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Strahan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4100. Plaintiff Heather Swan is an individual residing in Illinois. Swan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4101. Plaintiff Andrew Swanson is an individual residing in Illinois. Swanson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swanson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swanson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4102. Plaintiff Ryan Swanson is an individual residing in Illinois. Swanson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swanson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swanson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4103. Plaintiff Brandon Swenson is an individual residing in Illinois. Swenson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swenson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swenson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4104. Plaintiff Tavares Tankersley is an individual residing in Illinois. Tankersley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tankersley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tankersley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4105. Plaintiff Scott Taylor is an individual residing in Illinois. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4106. Plaintiff Yolanda Taylor is an individual residing in Illinois. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4107. Plaintiff Robert Tevis is an individual residing in Illinois. Tevis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tevis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tevis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4108. Plaintiff Nashaun Thomas is an individual residing in Indiana. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4109. Plaintiff Tiajuana Thomas is an individual residing in Illinois. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4110. Plaintiff Matthew Thompson is an individual residing in Illinois. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4111. Plaintiff Ira Sandifer is an individual residing in Illinois. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4112. Plaintiff Wilson Tidwell is an individual residing in Illinois. Tidwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tidwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tidwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4113. Plaintiff Donald Tillery is an individual residing in Arizona. Tillery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tillery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tillery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4114. Plaintiff Michael Timberson is an individual residing in Illinois. Timberson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Timberson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Timberson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4115. Plaintiff Derrick Tolbert Jr. is an individual residing in Illinois. Tolbert Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tolbert Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tolbert Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4116. Plaintiff Donnie Tolch is an individual residing in Illinois. Tolch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tolch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tolch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4117. Plaintiff Eric Toney is an individual residing in Illinois. Toney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Toney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Toney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4118. Plaintiff William Torres is an individual residing in Illinois. Torres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4119. Plaintiff Jonathan Torres is an individual residing in Illinois. Torres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4120. Plaintiff Jr Towner is an individual residing in Illinois. Towner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Towner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Towner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4121. Plaintiff Joshua Townsend is an individual residing in Illinois. Townsend worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Townsend has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Townsend has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4122. Plaintiff Steven Tubbs is an individual residing in Illinois. Tubbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tubbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tubbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4123. Plaintiff David Tucker is an individual residing in Missouri. Tucker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tucker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tucker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4124. Plaintiff Taylor Upshaw is an individual residing in Illinois. Upshaw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Upshaw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Upshaw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4125. Plaintiff Nemanja Varagic is an individual residing in Illinois. Varagic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2000 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Varagic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Varagic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4126. Plaintiff David Vaughn is an individual residing in Illinois. Vaughn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vaughn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vaughn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4127. Plaintiff Wankee Veal is an individual residing in Illinois. Veal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Veal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Veal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4128. Plaintiff David Vela is an individual residing in Illinois. Vela worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vela has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vela has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4129. Plaintiff Manuel Velazquez is an individual residing in Illinois. Velazquez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois and Florida from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Velazquez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Velazquez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4130. Plaintiff Dilaila Velez is an individual residing in Illinois. Velez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Velez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Velez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4131. Plaintiff Devonte Vivians is an individual residing in Illinois. Vivians worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vivians has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vivians has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4132. Plaintiff Scott Volk is an individual residing in Illinois. Volk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois and Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Volk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Volk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4133. Plaintiff James Volpentesta is an individual residing in Illinois. Volpentesta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Volpentesta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Volpentesta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4134. Plaintiff David Voytovick is an individual residing in Illinois. Voytovick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2007 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Voytovick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Voytovick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4135. Plaintiff Bobby Walker is an individual residing in Illinois. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4136. Plaintiff Scott Ward is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4137. Plaintiff Matt Wardlow is an individual residing in Illinois. Wardlow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wardlow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wardlow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4138. Plaintiff Timkita Warfield Taylor is an individual residing in Illinois. Warfield Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warfield Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warfield Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4139. Plaintiff Bradley Warner is an individual residing in Illinois. Warner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4140. Plaintiff Freddie Warren is an individual residing in Missouri. Warren worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warren has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warren has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4141. Plaintiff Terrance Waugh is an individual residing in Illinois. Waugh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Waugh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Waugh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4142. Plaintiff Nicole Weekley is an individual residing in Illinois. Weekley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weekley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weekley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4143. Plaintiff Daniel Weickdido is an individual residing in Illinois. Weickdido worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weickdido has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weickdido has driven a vehicle

weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4144. Plaintiff Josaphine Westendorf is an individual residing in Illinois. Westendorf worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Westendorf has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Westendorf has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4145. Plaintiff Edward Weston is an individual residing in Illinois. Weston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4146. Plaintiff Ashley Wheatley is an individual residing in Illinois. Wheatley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wheatley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wheatley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4147. Plaintiff Otis Whittaker is an individual residing in Illinois. Whittaker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2009 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whittaker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whittaker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4148. Plaintiff Pierre Wilder, Sr. is an individual residing in Illinois. Wilder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4149. Plaintiff Kesha Williams is an individual residing in Illinois. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4150. Plaintiff Michael Williams is an individual residing in Missouri. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4151. Plaintiff Khalil Williams is an individual residing in Illinois. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4152. Plaintiff Toshia Williams is an individual residing in Illinois. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4153. Plaintiff Darius Williams is an individual residing in Illinois. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4154. Plaintiff Khalil Williams is an individual residing in Illinois. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4155. Plaintiff Kevin Williams is an individual residing in Illinois. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4156. Plaintiff Diana Williams is an individual residing in Illinois. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4157. Plaintiff Kelby Williams is an individual residing in Illinois. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4158. Plaintiff Marlene Wilson is an individual residing in Illinois. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4159. Plaintiff Caryn Wilson is an individual residing in Illinois. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4160. Plaintiff Darena Wilson is an individual residing in Illinois. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4161. Plaintiff Douglas Winslow is an individual residing in Illinois. Winslow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Winslow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Winslow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4162. Plaintiff Tyler Winslow is an individual residing in Illinois. Winslow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Winslow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Winslow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4163. Plaintiff Tracy Winston is an individual residing in Illinois. Winston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Winston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Winston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4164. Plaintiff Melisa Woker is an individual residing in Missouri. Woker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4165. Plaintiff Justine Wood is an individual residing in Illinois. Wood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4166. Plaintiff Jermari Wordlaw is an individual residing in Illinois. Wordlaw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wordlaw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wordlaw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4167. Plaintiff Shannon Wright is an individual residing in Illinois. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4168. Plaintiff Naiyma Wright is an individual residing in Illinois. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4169. Plaintiff Reggie Wynne is an individual residing in Illinois. Wynne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wynne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wynne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4170. Plaintiff Tyron Yancy is an individual residing in Illinois. Yancy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yancy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yancy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4171. Plaintiff Larry Young is an individual residing in Illinois. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4172. Plaintiff Mariusz Zaborowski is an individual residing in Illinois. Zaborowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Zaborowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zaborowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4173. Plaintiff Ricardo Zaragoza is an individual residing in Illinois. Zaragoza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Illinois from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zaragoza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zaragoza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4174. Plaintiff James Adamson is an individual residing in Indiana. Adamson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adamson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adamson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4175. Plaintiff Shane Adkins is an individual residing in Indiana. Adkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana and Georgia from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4176. Plaintiff Brian Agee is an individual residing in Indiana. Agee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Agee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Agee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4177. Plaintiff Andrew Alcock is an individual residing in Indiana. Alcock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alcock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alcock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4178. Plaintiff Dennis Alexander is an individual residing in Indiana. Alexander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alexander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alexander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4179. Plaintiff Michael All is an individual residing in Indiana. All worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. All has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because All has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4180. Plaintiff Melissa Allen is an individual residing in Indiana. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4181. Plaintiff Kaleb Alvey is an individual residing in Indiana. Alvey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alvey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alvey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4182. Plaintiff Malavay Anderson is an individual residing in Indiana. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4183. Plaintiff Andrea Artis is an individual residing in Indiana. Artis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Artis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Artis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4184. Plaintiff April Arven is an individual residing in Indiana. Arven worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arven has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arven has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4185. Plaintiff Andrea Atterberry Bloebaum is an individual residing in Indiana. Atterberry Bloebaum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Atterberry Bloebaum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Atterberry Bloebaum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4186. Plaintiff Malden Baasch is an individual residing in Indiana. Baasch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baasch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baasch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4187. Plaintiff Andrea Baird is an individual residing in Georgia. Baird worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baird has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baird has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4188. Plaintiff Ronnie Banks is an individual residing in Indiana. Banks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Banks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Banks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4189. Plaintiff Rick Barker is an individual residing in Florida. Barker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4190. Plaintiff Daniel Barnett is an individual residing in Indiana. Barnett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4191. Plaintiff Erica Braylock is an individual residing in Indiana. Barrero Figueredo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barrero Figueredo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barrero Figueredo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4192. Plaintiff Jerry Bates is an individual residing in Indiana. Bates worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bates has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bates has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4193. Plaintiff Cody Beale is an individual residing in Indiana. Beale worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beale has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beale has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4194. Plaintiff Janelle Beckom is an individual residing in Indiana. Beckom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2005 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beckom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beckom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4195. Plaintiff Andrew Beheler is an individual residing in Indiana. Beheler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beheler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beheler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4196. Plaintiff Justin Bergman is an individual residing in Indiana. Bergman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bergman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bergman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4197. Plaintiff Innocent Bizimana is an individual residing in Indiana. Bizimana worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bizimana has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bizimana has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4198. Plaintiff Jonathan Bledson is an individual residing in Illinois. Bledson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bledson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bledson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4199. Plaintiff Michael Bline is an individual residing in Indiana. Bline worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bline has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bline has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4200. Plaintiff Jamie Bowman is an individual residing in Indiana. Bowman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4201. Plaintiff David Brockhouse is an individual residing in Indiana. Brockhouse worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brockhouse has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brockhouse has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4202. Plaintiff Tom Brooks is an individual residing in Indiana. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4203. Plaintiff Cory Brown is an individual residing in Indiana. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4204. Plaintiff Jordan Buckhoy is an individual residing in Indiana. Buckhoy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buckhoy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buckhoy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4205. Plaintiff Michael Buehler is an individual residing in Indiana. Buehler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2002 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buehler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buehler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4206. Plaintiff Asia Buford is an individual residing in Indiana. Buford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4207. Plaintiff Wes Bugg is an individual residing in Kentucky. Bugg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bugg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bugg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4208. Plaintiff Jason Burks is an individual residing in Indiana. Burks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4209. Plaintiff Gerald Burns is an individual residing in Indiana. Burns worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burns has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burns has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4210. Plaintiff Brian Burton is an individual residing in Indiana. Burton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4211. Plaintiff Mario Campero is an individual residing in Florida. Campero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Campero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Campero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4212. Plaintiff Victoria Carlson is an individual residing in Indiana. Carlson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2008 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carlson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carlson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4213. Plaintiff Danielle Carstensen is an individual residing in Indiana. Carstensen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carstensen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carstensen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4214. Plaintiff Sandra Carstensen is an individual residing in Indiana. Carstensen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carstensen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carstensen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4215. Plaintiff Tomorrow Carswell is an individual residing in Indiana. Carswell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carswell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carswell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4216. Plaintiff Crosby Castro is an individual residing in Indiana. Castro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4217. Plaintiff Eric Chalk is an individual residing in Indiana. Chalk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chalk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chalk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4218. Plaintiff Jarrett Cheatham is an individual residing in Indiana. Cheatham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cheatham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cheatham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4219. Plaintiff Adam Christopher is an individual residing in Indiana. Christopher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Christopher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Christopher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4220. Plaintiff Terry Clark is an individual residing in Indiana. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2006 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4221. Plaintiff Bernard Cockerell is an individual residing in Kentucky. Cockerell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cockerell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cockerell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4222. Plaintiff Robert Coffman is an individual residing in Indiana. Coffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4223. Plaintiff Jasmine Coit is an individual residing in Indiana. Coit worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coit has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coit has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4224. Plaintiff Damien Coleman is an individual residing in Indiana. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4225. Plaintiff Steve Conley is an individual residing in Indiana. Conley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4226. Plaintiff Bryant Conway is an individual residing in Indiana. Conway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4227. Plaintiff James Cook is an individual residing in Indiana. Cook worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cook has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cook has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4228. Plaintiff Braden Cox is an individual residing in Indiana. Cox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4229. Plaintiff Michael Daily is an individual residing in Indiana. Daily worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daily has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daily has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4230. Plaintiff Richard Dale is an individual residing in Indiana. Dale worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dale has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dale has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4231. Plaintiff Curtis Davis is an individual residing in Illinois. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4232. Plaintiff Jerry Deckard is an individual residing in Indiana. Deckard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deckard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deckard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4233. Plaintiff David Denney is an individual residing in Indiana. Denney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2000 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Denney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Denney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4234. Plaintiff Erin Devault is an individual residing in Kentucky. Devault worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Devault has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Devault has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4235. Plaintiff Gregory Dickert is an individual residing in Indiana. Dickert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dickert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dickert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4236. Plaintiff Jacob Doan is an individual residing in California. Doan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4237. Plaintiff Clifford Doane is an individual residing in Indiana. Doane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4238. Plaintiff Jeff Doll is an individual residing in Indiana. Doll worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doll has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doll has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4239. Plaintiff Donald Dowden is an individual residing in Indiana. Dowden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dowden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dowden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4240. Plaintiff Darren Dray is an individual residing in Indiana. Dray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4241. Plaintiff Alvin Dukes is an individual residing in Indiana. Dukes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dukes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dukes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4242. Plaintiff William Dunkley is an individual residing in Indiana. Dunkley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dunkley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dunkley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4243. Plaintiff Kent Earles is an individual residing in Indiana. Earles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Earles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Earles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4244. Plaintiff Michael Easler is an individual residing in Indiana. Easler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Easler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Easler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4245. Plaintiff Merrill Eggleston is an individual residing in Indiana. Eggleston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eggleston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eggleston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4246. Plaintiff Adam Ellis is an individual residing in Ohio. Ellis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ellis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ellis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4247. Plaintiff Dalton Faughn is an individual residing in Illinois. Faughn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Faughn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Faughn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4248. Plaintiff Thomas Fisher is an individual residing in Indiana. Fisher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fisher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fisher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4249. Plaintiff Melanie Floyd is an individual residing in Indiana. Floyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Floyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Floyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4250. Plaintiff Jason Forte is an individual residing in Indiana. Forte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Forte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Forte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4251. Plaintiff Brian Freeney is an individual residing in Illinois. Freeney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Freeney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Freeney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4252. Plaintiff Jordan Freon is an individual residing in Indiana. Freon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Freon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Freon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4253. Plaintiff Dwayne Fyffe is an individual residing in Indiana. Fyffe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fyffe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fyffe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4254. Plaintiff Laurie Gibson is an individual residing in Kentucky. Gibson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4255. Plaintiff Doris Gillespie is an individual residing in Illinois. Gillespie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gillespie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gillespie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4256. Plaintiff Dawan Glenn is an individual residing in Indiana. Glenn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glenn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glenn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4257. Plaintiff Tanilleya Glenn is an individual residing in Indiana. Glenn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glenn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glenn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4258. Plaintiff Sharon Glover is an individual residing in Indiana. Glover worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glover has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glover has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4259. Plaintiff Jeffrey Goins is an individual residing in Kentucky. Goins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4260. Plaintiff Austin Gonzales is an individual residing in Indiana. Gonzales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4261. Plaintiff Jordan Gonzalez is an individual residing in Indiana. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4262. Plaintiff Laborde Graham is an individual residing in Indiana. Graham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Graham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Graham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4263. Plaintiff Ryan Green is an individual residing in Indiana. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4264. Plaintiff Carlston Green is an individual residing in Indiana. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4265. Plaintiff Noel Guerra Jr is an individual residing in California. Guerra Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guerra Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guerra Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4266. Plaintiff Tony Guffey is an individual residing in Indiana. Guffey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guffey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guffey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4267. Plaintiff William Guy is an individual residing in Indiana. Guy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4268. Plaintiff Donearl Hardy is an individual residing in Indiana. Hardy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hardy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hardy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4269. Plaintiff Paul Harper is an individual residing in Indiana. Harper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4270. Plaintiff Jacqueline Harris is an individual residing in Indiana. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4271. Plaintiff Brittany Harrison is an individual residing in Illinois. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4272. Plaintiff Rexie Harry is an individual residing in Illinois. Harry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4273. Plaintiff Daniel Hawkins is an individual residing in Indiana. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4274. Plaintiff Jacque Hayes is an individual residing in Indiana. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4275. Plaintiff Robert Helfert is an individual residing in Indiana. Helfert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Helfert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Helfert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4276. Plaintiff Shane Hemrich is an individual residing in Indiana. Hemrich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hemrich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hemrich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4277. Plaintiff Paul Henrich is an individual residing in Indiana. Henrich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2006 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henrich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henrich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4278. Plaintiff Kris Hilt is an individual residing in Indiana. Hilt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hilt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hilt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4279. Plaintiff Martina Hobbs is an individual residing in Indiana. Hobbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hobbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hobbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4280. Plaintiff Bruce Hobbs is an individual residing in Indiana. Hobbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 1998 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hobbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hobbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4281. Plaintiff Jared Hopf is an individual residing in Indiana. Hopf worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hopf has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hopf has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4282. Plaintiff Steven Hopkins is an individual residing in Indiana. Hopkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hopkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hopkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4283. Plaintiff Jordan Hostetler is an individual residing in Indiana. Hostetler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hostetler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hostetler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4284. Plaintiff Keith Howard is an individual residing in Indiana. Howard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4285. Plaintiff Lawrence Howell is an individual residing in Indiana. Howell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2009 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4286. Plaintiff Jerry Hudson is an individual residing in Indiana. Hudson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 1996 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hudson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hudson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4287. Plaintiff Richard Huffman is an individual residing in Indiana. Huffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4288. Plaintiff Nicholas Hughbanks is an individual residing in Indiana. Hughbanks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hughbanks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hughbanks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4289. Plaintiff Tamara Ivy is an individual residing in Illinois. Ivy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ivy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ivy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4290. Plaintiff Antiwan Jackson is an individual residing in Arizona. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana and California from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4291. Plaintiff Gary Jefferies is an individual residing in Indiana. Jefferies worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jefferies has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jefferies has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4292. Plaintiff Jerome Jenkins is an individual residing in Illinois. Jenkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jenkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jenkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4293. Plaintiff Terry Johnson is an individual residing in Indiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4294. Plaintiff Trent Johnson is an individual residing in Indiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4295. Plaintiff David Johnson is an individual residing in Indiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4296. Plaintiff Daralice Johnson is an individual residing in Indiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4297. Plaintiff Anatalie Johnson is an individual residing in Georgia. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4298. Plaintiff Eugene Johnson is an individual residing in Indiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4299. Plaintiff Bryan Johnson is an individual residing in Indiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 1995 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4300. Plaintiff Jermaine Johnson is an individual residing in Kentucky. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4301. Plaintiff James Johnston is an individual residing in Indiana. Johnston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2002 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4302. Plaintiff Casey Jones is an individual residing in Indiana. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4303. Plaintiff Michael Jones is an individual residing in Indiana. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4304. Plaintiff Corey Jones is an individual residing in Indiana. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4305. Plaintiff Allan Jordan is an individual residing in Illinois. Jordan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jordan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jordan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4306. Plaintiff Jeff Joslin is an individual residing in Indiana. Joslin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2004 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joslin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joslin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4307. Plaintiff Jessica Kayrouz is an individual residing in Indiana. Kayrouz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kayrouz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kayrouz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4308. Plaintiff Kyle Kegeris is an individual residing in Indiana. Kegeris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kegeris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kegeris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4309. Plaintiff Ahkiem Kelley is an individual residing in Indiana. Kelley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4310. Plaintiff Kyle Kessler is an individual residing in Indiana. Kessler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kessler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kessler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4311. Plaintiff Melody Kitakis is an individual residing in Illinois. Kitakis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kitakis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kitakis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4312. Plaintiff Erika Kliessendorff is an individual residing in Indiana. Kliessendorff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kliessendorff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kliessendorff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4313. Plaintiff Michelle Knose-Partin is an individual residing in Indiana. Knose-Partin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knose-Partin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knose-Partin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4314. Plaintiff Roy Kuhn is an individual residing in Indiana. Kuhn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2005 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kuhn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kuhn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4315. Plaintiff Michael Lawhead is an individual residing in Indiana. Lawhead worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawhead has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawhead has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4316. Plaintiff Ronald Lee is an individual residing in Kentucky. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4317. Plaintiff Brandy Lepird is an individual residing in Indiana. Lepird worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lepird has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lepird has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4318. Plaintiff Ashley Lindsey is an individual residing in Indiana. Lindsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lindsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lindsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4319. Plaintiff Bernadette Lofton is an individual residing in Illinois. Lofton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lofton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lofton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4320. Plaintiff Jesse Losch is an individual residing in Indiana. Losch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Losch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Losch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4321. Plaintiff Trevin Lottie is an individual residing in Indiana. Lottie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lottie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lottie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4322. Plaintiff Lanessia Love is an individual residing in Illinois. Love worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Love has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Love has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4323. Plaintiff Matthew Macklin is an individual residing in Indiana. Macklin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Macklin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Macklin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4324. Plaintiff Lawrence Macon is an individual residing in Indiana. Macon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Macon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Macon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4325. Plaintiff Francisco Maldonado is an individual residing in Indiana. Maldonado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maldonado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maldonado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4326. Plaintiff Joshua Mann is an individual residing in Indiana. Mann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4327. Plaintiff Donovan Mann is an individual residing in Indiana. Mann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4328. Plaintiff Nicholas Marple is an individual residing in Indiana. Marple worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marple has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marple has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4329. Plaintiff Mark Marsh is an individual residing in Indiana. Marsh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marsh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marsh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4330. Plaintiff Chris Martin is an individual residing in Indiana. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4331. Plaintiff Craig Masengale is an individual residing in Indiana. Masengale worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Masengale has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Masengale has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4332. Plaintiff Eric Maus is an individual residing in Indiana. Maus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4333. Plaintiff Angela Mayfield is an individual residing in Indiana. Mayfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mayfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mayfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4334. Plaintiff Jonte McBride is an individual residing in Indiana. McBride worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McBride has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McBride has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4335. Plaintiff Brandon McDonald is an individual residing in Indiana. McDonald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McDonald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McDonald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4336. Plaintiff Terrence McGrew is an individual residing in Texas. McGrew worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McGrew has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McGrew has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4337. Plaintiff Michael McIntyre Jr is an individual residing in Indiana. McIntyre Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McIntyre

Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McIntyre Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4338. Plaintiff Aaron Mckillip is an individual residing in Indiana. Mckillip worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mckillip has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckillip has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4339. Plaintiff Patrick Mcnamara is an individual residing in Indiana. Mcnamara worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcnamara has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcnamara has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4340. Plaintiff Sheldon McNary is an individual residing in Indiana. McNary worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McNary has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McNary has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4341. Plaintiff David Mcqueen is an individual residing in Indiana. Mcqueen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcqueen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcqueen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4342. Plaintiff Scott Meriwether is an individual residing in Indiana. Meriwether worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2003 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meriwether has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meriwether has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4343. Plaintiff Joseph Miller is an individual residing in Indiana. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4344. Plaintiff Sara Miskell is an individual residing in Indiana. Miskell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2023 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miskell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miskell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4345. Plaintiff Jason Bebley is an individual residing in Indiana. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4346. Plaintiff Jeffrey Molden is an individual residing in Indiana. Molden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Molden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Molden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4347. Plaintiff Kevin Moody is an individual residing in Indiana. Moody worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moody has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moody has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4348. Plaintiff Lera Moore is an individual residing in Illinois. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4349. Plaintiff Edward Muir is an individual residing in Indiana. Muir worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Muir has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Muir has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4350. Plaintiff Eric Mullins is an individual residing in Indiana. Mullins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mullins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mullins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4351. Plaintiff Dustin Musgrove is an individual residing in Indiana. Musgrove worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Musgrove has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Musgrove has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4352. Plaintiff Anton Netter is an individual residing in Illinois. Netter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Netter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Netter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4353. Plaintiff Mark Nettinga is an individual residing in Indiana. Nettinga worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nettinga has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nettinga has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4354. Plaintiff Matthew Neumann is an individual residing in Indiana. Neumann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neumann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neumann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4355. Plaintiff Phuoc Ngo is an individual residing in Indiana. Ngo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2002 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ngo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ngo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4356. Plaintiff Ryan Nicholson is an individual residing in Indiana. Nicholson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nicholson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nicholson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4357. Plaintiff John Noerenberg is an individual residing in Indiana. Noerenberg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Noerenberg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Noerenberg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4358. Plaintiff Azmar Northington is an individual residing in Indiana. Northington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Northington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Northington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4359. Plaintiff Jim Nungester is an individual residing in Indiana. Nungester worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nungester has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nungester has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4360. Plaintiff Kiel Nunn is an individual residing in Indiana. Nunn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nunn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nunn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4361. Plaintiff Elijah Nyles is an individual residing in Indiana. Nyles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nyles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nyles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4362. Plaintiff Gerald Olson is an individual residing in Indiana. Olson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4363. Plaintiff Jackie Ori is an individual residing in Kentucky. Ori worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ori has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ori has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4364. Plaintiff Christopher Owens is an individual residing in Indiana. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 1994 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4365. Plaintiff Keith Palmer is an individual residing in Indiana. Palmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4366. Plaintiff Mark Palmer is an individual residing in Indiana. Palmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4367. Plaintiff Michael Palmer is an individual residing in Indiana. Palmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4368. Plaintiff Anthony Parker is an individual residing in Indiana. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4369. Plaintiff William Partee is an individual residing in Indiana. Partee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Partee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Partee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4370. Plaintiff Robert Pattengale is an individual residing in Indiana. Pattengale worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pattengale has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pattengale has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4371. Plaintiff Eric Paul is an individual residing in Indiana. Paul worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Paul has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Paul has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4372. Plaintiff Sara Pegg is an individual residing in Indiana. Pegg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pegg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pegg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4373. Plaintiff Anthony Perry is an individual residing in Indiana. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4374. Plaintiff Mark Peters is an individual residing in Indiana. Peters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4375. Plaintiff Kelly Petty is an individual residing in Indiana. Petty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Petty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Petty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4376. Plaintiff Todd Phillips is an individual residing in Indiana. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4377. Plaintiff Brittany Phillips is an individual residing in Indiana. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4378. Plaintiff Hannah Pickett is an individual residing in Indiana. Pickett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pickett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pickett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4379. Plaintiff Walter Piech is an individual residing in Illinois. Piech worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Piech has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Piech has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4380. Plaintiff Greg Pinkston is an individual residing in Indiana. Pinkston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pinkston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pinkston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4381. Plaintiff David Plaiss is an individual residing in Indiana. Plaiss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Plaiss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Plaiss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4382. Plaintiff Brenton Mott is an individual residing in Indiana. Polanco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polanco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polanco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4383. Plaintiff William Mounts is an individual residing in Michigan. Polanco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polanco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polanco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4384. Plaintiff Joseph Price is an individual residing in Indiana. Price worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Price has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Price has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4385. Plaintiff Jhirmon Price is an individual residing in Indiana. Price worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Price has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Price has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4386. Plaintiff Lawrence Quill is an individual residing in Kentucky. Quill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4387. Plaintiff Cory Radcliffe is an individual residing in Montana. Radcliffe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Radcliffe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Radcliffe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4388. Plaintiff Mark Ragsdale is an individual residing in Indiana. Ragsdale worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ragsdale has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ragsdale has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4389. Plaintiff Idris Rahmaan is an individual residing in Indiana. Rahmaan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rahmaan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rahmaan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4390. Plaintiff Corey Razer is an individual residing in Indiana. Razer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Razer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Razer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4391. Plaintiff Shawn Rhymer is an individual residing in Indiana. Rhymer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rhymer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rhymer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4392. Plaintiff Travis Richards is an individual residing in Indiana. Richards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4393. Plaintiff Cory Ridenour is an individual residing in Indiana. Ridenour worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2005 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ridenour has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ridenour has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4394. Plaintiff Mark Ridgeway is an individual residing in Indiana. Ridgeway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ridgeway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ridgeway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4395. Plaintiff Kevin Rios is an individual residing in Illinois. Rios worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rios has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rios has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4396. Plaintiff Bill Ritter is an individual residing in Indiana. Ritter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ritter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ritter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4397. Plaintiff Jesse Roberts is an individual residing in Indiana. Roberts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4398. Plaintiff Marcus Robertson is an individual residing in Illinois. Robertson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robertson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robertson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4399. Plaintiff Micheal Robinson is an individual residing in Indiana. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4400. Plaintiff Thurman Rogers is an individual residing in Indiana. Rogers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rogers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rogers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4401. Plaintiff Jared Rose is an individual residing in Indiana. Rose worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rose has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rose has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4402. Plaintiff Steve Ruckman is an individual residing in Alabama. Ruckman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ruckman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ruckman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4403. Plaintiff Robert Salinas is an individual residing in Indiana. Salinas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salinas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salinas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4404. Plaintiff Benjamin Salyer is an individual residing in Florida. Salyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4405. Plaintiff Stephen Sanders is an individual residing in Indiana. Sanders worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanders has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanders has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4406. Plaintiff Richard Sanoguet is an individual residing in Illinois. Sanoguet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanoguet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanoguet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4407. Plaintiff Daniel Savage is an individual residing in Indiana. Savage worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Savage has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Savage has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4408. Plaintiff Michael Schorr is an individual residing in South Carolina. Schorr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana and South Carolina from approximately 2021 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schorr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schorr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4409. Plaintiff Britton Schultz is an individual residing in Indiana. Schultz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schultz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schultz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4410. Plaintiff Derrick Sconiers is an individual residing in Illinois. Sconiers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sconiers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sconiers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4411. Plaintiff William Scott is an individual residing in Illinois. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4412. Plaintiff William Seibert is an individual residing in Indiana. Seibert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Seibert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Seibert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4413. Plaintiff Eric Sellers is an individual residing in Kentucky. Sellers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sellers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sellers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4414. Plaintiff Lisa Sharp is an individual residing in Indiana. Sharp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sharp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sharp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4415. Plaintiff Jimmy Sheese is an individual residing in Indiana. Sheese worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sheese has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sheese has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4416. Plaintiff Gregory Sherrow is an individual residing in Indiana. Sherrow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 1992 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sherrow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sherrow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4417. Plaintiff Rosalind Shockley is an individual residing in Indiana. Shockley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shockley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shockley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4418. Plaintiff Christopher Simons is an individual residing in Arizona. Simons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4419. Plaintiff Caleb Sims is an individual residing in Indiana. Sims worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sims has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sims has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4420. Plaintiff Jeffrey Sinder is an individual residing in Indiana. Sinder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sinder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sinder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4421. Plaintiff Jefferson Slaton is an individual residing in Kentucky. Slaton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Slaton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slaton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4422. Plaintiff Keenan Smith is an individual residing in Illinois. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4423. Plaintiff Brion Smith is an individual residing in Illinois. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4424. Plaintiff David Smith is an individual residing in Indiana. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4425. Plaintiff Patrick Smith Jr. is an individual residing in Indiana. Smith Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4426. Plaintiff Patrick Snay is an individual residing in Indiana. Snay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4427. Plaintiff Aaron Snyder is an individual residing in Ohio. Snyder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snyder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snyder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4428. Plaintiff Kyle Sparkman is an individual residing in Indiana. Sparkman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sparkman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sparkman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4429. Plaintiff Cody Sprinkle is an individual residing in Indiana. Sprinkle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sprinkle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sprinkle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4430. Plaintiff George Barre is an individual residing in Kentucky. Srouji worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Srouji has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Srouji has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4431. Plaintiff Pearl Staalenburg is an individual residing in Indiana. Staalenburg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Staalenburg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Staalenburg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4432. Plaintiff Julian Steans is an individual residing in Indiana. Steans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4433. Plaintiff Richy Steele is an individual residing in Ohio. Steele worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steele has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steele has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4434. Plaintiff Erin Steinway is an individual residing in Indiana. Steinway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steinway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steinway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4435. Plaintiff Tomika Stewart is an individual residing in Illinois. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4436. Plaintiff Lyndsey Strouse is an individual residing in Indiana. Strouse worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Strouse has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Strouse has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4437. Plaintiff Jeffery Stuckey is an individual residing in Indiana. Stuckey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stuckey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stuckey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4438. Plaintiff Thomas Swanson is an individual residing in Kentucky. Swanson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swanson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swanson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4439. Plaintiff Amber Tepe is an individual residing in Indiana. Tepe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tepe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tepe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4440. Plaintiff Anthony Thevenot is an individual residing in Indiana. Thevenot worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thevenot has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thevenot has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4441. Plaintiff Kenneth Thompson is an individual residing in Indiana. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4442. Plaintiff Samuel Thompson is an individual residing in Indiana. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4443. Plaintiff Michael Thompson is an individual residing in Indiana. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4444. Plaintiff Bobby Tinsley is an individual residing in Indiana. Tinsley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tinsley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tinsley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4445. Plaintiff Marcus Trotter is an individual residing in Illinois. Trotter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trotter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trotter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4446. Plaintiff Marilynn Tucker is an individual residing in Illinois. Tucker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tucker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tucker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4447. Plaintiff Ryan Urbain is an individual residing in Indiana. Urbain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Urbain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Urbain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4448. Plaintiff James Van Tilburg is an individual residing in Indiana. Van Tilburg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Van Tilburg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Van Tilburg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4449. Plaintiff Shaun Wallace is an individual residing in Indiana. Wallace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4450. Plaintiff Amanda Wallace is an individual residing in Indiana. Wallace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4451. Plaintiff Ricky Walton is an individual residing in California. Walton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4452. Plaintiff Jerry Ward is an individual residing in Illinois. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4453. Plaintiff Darrell Watson is an individual residing in Indiana. Watson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4454. Plaintiff Jonathan Wayland is an individual residing in Indiana. Wayland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wayland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wayland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4455. Plaintiff Gregory Weathers is an individual residing in Indiana. Weathers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weathers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weathers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4456. Plaintiff Jessica Webb is an individual residing in Indiana. Webb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4457. Plaintiff Wayne Webb is an individual residing in Indiana. Webb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4458. Plaintiff Kevin West is an individual residing in Indiana. West worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. West has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because West has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4459. Plaintiff Raymond Westmoreland is an individual residing in Indiana. Westmoreland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Westmoreland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Westmoreland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4460. Plaintiff Walter White is an individual residing in Illinois. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2003 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4461. Plaintiff James White is an individual residing in Indiana. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4462. Plaintiff Adam Whitledge is an individual residing in Indiana. Whitledge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whitledge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whitledge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4463. Plaintiff Jason Whitney is an individual residing in Ohio. Whitney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whitney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whitney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4464. Plaintiff Kevin Wilburn is an individual residing in Indiana. Wilburn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilburn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilburn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4465. Plaintiff Brittany Williams is an individual residing in Indiana. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4466. Plaintiff Ladonna Williams is an individual residing in Indiana. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4467. Plaintiff Antonio Williams is an individual residing in Indiana. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4468. Plaintiff Rasheedah Williams is an individual residing in Illinois. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4469. Plaintiff Henry Williams is an individual residing in Kentucky. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4470. Plaintiff Jedidiah Williams is an individual residing in Indiana. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4471. Plaintiff Steven Wire is an individual residing in Indiana. Wire worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wire has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wire has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4472. Plaintiff Gregory Wolf is an individual residing in Indiana. Wolf worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wolf has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wolf has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4473. Plaintiff Teri Woodard is an individual residing in Indiana. Woodard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woodard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woodard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4474. Plaintiff Logan Worden is an individual residing in Indiana. Worden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Worden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Worden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4475. Plaintiff Tquan Yelvington is an individual residing in Indiana. Yelvington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yelvington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yelvington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4476. Plaintiff Jon Yoder is an individual residing in Indiana. Yoder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yoder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yoder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4477. Plaintiff Terri Young is an individual residing in Indiana. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4478. Plaintiff Khalid Ziadat is an individual residing in Illinois. Ziadat worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Indiana from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ziadat has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ziadat has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4479. Plaintiff Keith Aslesom is an individual residing in Iowa. Aslesom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aslesom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aslesom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4480. Plaintiff Shane Bailey is an individual residing in Iowa. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4481. Plaintiff Brian Balak is an individual residing in Iowa. Balak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Balak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Balak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4482. Plaintiff Scott Bell is an individual residing in Nebraska. Bell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 1999 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4483. Plaintiff Daniel Bellile is an individual residing in Iowa. Bellile worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bellile has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bellile has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4484. Plaintiff Dracy Bender is an individual residing in Nebraska. Bender worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bender has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bender has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4485. Plaintiff William Birch is an individual residing in Iowa. Birch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Birch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Birch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4486. Plaintiff Aisha Bush is an individual residing in Iowa. Bush worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bush has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bush has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4487. Plaintiff Kerry Bussan is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Bussan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bussan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bussan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4488. Plaintiff Jonathan Cardoso is an individual residing in Iowa. Cardoso worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cardoso has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cardoso has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4489. Plaintiff Devin Collins is an individual residing in Iowa. Collins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4490. Plaintiff Ryan Cummings is an individual residing in Iowa. Cummings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cummings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cummings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4491. Plaintiff David Davidson is an individual residing in Iowa. Davidson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davidson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davidson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4492. Plaintiff Matthew Davis is an individual residing in Iowa. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4493. Plaintiff Gerard Densmore is an individual residing in Iowa. Densmore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Densmore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Densmore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4494. Plaintiff Cameron Derry is an individual residing in Nebraska. Derry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Derry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Derry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4495. Plaintiff Jaciel Acevedo is an individual residing in Kansas. Diehl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Diehl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Diehl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4496. Plaintiff Terry Edwards Jr is an individual residing in Nebraska. Edwards Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edwards Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edwards Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4497. Plaintiff Rusty Eilers is an individual residing in Iowa. Eilers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eilers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eilers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4498. Plaintiff Edward Enyard is an individual residing in Nebraska. Enyard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Enyard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Enyard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4499. Plaintiff Troy Gill is an individual residing in Iowa. Gill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4500. Plaintiff Michael Groh is an individual residing in Iowa. Groh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Groh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Groh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4501. Plaintiff Troy Howard is an individual residing in Iowa. Howard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4502. Plaintiff Troy Huerta is an individual residing in Nebraska. Huerta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huerta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huerta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4503. Plaintiff Jonathan Huitink is an individual residing in Iowa. Huitink worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huitink has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huitink has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4504. Plaintiff Mike Jefferson is an individual residing in Iowa. Jefferson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jefferson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jefferson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4505. Plaintiff Edward Jirka is an individual residing in North Carolina. Jirka worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jirka has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jirka has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4506. Plaintiff Owen Kelley is an individual residing in Nebraska. Kelley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4507. Plaintiff Richard Kemp is an individual residing in Iowa. Kemp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kemp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kemp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4508. Plaintiff Shawn Kieran is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Kieran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa and Wisconsin from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kieran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kieran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4509. Plaintiff Christofer Kingrey is an individual residing in Iowa. Kingrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kingrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kingrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4510. Plaintiff Joe Komarek is an individual residing in Iowa. Komarek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Komarek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Komarek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4511. Plaintiff Joshua Loftus is an individual residing in Iowa. Loftus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loftus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loftus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4512. Plaintiff Dana Marshall is an individual residing in Iowa. Marshall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marshall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marshall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4513. Plaintiff Isaiah Martin is an individual residing in Iowa. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4514. Plaintiff Darwin McCleish is an individual residing in Iowa. McCleish worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McCleish has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McCleish has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4515. Plaintiff Eric McDonald is an individual residing in Iowa. McDonald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McDonald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McDonald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4516. Plaintiff Robert McGregor is an individual residing in Nebraska. McGregor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McGregor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McGregor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4517. Plaintiff Michelle Mitchell is an individual residing in Iowa. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4518. Plaintiff Nicolos Moffitt is an individual residing in Indiana. Moffitt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moffitt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moffitt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4519. Plaintiff Tyler Neuhaus is an individual residing in Iowa. Neuhaus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neuhaus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neuhaus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4520. Plaintiff Theresa Nosley is an individual residing in Iowa. Nosley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nosley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nosley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4521. Plaintiff Jim Oconnor is an individual residing in Nebraska. Oconnor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 1993 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oconnor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oconnor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4522. Plaintiff Grant Ogle is an individual residing in Iowa. Ogle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2013 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ogle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ogle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4523. Plaintiff Bradley Ogles is an individual residing in Iowa. Ogles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ogles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ogles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4524. Plaintiff Darren Ollom is an individual residing in Iowa. Ollom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ollom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ollom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4525. Plaintiff Salvador Ortiz Jr. is an individual residing in Iowa. Ortiz Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ortiz Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ortiz Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4526. Plaintiff Morris Parson is an individual residing in Iowa. Parson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4527. Plaintiff Samuel Petersen is an individual residing in Iowa. Petersen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2007 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Petersen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Petersen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4528. Plaintiff Perry Porter is an individual residing in Iowa. Porter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Porter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Porter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4529. Plaintiff Michael Queen is an individual residing in Iowa. Queen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Queen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Queen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4530. Plaintiff Billy Robinson is an individual residing in Nebraska. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4531. Plaintiff Brad Ross is an individual residing in Iowa. Ross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2001 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4532. Plaintiff Dennis Ross is an individual residing in Iowa. Ross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4533. Plaintiff David Schulz is an individual residing in Iowa. Schulz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 1996 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schulz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schulz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4534. Plaintiff John Shearer is an individual residing in Nebraska. Shearer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shearer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shearer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4535. Plaintiff Shannon Sires is an individual residing in Iowa. Sires worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sires has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sires has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4536. Plaintiff Brian Sorenson is an individual residing in Iowa. Sorenson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sorenson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sorenson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4537. Plaintiff Brent Streeks is an individual residing in Nebraska. Streeks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Streeks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Streeks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4538. Plaintiff Jay Stump is an individual residing in Iowa. Stump worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stump has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stump has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4539. Plaintiff Andrew Tibbott is an individual residing in Iowa. Tibbott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tibbott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tibbott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4540. Plaintiff James Tillman is an individual residing in Iowa. Tillman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tillman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tillman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4541. Plaintiff Jason Tripp is an individual residing in Iowa. Tripp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tripp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tripp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4542. Plaintiff Travis Trueblood is an individual residing in Iowa. Trueblood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trueblood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trueblood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4543. Plaintiff Chris Van Blaricome is an individual residing in Iowa. Van Blaricome worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Van Blaricome has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Van Blaricome has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4544. Plaintiff Raymond Varner is an individual residing in Iowa. Varner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Varner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Varner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4545. Plaintiff Matthew Wallace is an individual residing in Iowa. Wallace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4546. Plaintiff Kirk Warner-Talbott is an individual residing in Iowa. Warner-Talbott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warner-Talbott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warner-Talbott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4547. Plaintiff Anthony Weatherman is an individual residing in Iowa. Weatherman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weatherman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weatherman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4548. Plaintiff Joshua Wells is an individual residing in Iowa. Wells worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wells has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wells has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4549. Plaintiff Ian Wilber is an individual residing in Iowa. Wilber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4550. Plaintiff Emmett Statzer is an individual residing in Kansas. Wise worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wise has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wise has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4551. Plaintiff Thomas Woods is an individual residing in Illinois. Woods worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woods has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woods has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4552. Plaintiff Gregory Wymore is an individual residing in Iowa. Wymore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wymore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wymore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4553. Plaintiff Brad Yakish is an individual residing in Iowa. Yakish worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yakish has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yakish has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4554. Plaintiff Brian Yakish is an individual residing in Iowa. Yakish worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Iowa from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yakish has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yakish has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4555. Plaintiff Adrian Aguilar is an individual residing in Kansas. Aguilar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aguilar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aguilar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4556. Plaintiff Jimmy Ainesworth is an individual residing in Kansas. Ainesworth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ainesworth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ainesworth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4557. Plaintiff Alex Aldape is an individual residing in Missouri. Aldape worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aldape has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aldape has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4558. Plaintiff Randy Alexander is an individual residing in Kansas. Alexander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alexander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alexander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4559. Plaintiff Christopher Alexander is an individual residing in Kansas. Alexander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alexander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alexander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4560. Plaintiff Kurtis Anderson is an individual residing in Kansas. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4561. Plaintiff Emily Azami is an individual residing in Missouri. Azami worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Azami has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Azami has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4562. Plaintiff Timothy Bennett is an individual residing in Missouri. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4563. Plaintiff Nathaniel Blakley Jr is an individual residing in Missouri. Blakley Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blakley Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blakley Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4564. Plaintiff Donnie Brennan is an individual residing in Kansas. Brennan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brennan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brennan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4565. Plaintiff Kyle Frasier is an individual residing in Kansas. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4566. Plaintiff Luke Brown is an individual residing in Kansas. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4567. Plaintiff Charlie Brown is an individual residing in Kansas. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4568. Plaintiff Hank Burch is an individual residing in Kansas. Burch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4569. Plaintiff Brandon Butler is an individual residing in Missouri. Butler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Butler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Butler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4570. Plaintiff Darin Campbell is an individual residing in Kansas. Campbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Campbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Campbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4571. Plaintiff Zachary Cannady is an individual residing in Kansas. Cannady worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cannady has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cannady has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4572. Plaintiff Jeffrey Carlton is an individual residing in Kansas. Carlton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carlton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carlton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4573. Plaintiff Larry Metzdorf is an individual residing in Missouri. Casmier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Casmier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Casmier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4574. Plaintiff Jr Chamberlin is an individual residing in Florida. Chamberlin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chamberlin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chamberlin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4575. Plaintiff Kirk Chastain is an individual residing in Kansas. Chastain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chastain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chastain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4576. Plaintiff Susan Childers is an individual residing in Kansas. Childers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Childers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Childers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4577. Plaintiff Matthew Christian is an individual residing in Kansas. Christian worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Christian has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Christian has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4578. Plaintiff Mariah Claar is an individual residing in Kansas. Claar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Claar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Claar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4579. Plaintiff Amber Comer is an individual residing in Kansas. Comer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Comer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Comer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4580. Plaintiff Kyle Cooper is an individual residing in Kansas. Cooper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cooper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cooper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4581. Plaintiff William Creason is an individual residing in Arizona. Creason worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Creason has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Creason has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4582. Plaintiff Chad Crouse is an individual residing in Kansas. Crouse worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crouse has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crouse has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4583. Plaintiff Shelby Dean is an individual residing in Kansas. Dean worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dean has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dean has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4584. Plaintiff Tyler Dirks is an individual residing in Kansas. Dirks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dirks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dirks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4585. Plaintiff Thomas Ehrlich is an individual residing in Kansas. Ehrlich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ehrlich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ehrlich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4586. Plaintiff Amber Emery is an individual residing in Kansas. Emery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Emery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Emery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4587. Plaintiff Cody Erwin is an individual residing in Kansas. Erwin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Erwin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Erwin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4588. Plaintiff Tracie Eskew is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Eskew worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eskew has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eskew has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4589. Plaintiff David Flinn is an individual residing in Kansas. Flinn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flinn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flinn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4590. Plaintiff Robert Forbes is an individual residing in Kansas. Forbes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Forbes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Forbes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4591. Plaintiff Ceyona Ford is an individual residing in Missouri. Ford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4592. Plaintiff Nathan Gabel is an individual residing in Kansas. Gabel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gabel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gabel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4593. Plaintiff David Gorley is an individual residing in Kansas. Gorley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gorley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gorley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4594. Plaintiff John Gould is an individual residing in Kansas. Gould worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gould has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gould has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4595. Plaintiff Nancy Govero is an individual residing in Kansas. Govero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Govero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Govero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4596. Plaintiff Dominic Grant is an individual residing in Kansas. Grant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4597. Plaintiff Raymond Gutierrez is an individual residing in Kansas. Gutierrez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gutierrez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gutierrez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4598. Plaintiff Jason Guyle is an individual residing in Kansas. Guyle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guyle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guyle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4599. Plaintiff Dakota Haag is an individual residing in Kansas. Haag worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haag has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haag has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4600. Plaintiff Jonathan Hagans is an individual residing in Kansas. Hagans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hagans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hagans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4601. Plaintiff Paul Hamm is an individual residing in Kansas. Hamm worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamm has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamm has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4602. Plaintiff Erik Hansen is an individual residing in Kansas. Hansen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hansen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hansen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4603. Plaintiff Jacob Harryman is an individual residing in Missouri. Harryman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harryman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harryman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4604. Plaintiff Matthew Havens is an individual residing in Virginia. Havens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Havens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Havens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4605. Plaintiff Ted Heberling is an individual residing in Kansas. Heberling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heberling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heberling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4606. Plaintiff Randy Heithoff is an individual residing in Kansas. Heithoff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2011 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heithoff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heithoff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4607. Plaintiff Emilio Hernandez is an individual residing in Missouri. Hernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4608. Plaintiff Mark Holden is an individual residing in Kansas. Holden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2009 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4609. Plaintiff Robert Hon is an individual residing in Kansas. Hon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4610. Plaintiff Darcell Howard is an individual residing in Kansas. Howard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4611. Plaintiff Brandon James is an individual residing in Missouri. James worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. James has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because James has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4612. Plaintiff Shawnda Jansen is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Jansen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jansen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jansen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4613. Plaintiff Jarea Jarrell is an individual residing in Kansas. Jarrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jarrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jarrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4614. Plaintiff Mark Jenkins is an individual residing in Kansas. Jenkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jenkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jenkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4615. Plaintiff Zachary Johnson is an individual residing in Kansas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4616. Plaintiff Kimberly Johnson is an individual residing in Kansas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4617. Plaintiff Jamey Jones is an individual residing in Iowa. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4618. Plaintiff Thomas Jones is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4619. Plaintiff James Kirkwood is an individual residing in Kansas. Kirkwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kirkwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kirkwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4620. Plaintiff Marshall Larson is an individual residing in Kansas. Larson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Larson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Larson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4621. Plaintiff Jesse Lemaster is an individual residing in Kansas. Lemaster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lemaster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lemaster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4622. Plaintiff Conner Lilleston is an individual residing in Kansas. Lilleston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lilleston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lilleston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4623. Plaintiff Damien Loewen is an individual residing in Kansas. Loewen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas and Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loewen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loewen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4624. Plaintiff Daniel Long is an individual residing in Kansas. Long worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Long has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Long has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4625. Plaintiff Angela Looney is an individual residing in Kansas. Looney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Looney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Looney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4626. Plaintiff Curtiss Marlowe Jr is an individual residing in Texas. Marlowe Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marlowe Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marlowe Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4627. Plaintiff Dylon Mathews is an individual residing in Kansas. Mathews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mathews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mathews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4628. Plaintiff David Mccabe is an individual residing in Kansas. Mccabe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccabe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccabe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4629. Plaintiff Dusty Miner is an individual residing in Kansas. Miner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4630. Plaintiff Kevin Mohler is an individual residing in Kansas. Mohler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mohler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mohler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4631. Plaintiff Joshua Moore is an individual residing in Kansas. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4632. Plaintiff Chad Morford is an individual residing in Kansas. Morford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4633. Plaintiff Raymond Morris is an individual residing in Kansas. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4634. Plaintiff James Moyer is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Moyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4635. Plaintiff Brandon Muehler is an individual residing in Kansas. Muehler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Muehler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Muehler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4636. Plaintiff Larry Neal is an individual residing in Kansas. Neal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4637. Plaintiff Tommy Nguyen is an individual residing in Kansas. Nguyen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nguyen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nguyen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4638. Plaintiff Shane Nichols is an individual residing in Kansas. Nichols worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nichols has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nichols has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4639. Plaintiff Rico Nimrod is an individual residing in Missouri. Nimrod worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nimrod has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nimrod has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4640. Plaintiff Timothy Pacello is an individual residing in Kansas. Pacello worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pacello has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pacello has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4641. Plaintiff Estasar Pacheco is an individual residing in Kansas. Pacheco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pacheco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pacheco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4642. Plaintiff Heather Page is an individual residing in Kansas. Page worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Page has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Page has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4643. Plaintiff Joseph Parks is an individual residing in Kansas. Parks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4644. Plaintiff Randal Paulson is an individual residing in Kansas. Paulson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Paulson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Paulson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4645. Plaintiff Yamilka Pereira is an individual residing in Kansas. Pereira worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pereira has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pereira has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4646. Plaintiff Jason Perrault is an individual residing in Kansas. Perrault worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perrault has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perrault has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4647. Plaintiff Philip Plunkett is an individual residing in Missouri. Plunkett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Plunkett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Plunkett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4648. Plaintiff Jared Pohl is an individual residing in Kansas. Pohl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pohl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pohl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4649. Plaintiff Amy Ponte is an individual residing in Kansas. Ponte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ponte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ponte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4650. Plaintiff Tyler Preston is an individual residing in Kansas. Preston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Preston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Preston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4651. Plaintiff Clifford Prichard is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Prichard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prichard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prichard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4652. Plaintiff Sandra Proffitt is an individual residing in Kansas. Proffitt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Proffitt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Proffitt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4653. Plaintiff Zackary Randolph is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Randolph worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Randolph has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Randolph has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4654. Plaintiff Taylor Riley is an individual residing in Kansas. Riley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4655. Plaintiff Daniel Robben is an individual residing in Kansas. Robben worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robben has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robben has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4656. Plaintiff Brian Roberts is an individual residing in Kansas. Roberts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4657. Plaintiff Kimberly Rogers is an individual residing in Kansas. Rogers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rogers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rogers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4658. Plaintiff Shawn Ross is an individual residing in Kansas. Ross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4659. Plaintiff Matthew Rush is an individual residing in Kansas. Rush worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rush has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rush has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4660. Plaintiff Shane Russo is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Russo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Russo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Russo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4661. Plaintiff Phillip Sauber is an individual residing in Kansas. Sauber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2008 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sauber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sauber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4662. Plaintiff Chadwick Scott is an individual residing in Kansas. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4663. Plaintiff Spencer Shaver is an individual residing in Kansas. Shaver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shaver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shaver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4664. Plaintiff Michael Siebel is an individual residing in Missouri. Siebel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Siebel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Siebel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4665. Plaintiff Terry Smedley is an individual residing in Kansas. Smedley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smedley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smedley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4666. Plaintiff Michael Smith is an individual residing in Arkansas. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4667. Plaintiff Jason Smith is an individual residing in Kansas. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4668. Plaintiff Lynn Stewart is an individual residing in Kansas. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4669. Plaintiff Marvin Tavis is an individual residing in Kansas. Tavis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tavis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tavis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4670. Plaintiff Ryan Taylor is an individual residing in Kansas. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4671. Plaintiff Teresa Thurman is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Thurman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thurman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thurman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4672. Plaintiff Robbin Trompeter is an individual residing in Kansas. Trompeter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2005 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trompeter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trompeter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4673. Plaintiff Michael Wagner is an individual residing in Nebraska. Wagner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wagner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wagner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4674. Plaintiff Jeffery Weltmer is an individual residing in Kansas. Weltmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weltmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weltmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4675. Plaintiff Steven Wendt is an individual residing in Kansas. Wendt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wendt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wendt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4676. Plaintiff Brent Williams is an individual residing in Kansas. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4677. Plaintiff Gregory Wilson is an individual residing in Kansas. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2021 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4678. Plaintiff Jimmy Wolf is an individual residing in Kansas. Wolf worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wolf has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wolf has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4679. Plaintiff Chauncey Wyant is an individual residing in Kansas. Wyant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kansas from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wyant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wyant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4680. Plaintiff Robert Adams is an individual residing in Kentucky. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4681. Plaintiff Edward Amos is an individual residing in Kentucky. Amos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Amos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Amos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4682. Plaintiff Noah Ashcraft is an individual residing in Ohio. Ashcraft worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ashcraft has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ashcraft has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4683. Plaintiff Benjamn Aulph is an individual residing in Kentucky. Aulph worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aulph has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aulph has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4684. Plaintiff Joshua Bailey is an individual residing in Ohio. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky and Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4685. Plaintiff Michael Baker is an individual residing in Kentucky. Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4686. Plaintiff Kentrell Banks is an individual residing in North Carolina. Banks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Banks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Banks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4687. Plaintiff Elvis Bikic is an individual residing in Kentucky. Bikic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bikic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bikic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4688. Plaintiff Thomas Black is an individual residing in Kentucky. Black worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Black has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Black has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4689. Plaintiff James Boone is an individual residing in Kentucky. Boone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4690. Plaintiff Jerry Bowlin is an individual residing in Tennessee. Bowlin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 1993 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowlin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowlin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4691. Plaintiff Geoffrey Briceno is an individual residing in Indiana. Briceno worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Briceno has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Briceno has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4692. Plaintiff David Brinley is an individual residing in Kentucky. Brinley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brinley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brinley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4693. Plaintiff Christopher Brown is an individual residing in Kentucky. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4694. Plaintiff Davinson Carmona is an individual residing in Kentucky. Carmona worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carmona has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carmona has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4695. Plaintiff Michael Carter is an individual residing in Kentucky. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4696. Plaintiff Maryellen Davis is an individual residing in Kentucky. Clemons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clemons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clemons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4697. Plaintiff Shawn Cline is an individual residing in Kentucky. Cline worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cline has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cline has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4698. Plaintiff Alfis Coleman is an individual residing in Kentucky. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4699. Plaintiff James Conner is an individual residing in Kentucky. Conner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4700. Plaintiff Verkisha Cook is an individual residing in Kentucky. Cook worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cook has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cook has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4701. Plaintiff Roger Cooper is an individual residing in Kentucky. Cooper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cooper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cooper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4702. Plaintiff Debra Cundiff is an individual residing in Kentucky. Cundiff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cundiff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cundiff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4703. Plaintiff Shane Davidson is an individual residing in Kentucky. Davidson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davidson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davidson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4704. Plaintiff Erica Dean is an individual residing in Kentucky. Dean worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dean has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dean has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4705. Plaintiff Clarence Duncan is an individual residing in Indiana. Duncan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky and Indiana from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duncan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duncan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4706. Plaintiff Kenneth Earls is an individual residing in Kentucky. Earls worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Earls has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Earls has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4707. Plaintiff William Edwards is an individual residing in Kentucky. Edwards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edwards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edwards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4708. Plaintiff Jonathan England is an individual residing in Kentucky. England worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. England has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because England has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4709. Plaintiff Brandon Evans is an individual residing in Illinois. Evans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Evans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Evans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4710. Plaintiff Kevin Fields is an individual residing in Kentucky. Fields worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fields has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fields has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4711. Plaintiff Robert Floyd is an individual residing in Florida. Floyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2000 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Floyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Floyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4712. Plaintiff Hazen Frick is an individual residing in Ohio. Frick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4713. Plaintiff Kenneth Garland is an individual residing in Kentucky. Garland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4714. Plaintiff Lecardo Gay is an individual residing in Ohio. Gay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4715. Plaintiff Samuel George is an individual residing in Kentucky. George worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. George has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because George has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4716. Plaintiff Desiree Green is an individual residing in Kentucky. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4717. Plaintiff Greg Grimes is an individual residing in Kentucky. Grimes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grimes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grimes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4718. Plaintiff Branden Grimes is an individual residing in Kentucky. Grimes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grimes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grimes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4719. Plaintiff Jeffrey Gross is an individual residing in Kentucky. Gross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4720. Plaintiff Alicia Grubb is an individual residing in Kentucky. Grubb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grubb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grubb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4721. Plaintiff Michael Hadley is an individual residing in Kentucky. Hadley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hadley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hadley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4722. Plaintiff Wallace Halcomb is an individual residing in Kentucky. Halcomb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Halcomb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Halcomb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4723. Plaintiff Tharren Hart is an individual residing in Kentucky. Hart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4724. Plaintiff Barry House is an individual residing in Kentucky. House worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 1998 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. House has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because House has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4725. Plaintiff Seth Humphries is an individual residing in Kentucky. Humphries worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Humphries has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Humphries has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4726. Plaintiff Dustin Johnson is an individual residing in Kentucky. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4727. Plaintiff Matt Carius is an individual residing in Kentucky. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4728. Plaintiff Kenyetta Johnson is an individual residing in Kentucky. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4729. Plaintiff Thomas Kane is an individual residing in Kentucky. Kane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4730. Plaintiff Brian Kelly is an individual residing in Kentucky. Kelly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4731. Plaintiff Hugh Kemp is an individual residing in Kentucky. Kemp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kemp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kemp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4732. Plaintiff Gregory Kohler is an individual residing in Kentucky. Kohler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kohler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kohler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4733. Plaintiff Jeremy Lacey is an individual residing in Ohio. Lacey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lacey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lacey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4734. Plaintiff Ethel Lancaster is an individual residing in Kentucky. Lancaster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lancaster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lancaster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4735. Plaintiff Dwayne Lancaster is an individual residing in Kentucky. Lancaster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lancaster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lancaster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4736. Plaintiff Barrie Lapham is an individual residing in Kentucky. Lapham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lapham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lapham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4737. Plaintiff Rolando Lapinell Paneque is an individual residing in Kentucky. Lapinell Paneque worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lapinell Paneque has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lapinell Paneque has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4738. Plaintiff Kenneth Lathery is an individual residing in Kentucky. Lathery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lathery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lathery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4739. Plaintiff Darryl Lawes is an individual residing in Kentucky. Lawes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4740. Plaintiff Robert Leet is an individual residing in Kentucky. Leet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4741. Plaintiff Norman Legette is an individual residing in Illinois. Legette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Legette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Legette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4742. Plaintiff Diego Leyva is an individual residing in Kentucky. Leyva worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leyva has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leyva has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4743. Plaintiff Jeremy Lockard is an individual residing in Indiana. Lockard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lockard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lockard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4744. Plaintiff Johnny Malone is an individual residing in Kentucky. Malone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Malone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Malone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4745. Plaintiff Stephen Marks, Sr. is an individual residing in Indiana. Marks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4746. Plaintiff Christopher Mcalister is an individual residing in Kentucky. Mcalister worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcalister has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcalister has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4747. Plaintiff Carrie Mccall is an individual residing in Kentucky. Mccall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4748. Plaintiff Antoine Miles is an individual residing in Kentucky. Miles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4749. Plaintiff Brian Moore is an individual residing in Ohio. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4750. Plaintiff Jessie Morris is an individual residing in Indiana. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4751. Plaintiff Cynthia Najdzion is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Najdzion worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Najdzion has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Najdzion has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4752. Plaintiff Terry Neagle is an individual residing in Kentucky. Neagle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neagle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neagle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4753. Plaintiff Jessica Olson is an individual residing in Oregon. Olson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4754. Plaintiff Alvin Palmer is an individual residing in Kentucky. Palmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky and Indiana from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4755. Plaintiff Robert Parry is an individual residing in Kentucky. Parry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky and Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4756. Plaintiff Cody Phillips is an individual residing in Ohio. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4757. Plaintiff Yenny Pino Briceno is an individual residing in Kentucky. Pino Briceno worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pino Briceno has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pino Briceno has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4758. Plaintiff Justin Pratt is an individual residing in Kentucky. Pratt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pratt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pratt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4759. Plaintiff Michael Ramsey is an individual residing in Kentucky. Ramsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4760. Plaintiff Stacy Rice is an individual residing in Kentucky. Rice worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rice has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rice has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4761. Plaintiff Scott Risner is an individual residing in Kentucky. Risner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Risner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Risner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4762. Plaintiff Eugene Robinson is an individual residing in Kentucky. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4763. Plaintiff Michael Rodgers Jr. is an individual residing in Ohio. Rodgers Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodgers Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodgers Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4764. Plaintiff Tiffany Rogers is an individual residing in Kentucky. Rogers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rogers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rogers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4765. Plaintiff Michael Root is an individual residing in Kentucky. Root worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Root has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Root has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4766. Plaintiff Lawrence Rushing is an individual residing in Kentucky. Rushing worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 1993 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rushing has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rushing has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4767. Plaintiff Kevin Sacksteder is an individual residing in Kentucky. Sacksteder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sacksteder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sacksteder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4768. Plaintiff Krystal Scoggins is an individual residing in Indiana. Scoggins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scoggins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scoggins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4769. Plaintiff Michael Searp is an individual residing in Kentucky. Searp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Searp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Searp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4770. Plaintiff Greg Shearer is an individual residing in Ohio. Shearer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shearer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shearer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4771. Plaintiff Brian Smioldo is an individual residing in Kentucky. Smioldo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smioldo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smioldo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4772. Plaintiff Yolonda Smith is an individual residing in Kentucky. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4773. Plaintiff Bryan Smith is an individual residing in Kentucky. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4774. Plaintiff Timothy South is an individual residing in Tennessee. South worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. South has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because South has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4775. Plaintiff Bobby Staggs is an individual residing in Kentucky. Staggs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Staggs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Staggs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4776. Plaintiff Erica Starks is an individual residing in Kentucky. Starks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Starks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Starks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4777. Plaintiff Christopher Stephens is an individual residing in Kentucky. Stephens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4778. Plaintiff Robert Stinson is an individual residing in Kentucky. Stinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4779. Plaintiff Jonathon Tillman is an individual residing in Kentucky. Tillman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2003 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tillman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tillman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4780. Plaintiff Joshua Tucker is an individual residing in Kentucky. Tucker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tucker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tucker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4781. Plaintiff Jason Turner is an individual residing in Kentucky. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4782. Plaintiff Joshua Upton is an individual residing in Indiana. Upton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky and Indiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Upton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Upton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4783. Plaintiff Martin Waddell Iii is an individual residing in Tennessee. Waddell Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Waddell Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Waddell Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4784. Plaintiff Caleb Walsh is an individual residing in Kentucky. Walsh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walsh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walsh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4785. Plaintiff Cedric Ware is an individual residing in Kentucky. Ware worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ware has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ware has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4786. Plaintiff Cordell Watts is an individual residing in Kentucky. Watts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4787. Plaintiff Carl Webb is an individual residing in Kentucky. Webb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4788. Plaintiff Zachary West is an individual residing in Kentucky. West worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. West has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because West has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4789. Plaintiff Jennifer White is an individual residing in Kentucky. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4790. Plaintiff Bryce Woosley is an individual residing in Kentucky. Woosley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woosley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woosley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4791. Plaintiff Andrew Worthen is an individual residing in Illinois. Worthen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Worthen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Worthen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4792. Plaintiff Joshua Young is an individual residing in Kentucky. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4793. Plaintiff Melissa Zipperlein is an individual residing in Kentucky. Zipperlein worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Kentucky from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Zipperlein has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zipperlein has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4794. Plaintiff Danielle Abshire is an individual residing in Louisiana. Abshire worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abshire has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abshire has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4795. Plaintiff Bianca Adams is an individual residing in Louisiana. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4796. Plaintiff Marsailla Adams is an individual residing in Louisiana. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4797. Plaintiff Megan Albert is an individual residing in Louisiana. Albert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Albert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Albert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4798. Plaintiff Justin Alford is an individual residing in Louisiana. Alford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4799. Plaintiff Michael Allard is an individual residing in Louisiana. Allard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4800. Plaintiff Kimberly Allen is an individual residing in Louisiana. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4801. Plaintiff Rose Allen is an individual residing in Mississippi. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4802. Plaintiff Dejuan Armelin is an individual residing in Louisiana. Armelin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2009 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Armelin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armelin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4803. Plaintiff Britley Armstrong is an individual residing in Louisiana. Armstrong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Armstrong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armstrong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4804. Plaintiff David Arvie is an individual residing in Texas. Arvie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arvie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arvie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4805. Plaintiff Jeromy August is an individual residing in Louisiana. August worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. August has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because August has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4806. Plaintiff Sherman Badie is an individual residing in Louisiana. Badie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Badie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Badie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4807. Plaintiff Elgin Bailey is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4808. Plaintiff Bobby Bailey is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4809. Plaintiff Michael Barber is an individual residing in Louisiana. Barber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4810. Plaintiff Matthew Barnes is an individual residing in Louisiana. Barnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4811. Plaintiff Duran Battie is an individual residing in Louisiana. Battie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Battie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Battie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4812. Plaintiff Jennifer Bauman is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bauman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bauman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bauman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4813. Plaintiff Marvin Becnel is an individual residing in Louisiana. Becnel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Becnel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Becnel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4814. Plaintiff Gregsby Bell is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4815. Plaintiff Roosevelt Bell is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4816. Plaintiff Silas Bell is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4817. Plaintiff Deondrae Bellard is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bellard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bellard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bellard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4818. Plaintiff Harris Bellard is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bellard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bellard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bellard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4819. Plaintiff Madonna Belton is an individual residing in Louisiana. Belton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Belton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Belton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4820. Plaintiff Felicia Benjamin is an individual residing in Louisiana. Benjamin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Benjamin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Benjamin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4821. Plaintiff Mickey Bergeron is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bergeron worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bergeron has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bergeron has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4822. Plaintiff Evan Berggren is an individual residing in Alabama. Berggren worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Berggren has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Berggren has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4823. Plaintiff Tina Berzas is an individual residing in Louisiana. Berzas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Berzas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Berzas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4824. Plaintiff Chad Blanchard is an individual residing in Louisiana. Blanchard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blanchard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blanchard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4825. Plaintiff Shaun Bloomer is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bloomer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bloomer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bloomer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4826. Plaintiff Denna Bly is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2003 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4827. Plaintiff Cornell Bolden is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bolden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bolden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bolden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4828. Plaintiff Darrell Boudreaux is an individual residing in Louisiana. Boudreaux worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boudreaux has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boudreaux has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4829. Plaintiff Kandra Breaux is an individual residing in Louisiana. Breaux worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Breaux has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Breaux has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4830. Plaintiff Tybriel Brock is an individual residing in Mississippi. Brock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4831. Plaintiff Jasper Brooks is an individual residing in Louisiana. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4832. Plaintiff Dennis Broussard is an individual residing in Louisiana. Broussard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Broussard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Broussard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4833. Plaintiff Shaji Brown is an individual residing in Louisiana. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4834. Plaintiff Stanley Brown is an individual residing in Louisiana. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4835. Plaintiff Charles Brown Jr. is an individual residing in Louisiana. Brown Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4836. Plaintiff Kristin Bumgarden is an individual residing in Louisiana. Bumgarden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bumgarden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bumgarden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4837. Plaintiff Leonard Burrell is an individual residing in Louisiana. Burrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4838. Plaintiff Tamika Calhoun is an individual residing in Louisiana. Calhoun worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calhoun has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calhoun has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4839. Plaintiff Ashonna Calhoun is an individual residing in Louisiana. Calhoun worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calhoun has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calhoun has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4840. Plaintiff Krystalland Campbell is an individual residing in Louisiana. Campbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Campbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Campbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4841. Plaintiff Michael Carlisle is an individual residing in Louisiana. Carlisle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carlisle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carlisle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4842. Plaintiff Tejean Carroll is an individual residing in Louisiana. Carroll worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carroll has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carroll has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4843. Plaintiff Clarence Carter is an individual residing in Louisiana. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4844. Plaintiff Bashon Casmier, Sr. is an individual residing in Louisiana. Casmier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Casmier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Casmier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4845. Plaintiff Jermaine Celestine is an individual residing in Louisiana. Celestine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Celestine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Celestine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4846. Plaintiff Kristy Chesson-Vasalle is an individual residing in Louisiana. Chesson-Vasalle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chesson-Vasalle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chesson-

Vasalle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4847. Plaintiff Gerald Choplin is an individual residing in Louisiana. Choplin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Choplin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Choplin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4848. Plaintiff Derick Clark is an individual residing in Louisiana. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4849. Plaintiff David Clemmens is an individual residing in Louisiana. Clemmens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clemmens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clemmens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4850. Plaintiff Monica Cloyd is an individual residing in Louisiana. Cloyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cloyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cloyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4851. Plaintiff Justin Cockerham is an individual residing in Louisiana. Cockerham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cockerham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cockerham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4852. Plaintiff Llyodell Coffey is an individual residing in Louisiana. Coffey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coffey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coffey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4853. Plaintiff Arsenio Cofield is an individual residing in Louisiana. Cofield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cofield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cofield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4854. Plaintiff Rickey Colligan is an individual residing in Louisiana. Colligan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Colligan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Colligan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4855. Plaintiff Patrick Collins is an individual residing in Mississippi. Collins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4856. Plaintiff Antonio Cox is an individual residing in Colorado. Cox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4857. Plaintiff Jerry Cox is an individual residing in Louisiana. Cox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4858. Plaintiff Artasha Crawford is an individual residing in Louisiana. Crawford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Crawford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crawford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4859. Plaintiff Brian Crawford is an individual residing in Louisiana. Crawford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crawford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crawford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4860. Plaintiff Trevor Crier is an individual residing in Louisiana. Crier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4861. Plaintiff Corey Crumedy is an individual residing in Mississippi. Crumedy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crumedy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crumedy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4862. Plaintiff Clarence Dartez is an individual residing in Louisiana. Dartez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dartez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dartez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4863. Plaintiff Carsandra Davenport is an individual residing in Louisiana. Davenport worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davenport has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davenport has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4864. Plaintiff Claude Davis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4865. Plaintiff Edward Davis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4866. Plaintiff Leshown Davis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4867. Plaintiff Joseph Davis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4868. Plaintiff Roy Dawson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Dawson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dawson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dawson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4869. Plaintiff Marcus Dawson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Dawson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dawson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dawson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4870. Plaintiff Christella Demouy is an individual residing in Texas. Demouy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Demouy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Demouy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4871. Plaintiff Jessie Devall is an individual residing in Louisiana. Devall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Devall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Devall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4872. Plaintiff Dedric Dixon is an individual residing in Louisiana. Dixon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dixon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dixon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4873. Plaintiff Steven Do is an individual residing in Louisiana. Do worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Do has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Do has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4874. Plaintiff Jacob Dressel is an individual residing in Louisiana. Dressel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dressel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dressel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4875. Plaintiff Haley Dubroc is an individual residing in Louisiana. Dubroc worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dubroc has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dubroc has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4876. Plaintiff Thomas Duhon is an individual residing in Louisiana. Duhon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duhon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duhon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4877. Plaintiff Robbie Dunn is an individual residing in Louisiana. Dunn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dunn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dunn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4878. Plaintiff Samuel Dunn is an individual residing in Louisiana. Dunn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dunn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dunn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4879. Plaintiff Travis Dupree is an individual residing in Louisiana. Dupree worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dupree has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dupree has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4880. Plaintiff Chad Dupuis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Dupuis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dupuis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dupuis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4881. Plaintiff Dominique Durgin is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Durgin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Durgin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Durgin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4882. Plaintiff Marcus Durisseau is an individual residing in Louisiana. Durisseau worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2021 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Durisseau has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Durisseau has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4883. Plaintiff Bayleigh Easley is an individual residing in Louisiana. Easley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Easley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Easley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4884. Plaintiff Jasmine Elaire is an individual residing in Louisiana. Elaire worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elaire has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elaire has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4885. Plaintiff Stevhan Eppinette is an individual residing in Louisiana. Eppinette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Eppinette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eppinette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4886. Plaintiff Micah Ernestine is an individual residing in Louisiana. Ernestine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ernestine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ernestine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4887. Plaintiff Kedrick Ethridge is an individual residing in Louisiana. Ethridge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ethridge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ethridge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4888. Plaintiff Austin Fairchild is an individual residing in Florida. Fairchild worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fairchild has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fairchild has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4889. Plaintiff Chad Faust is an individual residing in Louisiana. Faust worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Faust has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Faust has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4890. Plaintiff Aaron Ferguson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Ferguson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ferguson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ferguson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4891. Plaintiff Adam Fields is an individual residing in Louisiana. Fields worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fields has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fields has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4892. Plaintiff Cedric Figaro is an individual residing in Louisiana. Figaro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Figaro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Figaro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4893. Plaintiff Vernetta Finister is an individual residing in Louisiana. Finister worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Finister has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Finister has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4894. Plaintiff Shannon Fletcher is an individual residing in Louisiana. Fletcher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fletcher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fletcher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4895. Plaintiff Latasha Flowersmcadams is an individual residing in Louisiana. Flowersmcadams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flowersmcadams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flowersmcadams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4896. Plaintiff Tyler Fontenot is an individual residing in Louisiana. Fontenot worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fontenot has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fontenot has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4897. Plaintiff Herman Ford is an individual residing in Louisiana. Ford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4898. Plaintiff Pamela Francis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Francis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Francis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Francis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4899. Plaintiff Kevin Frank is an individual residing in Louisiana. Frank worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frank has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frank has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4900. Plaintiff Demetrious Frazier is an individual residing in Louisiana. Frazier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frazier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frazier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4901. Plaintiff Daniel Gaeta is an individual residing in Louisiana. Gaeta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gaeta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gaeta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4902. Plaintiff Jermaine Gallow is an individual residing in Louisiana. Gallow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gallow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gallow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4903. Plaintiff Lewis Goodwin is an individual residing in Louisiana. Goodwin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodwin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodwin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4904. Plaintiff David Grant is an individual residing in Louisiana. Grant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4905. Plaintiff Juanetta Gray is an individual residing in Louisiana. Gray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4906. Plaintiff Carlus Green is an individual residing in Texas. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4907. Plaintiff Kevin Green is an individual residing in Louisiana. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4908. Plaintiff Jennifer Griffin is an individual residing in Louisiana. Griffin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4909. Plaintiff Kevan Griffith is an individual residing in Louisiana. Griffith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4910. Plaintiff Jeremy Grimes is an individual residing in Louisiana. Grimes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grimes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grimes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4911. Plaintiff Glenn Guidry is an individual residing in Louisiana. Guidry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guidry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guidry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4912. Plaintiff Adam Guilbeau is an individual residing in Louisiana. Guilbeau worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guilbeau has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guilbeau has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4913. Plaintiff Lariska Guillory is an individual residing in Louisiana. Guillory worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guillory has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guillory has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4914. Plaintiff Brandon Haggerty is an individual residing in Louisiana. Haggerty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haggerty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haggerty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4915. Plaintiff Larry Hall is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2002 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4916. Plaintiff Rick Hall Jr. is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hall Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4917. Plaintiff Nedra Hamilton is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hamilton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamilton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamilton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4918. Plaintiff Thomas Handy is an individual residing in Louisiana. Handy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Handy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Handy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4919. Plaintiff Shannon Harris is an individual residing in Louisiana. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4920. Plaintiff Crystal Harrison is an individual residing in Louisiana. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4921. Plaintiff Walter Hasty is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hasty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hasty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hasty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4922. Plaintiff Shanendoah Hathaway is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hathaway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hathaway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hathaway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4923. Plaintiff Giraud Hawkins is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4924. Plaintiff Lakeisha Hayes is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4925. Plaintiff Charles Hayward is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hayward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4926. Plaintiff Glenn Heard is an individual residing in Tennessee. Heard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4927. Plaintiff Shavel Heary is an individual residing in Louisiana. Heary worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heary has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heary has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4928. Plaintiff Michael Henderson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Henderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Henderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4929. Plaintiff Erikesia Henry is an individual residing in Louisiana. Henry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4930. Plaintiff Rayshell Hitchens is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hitchens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hitchens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hitchens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4931. Plaintiff Jacklyn Hollins is an individual residing in Texas. Hollins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hollins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hollins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4932. Plaintiff Mandan Holloway is an individual residing in Louisiana. Holloway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Holloway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holloway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4933. Plaintiff Drew Hopkins is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hopkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hopkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hopkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4934. Plaintiff Devon Hubbert is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hubbert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hubbert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hubbert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4935. Plaintiff Kelly Hutslar is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hutslar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hutslar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hutslar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4936. Plaintiff Reginald Jackson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4937. Plaintiff Suan Jackson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4938. Plaintiff Ivory Jacobs is an individual residing in Louisiana. Jacobs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jacobs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jacobs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4939. Plaintiff Rodney Jeter is an individual residing in Louisiana. Jeter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jeter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jeter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4940. Plaintiff James Johnson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4941. Plaintiff Steven Johnson is an individual residing in Georgia. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2003 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4942. Plaintiff Tiffany Johnson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4943. Plaintiff Kiara Johnson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4944. Plaintiff Cortez Johnson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4945. Plaintiff Tremaine Johnson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4946. Plaintiff Justin Johnson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4947. Plaintiff Dwayne Johnson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4948. Plaintiff Javaria Jones is an individual residing in Louisiana. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4949. Plaintiff Mario Jones is an individual residing in Louisiana. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2022 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4950. Plaintiff Deshannon Jones is an individual residing in Louisiana. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4951. Plaintiff Jeremiah Jones is an individual residing in Louisiana. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4952. Plaintiff George Jones is an individual residing in Louisiana. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2012 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4953. Plaintiff Latoya Jones is an individual residing in Louisiana. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4954. Plaintiff Eunice Joyce is an individual residing in Louisiana. Joyce worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joyce has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joyce has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4955. Plaintiff Christopher Kelley is an individual residing in Louisiana. Kelley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4956. Plaintiff Gregory Kelly is an individual residing in Louisiana. Kelly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4957. Plaintiff Kenchedre Kessee is an individual residing in Texas. Kessee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kessee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kessee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4958. Plaintiff Valerie Knight is an individual residing in Louisiana. Knight worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2005 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knight has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knight has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4959. Plaintiff Joshua Lair is an individual residing in Texas. Lair worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lair has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lair has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4960. Plaintiff Alonzo Landry is an individual residing in Louisiana. Landry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Landry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Landry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4961. Plaintiff Khrissanthus Lasalle is an individual residing in Texas. Lasalle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lasalle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lasalle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4962. Plaintiff Darius Lawden is an individual residing in Louisiana. Lawden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4963. Plaintiff Michael Lawrence is an individual residing in Louisiana. Lawrence worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2001 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Lawrence has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawrence has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4964. Plaintiff Hendrick Leday is an individual residing in Louisiana. Leday worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leday has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leday has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4965. Plaintiff Roosevelt Lee is an individual residing in Louisiana. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4966. Plaintiff Kyle Lee is an individual residing in Louisiana. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4967. Plaintiff Julisa Lewis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4968. Plaintiff Barney Lewis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4969. Plaintiff Gregory Livingston is an individual residing in Georgia. Livingston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Livingston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Livingston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4970. Plaintiff Jeremy Long is an individual residing in Louisiana. Long worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Long has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Long has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4971. Plaintiff Heather Lowe is an individual residing in Louisiana. Lowe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lowe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lowe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4972. Plaintiff Brandon Loyd is an individual residing in Louisiana. Loyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4973. Plaintiff Demond Hutton is an individual residing in Louisiana. Lyons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4974. Plaintiff Alton Lyons, Sr is an individual residing in Louisiana. Lyons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4975. Plaintiff Renaido Mack is an individual residing in Texas. Mack worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mack has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mack has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4976. Plaintiff Karl Mackey Jr is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mackey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mackey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mackey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4977. Plaintiff Leo Madison is an individual residing in Louisiana. Madison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Madison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Madison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4978. Plaintiff Tyrone Marshall is an individual residing in Louisiana. Marshall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marshall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marshall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4979. Plaintiff Naquellar Martin is an individual residing in Louisiana. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4980. Plaintiff Lashonda Matthews is an individual residing in Louisiana. Matthews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matthews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matthews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4981. Plaintiff Willie Matthews is an individual residing in Louisiana. Matthews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matthews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matthews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4982. Plaintiff Delasta May is an individual residing in Louisiana. May worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. May has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because May has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4983. Plaintiff Corey Mayweather is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mayweather worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mayweather has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mayweather has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4984. Plaintiff Lakitha Mcghee is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mcghee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcghee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcghee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4985. Plaintiff Ashanti Mchenry is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mchenry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mchenry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mchenry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4986. Plaintiff Joseph Mckenzie is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mckenzie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Mckenzie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckenzie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4987. Plaintiff Willie Mcrae is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mcrae worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcrae has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcrae has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4988. Plaintiff Jeannette Melton is an individual residing in Texas. Melton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Melton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Melton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4989. Plaintiff Ashleigh Mensia is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mensia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mensia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mensia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4990. Plaintiff Taylor Miller is an individual residing in Louisiana. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4991. Plaintiff Kirk Miller is an individual residing in Louisiana. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4992. Plaintiff Wesley Mills is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mills worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mills has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mills has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4993. Plaintiff Ricky Mitchell, Sr. is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4994. Plaintiff Kcee Mitchell is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4995. Plaintiff Rayquan Moore is an individual residing in Louisiana. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4996. Plaintiff Mark Morel is an individual residing in Louisiana. Morel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4997. Plaintiff Deron Mosley is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mosley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mosley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mosley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4998. Plaintiff Mercedes Mouton is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mouton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mouton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mouton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

4999. Plaintiff Doreen Mouton is an individual residing in Louisiana. Mouton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mouton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mouton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5000. Plaintiff Kelen Murphy is an individual residing in Louisiana. Murphy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murphy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murphy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5001. Plaintiff Donald Nelson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Nelson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5002. Plaintiff Glen Norman is an individual residing in Louisiana. Norman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Norman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Norman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5003. Plaintiff Christopher Packwood, Sr. is an individual residing in Louisiana. Packwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Packwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Packwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5004. Plaintiff Jordan Page is an individual residing in Louisiana. Page worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Page has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Page has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5005. Plaintiff Damien Patterson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Patterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5006. Plaintiff Lance Pattum is an individual residing in Louisiana. Pattum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pattum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pattum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5007. Plaintiff Syrona Paul is an individual residing in Louisiana. Paul worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Paul has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Paul has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5008. Plaintiff Dejuan Payne is an individual residing in Louisiana. Payne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Payne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Payne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5009. Plaintiff Kyitanya Payne is an individual residing in Louisiana. Payne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Payne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Payne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5010. Plaintiff Teliah Perkins is an individual residing in Louisiana. Perkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5011. Plaintiff Daffany Perry is an individual residing in Louisiana. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5012. Plaintiff Willis Perry is an individual residing in Louisiana. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5013. Plaintiff Perry Petite is an individual residing in Louisiana. Petite worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Petite has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Petite has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5014. Plaintiff Dylan Pickens is an individual residing in Louisiana. Pickens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pickens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pickens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5015. Plaintiff Sherita Pinkins is an individual residing in Louisiana. Pinkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pinkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pinkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5016. Plaintiff Aneja Pittman is an individual residing in Louisiana. Pittman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pittman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pittman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5017. Plaintiff Angel Pitts is an individual residing in Louisiana. Pitts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pitts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pitts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5018. Plaintiff Beverly Polite is an individual residing in Louisiana. Polite worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polite has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polite has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5019. Plaintiff Derek Polk is an individual residing in Louisiana. Polk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2009 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5020. Plaintiff Cynthia Powell is an individual residing in Louisiana. Powell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5021. Plaintiff Joseph Price is an individual residing in Louisiana. Price worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Price has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Price has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5022. Plaintiff Timothy Williamson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Prichard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prichard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prichard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5023. Plaintiff Phaedra Pugh is an individual residing in Louisiana. Pugh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pugh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pugh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5024. Plaintiff Debra Raby is an individual residing in Louisiana. Raby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Raby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Raby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5025. Plaintiff Alfred Rayford is an individual residing in Louisiana. Rayford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rayford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rayford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5026. Plaintiff Bryan Reed is an individual residing in Louisiana. Reed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5027. Plaintiff Lawanza Richardson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5028. Plaintiff Sanetra Richardson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5029. Plaintiff Gerald Robinson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5030. Plaintiff Laura Rojas is an individual residing in Louisiana. Rojas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rojas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rojas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5031. Plaintiff Herbert Roy is an individual residing in Louisiana. Roy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5032. Plaintiff Trene Salvant is an individual residing in Louisiana. Salvant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salvant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salvant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5033. Plaintiff Bill Sampy is an individual residing in Louisiana. Sampy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sampy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sampy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5034. Plaintiff Dannon Sawyer is an individual residing in Louisiana. Sawyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sawyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sawyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5035. Plaintiff Loretta Seaberry is an individual residing in Louisiana. Seaberry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Seaberry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Seaberry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5036. Plaintiff Laregue Shepard is an individual residing in Louisiana. Shepard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shepard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shepard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5037. Plaintiff Terri Shreeves is an individual residing in Arkansas. Shreeves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shreeves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shreeves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5038. Plaintiff Jamar Simmons is an individual residing in Louisiana. Simmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5039. Plaintiff Isaac Simon is an individual residing in Louisiana. Simon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5040. Plaintiff Henry Simpson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Simpson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simpson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simpson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5041. Plaintiff Elijah Sledge is an individual residing in Louisiana. Sledge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sledge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sledge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5042. Plaintiff Sheldon Smith is an individual residing in Louisiana. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5043. Plaintiff Jeremy Smith is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5044. Plaintiff Billy Smith is an individual residing in Louisiana. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5045. Plaintiff Gregory Smith is an individual residing in Louisiana. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5046. Plaintiff Arlenzia Smith is an individual residing in Louisiana. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5047. Plaintiff Jonathan Smith is an individual residing in Louisiana. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5048. Plaintiff Maceo Smith is an individual residing in Louisiana. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5049. Plaintiff Donja Smith is an individual residing in Louisiana. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5050. Plaintiff Shelton Sneed is an individual residing in Louisiana. Sneed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sneed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sneed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5051. Plaintiff Tammy Soileau is an individual residing in Louisiana. Soileau worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soileau has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soileau has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5052. Plaintiff Laninda Sparks is an individual residing in Louisiana. Sparks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sparks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sparks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5053. Plaintiff Anterria Speed is an individual residing in Louisiana. Speed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Speed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Speed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5054. Plaintiff Candice Spencer is an individual residing in Louisiana. Spencer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spencer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spencer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5055. Plaintiff Tasheka Stewart is an individual residing in Louisiana. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5056. Plaintiff Derionne Stewart is an individual residing in Louisiana. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5057. Plaintiff Christopher Stith is an individual residing in Nevada. Stith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5058. Plaintiff Donnie Sturgis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Sturgis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sturgis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sturgis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5059. Plaintiff Mack Sutton is an individual residing in Louisiana. Sutton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sutton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sutton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5060. Plaintiff James Tannehill is an individual residing in Louisiana. Tannehill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tannehill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tannehill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5061. Plaintiff Davie Johnson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Tavarez Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tavarez Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tavarez Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5062. Plaintiff John Tellis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Tellis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tellis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tellis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5063. Plaintiff Christopher Thomas is an individual residing in Louisiana. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5064. Plaintiff Chantel Thomas is an individual residing in Louisiana. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5065. Plaintiff Corey Thomas is an individual residing in Louisiana. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5066. Plaintiff Steve Thomas is an individual residing in Louisiana. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5067. Plaintiff Cornelius Thomas is an individual residing in Louisiana. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5068. Plaintiff Jamie Thomas is an individual residing in Louisiana. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5069. Plaintiff Zikiteran Thomas is an individual residing in Texas. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5070. Plaintiff Willie Thomas is an individual residing in Louisiana. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5071. Plaintiff James Thompson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5072. Plaintiff Raphael Thompson is an individual residing in Mississippi. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5073. Plaintiff Keyanna Thornton is an individual residing in Texas. Thornton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thornton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thornton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5074. Plaintiff Carltonlynn Turner is an individual residing in Louisiana. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5075. Plaintiff Keith Turner is an individual residing in Louisiana. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5076. Plaintiff Latonya Vessel is an individual residing in Louisiana. Vessel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vessel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vessel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5077. Plaintiff Joycelyn Wade is an individual residing in Louisiana. Wade worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wade has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wade has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5078. Plaintiff Clifton Wade is an individual residing in Louisiana. Wade worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wade has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wade has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5079. Plaintiff Raychell Waldon is an individual residing in Louisiana. Waldon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Waldon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Waldon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5080. Plaintiff Carlita Walker is an individual residing in Louisiana. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5081. Plaintiff Ricky Washington is an individual residing in Louisiana. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5082. Plaintiff Erika Washington is an individual residing in Louisiana. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5083. Plaintiff Bianca Washington is an individual residing in Louisiana. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5084. Plaintiff Terry Watson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Watson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5085. Plaintiff Frank Watson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Watson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5086. Plaintiff Lance Wheeler is an individual residing in Louisiana. Wheeler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wheeler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wheeler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5087. Plaintiff Corey Whitaker is an individual residing in Louisiana. Whitaker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whitaker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whitaker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5088. Plaintiff Asia White is an individual residing in Louisiana. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5089. Plaintiff Telisha Edwards is an individual residing in Louisiana. Wilder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5090. Plaintiff Erica Willaims is an individual residing in Louisiana. Willaims worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Willaims has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Willaims has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5091. Plaintiff Pattie Williams is an individual residing in Louisiana. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5092. Plaintiff Darieal Williams is an individual residing in Louisiana. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5093. Plaintiff Walter Williams is an individual residing in Louisiana. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5094. Plaintiff Eric Williams is an individual residing in Louisiana. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5095. Plaintiff Tiquita Williams is an individual residing in Louisiana. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5096. Plaintiff Matthew Williams is an individual residing in Louisiana. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5097. Plaintiff Terrence Willis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Willis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Willis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Willis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5098. Plaintiff Christen Wilmore is an individual residing in Louisiana. Wilmore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilmore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilmore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5099. Plaintiff Ryan Wilson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5100. Plaintiff Hugh Wilson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5101. Plaintiff Carlton Wilson is an individual residing in Louisiana. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5102. Plaintiff Eric Winfield is an individual residing in Louisiana. Winfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Winfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Winfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5103. Plaintiff Tamalia Winfrey is an individual residing in Louisiana. Winfrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Winfrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Winfrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5104. Plaintiff Eric Wise is an individual residing in Texas. Wise worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wise has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wise has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5105. Plaintiff Kaamal Woods is an individual residing in Louisiana. Woods worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woods has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woods has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5106. Plaintiff April Wright is an individual residing in Louisiana. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5107. Plaintiff Demond Wright is an individual residing in Louisiana. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5108. Plaintiff Quantina Wroten is an individual residing in Louisiana. Wroten worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Louisiana from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wroten has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wroten has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5109. Plaintiff David Bell is an individual residing in Maine. Bell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5110. Plaintiff Gerry Billings is an individual residing in Maine. Billings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Billings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Billings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5111. Plaintiff Daryl Bledsoe is an individual residing in Maine. Bledsoe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bledsoe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bledsoe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5112. Plaintiff Jonathan Bonilla is an individual residing in Maine. Bonilla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bonilla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bonilla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5113. Plaintiff Joshua Chambers is an individual residing in Maine. Chambers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chambers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chambers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5114. Plaintiff Dana Delorme is an individual residing in Maine. Delorme worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Delorme has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Delorme has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5115. Plaintiff Joseph Dorais is an individual residing in Maine. Dorais worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dorais has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dorais has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5116. Plaintiff Daniel Dubois is an individual residing in Maine. Dubois worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dubois has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dubois has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5117. Plaintiff Nicholas Fernald is an individual residing in Maine. Fernald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fernald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fernald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5118. Plaintiff Robert Foster is an individual residing in Maine. Foster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5119. Plaintiff William Freeman is an individual residing in Virginia. Freeman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Freeman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Freeman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5120. Plaintiff Miles Gray is an individual residing in Maine. Gray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5121. Plaintiff Charles Hamel is an individual residing in Maine. Hamel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5122. Plaintiff Brian Heffernan is an individual residing in Maine. Heffernan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heffernan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heffernan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5123. Plaintiff Jason Holt is an individual residing in Maine. Holt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5124. Plaintiff Joe Jackson is an individual residing in Florida. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5125. Plaintiff Adrienne Jennings is an individual residing in Maine. Jennings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jennings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jennings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5126. Plaintiff Gerard Jochems is an individual residing in Maine. Jochems worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jochems has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jochems has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5127. Plaintiff Kenneth Ladd is an individual residing in Maine. Ladd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ladd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ladd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5128. Plaintiff Jim Lancot is an individual residing in Maine. Lancot worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lancot has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lancot has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5129. Plaintiff Michael Lheureux is an individual residing in Maine. Lheureux worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lheureux has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lheureux has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5130. Plaintiff Wade Mandeville is an individual residing in Maine. Mandeville worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mandeville has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mandeville has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5131. Plaintiff Austin Mank is an individual residing in Maine. Mank worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mank has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mank has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5132. Plaintiff Dino Marzulla is an individual residing in Maine. Marzulla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marzulla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marzulla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5133. Plaintiff Kary Mayo is an individual residing in Maine. Mayo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mayo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mayo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5134. Plaintiff Patrick Ochieano is an individual residing in California. Ochieano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ochieano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ochieano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5135. Plaintiff Bruce Ouellette is an individual residing in Maine. Ouellette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ouellette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ouellette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5136. Plaintiff Roger Ricker is an individual residing in Maine. Ricker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ricker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ricker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5137. Plaintiff Brandon Scovil is an individual residing in Maine. Scovil worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2009 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scovil has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scovil has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5138. Plaintiff Wayne Scovil is an individual residing in Maine. Scovil worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scovil has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scovil has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5139. Plaintiff Jon Simonds is an individual residing in Maine. Simonds worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simonds has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simonds has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5140. Plaintiff Steven Simpson is an individual residing in Maine. Simpson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simpson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simpson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5141. Plaintiff Jeffrey Small is an individual residing in Florida. Small worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Small has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Small has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5142. Plaintiff Douglas Taylor is an individual residing in South Carolina. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5143. Plaintiff Glenn Theriault is an individual residing in Maine. Theriault worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Theriault has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Theriault has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5144. Plaintiff Richard Tompkins is an individual residing in Maine. Tompkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tompkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tompkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5145. Plaintiff Jared Wheeler is an individual residing in Texas. Wheeler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wheeler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wheeler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5146. Plaintiff Scott Wilson is an individual residing in Maine. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5147. Plaintiff Arthur Wood is an individual residing in Florida. Wood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maine from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5148. Plaintiff Jahkeem Abramson is an individual residing in Maryland. Abramson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abramson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abramson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5149. Plaintiff Juan Abreu is an individual residing in Maryland. Abreu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abreu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abreu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5150. Plaintiff Shayne Adams is an individual residing in Maryland. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5151. Plaintiff Fawn Adams is an individual residing in North Carolina. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5152. Plaintiff Chigozie Akujuobi is an individual residing in Maryland. Akujuobi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Akujuobi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Akujuobi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5153. Plaintiff Marqui Alexander is an individual residing in Maryland. Alexander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Alexander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alexander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5154. Plaintiff Damon Allen is an individual residing in Maryland. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5155. Plaintiff Kairi Alston is an individual residing in Maryland. Alston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5156. Plaintiff John Amihere is an individual residing in Maryland. Amihere worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Amihere has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Amihere has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5157. Plaintiff Taofik Aminu is an individual residing in Maryland. Aminu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aminu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aminu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5158. Plaintiff Felicia Arrington is an individual residing in Maryland. Arrington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arrington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arrington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5159. Plaintiff George Asiedu is an individual residing in Maryland. Asiedu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Asiedu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Asiedu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5160. Plaintiff Roland Attamah is an individual residing in Maryland. Attamah worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Attamah has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Attamah has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5161. Plaintiff Miyah Babb is an individual residing in Maryland. Babb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Babb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Babb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5162. Plaintiff Ramon Baez is an individual residing in Maryland. Baez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5163. Plaintiff Maju Bah is an individual residing in Maryland. Bah worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bah has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bah has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5164. Plaintiff Melvin Ball Jr Jr is an individual residing in Maryland. Ball Jr Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ball Jr Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ball Jr Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5165. Plaintiff Deon Banks is an individual residing in Maryland. Banks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Banks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Banks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5166. Plaintiff Richard Barber is an individual residing in Maryland. Barber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5167. Plaintiff Edward Barlow is an individual residing in Maryland. Barlow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barlow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barlow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5168. Plaintiff Steven Barner is an individual residing in Maryland. Barner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5169. Plaintiff Ciarra Bazemore is an individual residing in Maryland. Bazemore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2013 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bazemore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bazemore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5170. Plaintiff Michael Beauford is an individual residing in Maryland. Beauford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2022 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beauford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beauford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5171. Plaintiff Angel Benitez is an individual residing in Maryland. Benitez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Benitez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Benitez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5172. Plaintiff Darnell Benson-Jackson is an individual residing in Maryland. Benson-Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Benson-Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Benson-Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5173. Plaintiff Russell Berry is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Berry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Berry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Berry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5174. Plaintiff Derrick Best is an individual residing in Maryland. Best worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Best has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Best has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5175. Plaintiff Jawaan Bivins is an individual residing in Maryland. Bivins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2022 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bivins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bivins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5176. Plaintiff James Blue is an individual residing in Maryland. Blue worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blue has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blue has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5177. Plaintiff Cesar Bolanos is an individual residing in Maryland. Bolanos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bolanos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bolanos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5178. Plaintiff Segun Bolufemi is an individual residing in Maryland. Bolufemi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bolufemi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bolufemi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5179. Plaintiff Kyle Bolyard is an individual residing in Maryland. Bolyard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bolyard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bolyard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5180. Plaintiff Frank Bonsu is an individual residing in Maryland. Bonsu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bonsu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bonsu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5181. Plaintiff Larry Boyd Jr. is an individual residing in Maryland. Boyd Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyd Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyd Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5182. Plaintiff Anthony Brandon is an individual residing in Maryland. Brandon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brandon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brandon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5183. Plaintiff Ernst Braun is an individual residing in Maryland. Braun worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Braun has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Braun has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5184. Plaintiff Brandon Braxton is an individual residing in Maryland. Braxton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Braxton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Braxton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5185. Plaintiff James Brice Iii is an individual residing in Maryland. Brice Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brice Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brice Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5186. Plaintiff Stephen Briggs is an individual residing in Virginia. Briggs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Briggs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Briggs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5187. Plaintiff Dionne Brooks is an individual residing in Maryland. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5188. Plaintiff Guy Brooks is an individual residing in Maryland. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5189. Plaintiff George Brooks is an individual residing in Maryland. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5190. Plaintiff Harald Brown is an individual residing in Maryland. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5191. Plaintiff Nicholas Bryant is an individual residing in Georgia. Bryant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bryant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bryant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5192. Plaintiff Shaw Buckner is an individual residing in Maryland. Buckner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buckner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buckner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5193. Plaintiff Edward Budka is an individual residing in Maryland. Budka worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Budka has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Budka has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5194. Plaintiff Marquis Burden is an individual residing in Maryland. Burden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5195. Plaintiff Shade Burrell is an individual residing in Maryland. Burrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5196. Plaintiff Anita Bush is an individual residing in Maryland. Bush worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bush has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bush has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5197. Plaintiff Christopher Butler is an individual residing in Maryland. Butler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Butler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Butler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5198. Plaintiff Justin Caldwell is an individual residing in Maryland. Caldwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caldwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caldwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5199. Plaintiff Elmer Canales is an individual residing in Maryland. Canales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2001 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Canales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Canales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5200. Plaintiff Damien Cannon is an individual residing in Maryland. Cannon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cannon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cannon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5201. Plaintiff Rodney Caslow is an individual residing in Maryland. Caslow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caslow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caslow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5202. Plaintiff Daniel Chappell is an individual residing in Maryland. Chappell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chappell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chappell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5203. Plaintiff Cjett Chavis is an individual residing in Maryland. Chavis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2005 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chavis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chavis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5204. Plaintiff Sheldon Childs is an individual residing in Maryland. Childs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Childs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Childs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5205. Plaintiff Yvonne Clark is an individual residing in Maryland. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5206. Plaintiff Steven Clark is an individual residing in Arizona. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5207. Plaintiff Dalonta Clarke is an individual residing in Maryland. Clarke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clarke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clarke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5208. Plaintiff Chelsey Coates is an individual residing in Maryland. Coates worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coates has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coates has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5209. Plaintiff Margaret Colbert is an individual residing in Maryland. Colbert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Colbert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Colbert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5210. Plaintiff Derek Cole is an individual residing in Maryland. Cole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2004 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5211. Plaintiff Harvey Combest is an individual residing in Florida. Combest worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Combest has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Combest has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5212. Plaintiff Dajuan Concepcion is an individual residing in Maryland. Concepcion worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Concepcion has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Concepcion has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5213. Plaintiff Carl Crump is an individual residing in Maryland. Crump worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crump has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crump has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5214. Plaintiff Richard Cunningham is an individual residing in Maryland. Cunningham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cunningham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cunningham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5215. Plaintiff Mitzi Daniels is an individual residing in Maryland. Daniels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daniels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daniels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5216. Plaintiff Marie Dattilio is an individual residing in Maryland. Dattilio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dattilio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dattilio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5217. Plaintiff Teaira Daughtry is an individual residing in Maryland. Daughtry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daughtry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daughtry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5218. Plaintiff Tayqwon Davis is an individual residing in Maryland. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5219. Plaintiff Tyren Day is an individual residing in Maryland. Day worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Day has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Day has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5220. Plaintiff Philip Delgado is an individual residing in Maryland. Delgado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Delgado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Delgado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5221. Plaintiff Cody Demontagnac is an individual residing in Maryland. Demontagnac worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Demontagnac has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Demontagnac has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5222. Plaintiff Seydou Diallo is an individual residing in Maryland. Diallo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Diallo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Diallo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5223. Plaintiff Clifton Diaz is an individual residing in Maryland. Diaz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Diaz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Diaz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5224. Plaintiff William Diaz Jr. is an individual residing in Maryland. Diaz Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Diaz Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Diaz Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5225. Plaintiff Antoin Dinguall is an individual residing in Florida. Dinguall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dinguall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dinguall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5226. Plaintiff Tiffany Donaldson is an individual residing in Maryland. Donaldson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Donaldson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Donaldson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5227. Plaintiff Cinnamon Dorsey is an individual residing in Maryland. Dorsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dorsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dorsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5228. Plaintiff Aubrey Dorsey is an individual residing in Maryland. Dorsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dorsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dorsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5229. Plaintiff Zachary Earnest is an individual residing in Maryland. Earnest worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Earnest has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Earnest has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5230. Plaintiff Kevin Edwards is an individual residing in Maryland. Edwards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edwards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edwards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5231. Plaintiff Ronald Epps is an individual residing in Maryland. Epps worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Epps has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Epps has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5232. Plaintiff Corey Epps is an individual residing in Maryland. Epps worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Epps has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Epps has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5233. Plaintiff Jermel Escalera is an individual residing in Maryland. Escalera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Escalera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Escalera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5234. Plaintiff John Felder is an individual residing in Maryland. Felder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Felder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Felder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5235. Plaintiff Tyrone Fields is an individual residing in Maryland. Fields worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fields has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fields has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5236. Plaintiff Michael Fletcher is an individual residing in Maryland. Fletcher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fletcher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fletcher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5237. Plaintiff Fidel Fortaleza is an individual residing in Maryland. Fortaleza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fortaleza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fortaleza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5238. Plaintiff Grafton Francis is an individual residing in Maryland. Francis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Francis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Francis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5239. Plaintiff Donte Futrell is an individual residing in Maryland. Futrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Futrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Futrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5240. Plaintiff Dixie Garcia is an individual residing in Maryland. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5241. Plaintiff Bruce Gardner is an individual residing in Maryland. Gardner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gardner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gardner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5242. Plaintiff Franck Gbane is an individual residing in Maryland. Gbane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gbane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gbane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5243. Plaintiff Theodore Geller is an individual residing in Maryland. Geller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Geller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Geller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5244. Plaintiff Maleek George is an individual residing in Maryland. George worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2002 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. George has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because George has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5245. Plaintiff Jamar Gibbs is an individual residing in Maryland. Gibbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2007 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5246. Plaintiff Damon Gibson is an individual residing in Maryland. Gibson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5247. Plaintiff Corey Gill is an individual residing in Maryland. Gill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5248. Plaintiff Darrell Gilliam is an individual residing in Maryland. Gilliam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilliam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilliam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5249. Plaintiff Carlton Gilmore is an individual residing in District of Columbia. Gilmore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilmore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilmore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5250. Plaintiff Ashton Glasgow is an individual residing in Maryland. Glasgow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glasgow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glasgow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5251. Plaintiff Elijah Golphin is an individual residing in Maryland. Golphin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Golphin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Golphin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5252. Plaintiff Adrian Gordy is an individual residing in District of Columbia. Gordy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gordy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gordy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5253. Plaintiff Patrice Grant is an individual residing in Maryland. Grant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2009 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5254. Plaintiff Jerome Gear is an individual residing in Maryland. Gear worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gear has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gear has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5255. Plaintiff Deonte Green is an individual residing in Maryland. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5256. Plaintiff Lauren Gribbin is an individual residing in Maryland. Gribbin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gribbin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gribbin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5257. Plaintiff Robert Hall is an individual residing in Maryland. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5258. Plaintiff Eric Hall is an individual residing in Maryland. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5259. Plaintiff Takiya Hall is an individual residing in Maryland. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5260. Plaintiff Bradley Hamilton is an individual residing in Maryland. Hamilton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamilton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamilton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5261. Plaintiff Tavon Hargis is an individual residing in Maryland. Hargis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hargis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hargis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5262. Plaintiff Walter Harrell is an individual residing in Maryland. Harrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5263. Plaintiff Tiara Harrell is an individual residing in Maryland. Harrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5264. Plaintiff Shannon Harris is an individual residing in Maryland. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5265. Plaintiff Wayne Harris is an individual residing in West Virginia. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5266. Plaintiff Edward Harrison is an individual residing in Maryland. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5267. Plaintiff Markeith Harrod is an individual residing in Maryland. Harrod worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrod has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrod has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5268. Plaintiff Franklin Hart is an individual residing in Maryland. Hart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5269. Plaintiff Darius Harvey is an individual residing in Maryland. Harvey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harvey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harvey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5270. Plaintiff Javonn Henderson is an individual residing in Maryland. Henderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5271. Plaintiff James Henderson Iii is an individual residing in Maryland. Henderson Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henderson Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henderson Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5272. Plaintiff Clayton Higginbotham is an individual residing in Maryland. Higginbotham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Higginbotham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Higginbotham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5273. Plaintiff Jason Hill is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5274. Plaintiff Deonta Hill is an individual residing in Maryland. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5275. Plaintiff Lanita Hines is an individual residing in Maryland. Hines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5276. Plaintiff Ronald Holmes is an individual residing in Maryland. Holmes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holmes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holmes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5277. Plaintiff Nickeela Holston is an individual residing in Maryland. Holston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland and Virginia from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5278. Plaintiff Chanay Hopkins is an individual residing in Maryland. Hopkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hopkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hopkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5279. Plaintiff Creanna Horton is an individual residing in Maryland. Horton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Horton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Horton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5280. Plaintiff Michael Howell is an individual residing in Maryland. Howell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5281. Plaintiff Shai Hughes is an individual residing in Maryland. Hughes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hughes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hughes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5282. Plaintiff John Inshaiwat is an individual residing in Maryland. Inshaiwat worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Inshaiwat has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Inshaiwat has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5283. Plaintiff Darrell Jackson is an individual residing in Maryland. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5284. Plaintiff Wayne Jackson is an individual residing in Maryland. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2004 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5285. Plaintiff Marvin Jackson is an individual residing in Maryland. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5286. Plaintiff Michael Jackson is an individual residing in Maryland. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5287. Plaintiff James Jackson is an individual residing in Maryland. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5288. Plaintiff Carlea James is an individual residing in Maryland. James worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. James has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because James has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5289. Plaintiff Keith James is an individual residing in Maryland. James worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. James has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because James has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5290. Plaintiff Aaron Jennings is an individual residing in Maryland. Jennings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jennings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jennings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5291. Plaintiff Noelle Johnson is an individual residing in Maryland. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5292. Plaintiff Antwane Johnson is an individual residing in Maryland. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5293. Plaintiff Ernest Johnson is an individual residing in Maryland. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2001 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5294. Plaintiff Andrea Johnson is an individual residing in Maryland. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5295. Plaintiff Melva Johnson is an individual residing in Maryland. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5296. Plaintiff Kevin Johnson is an individual residing in Maryland. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5297. Plaintiff Jay Jones is an individual residing in Maryland. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5298. Plaintiff Darrell Jones is an individual residing in Maryland. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5299. Plaintiff Tyrell Jones is an individual residing in Maryland. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5300. Plaintiff Darius Jones is an individual residing in Maryland. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5301. Plaintiff Jerrell Jones is an individual residing in Maryland. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5302. Plaintiff Mario Jonfiah is an individual residing in Maryland. Jonfiah worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jonfiah has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jonfiah has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5303. Plaintiff Kiwan Jordan is an individual residing in Maryland. Jordan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland and Virginia from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jordan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jordan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5304. Plaintiff Anthony Kirkpatrick is an individual residing in Maryland. Kirkpatrick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kirkpatrick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kirkpatrick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5305. Plaintiff Dwayne Knight is an individual residing in Maryland. Knight worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knight has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knight has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5306. Plaintiff Kevin Law is an individual residing in Maryland. Law worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Law has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Law has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5307. Plaintiff Vaughn Leak is an individual residing in Maryland. Leak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5308. Plaintiff Latrod Leonard is an individual residing in Maryland. Leonard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leonard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leonard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5309. Plaintiff Leshae Lilly is an individual residing in Maryland. Lilly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lilly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lilly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5310. Plaintiff Shandell Little is an individual residing in Maryland. Little worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Little has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Little has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5311. Plaintiff George Logan is an individual residing in Maryland. Logan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Logan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Logan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5312. Plaintiff Allan Lule is an individual residing in Maryland. Lule worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lule has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lule has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5313. Plaintiff Kayla Lyles is an individual residing in Maryland. Lyles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5314. Plaintiff Devin Mainor is an individual residing in Maryland. Mainor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mainor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mainor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5315. Plaintiff Peter Mangles is an individual residing in Maryland. Mangles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mangles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mangles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5316. Plaintiff Lucia Marangoni is an individual residing in Maryland. Marangoni worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marangoni has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marangoni has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5317. Plaintiff Laton Marshall is an individual residing in District of Columbia. Marshall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Marshall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marshall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5318. Plaintiff Lionel Marshall is an individual residing in Maryland. Marshall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marshall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marshall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5319. Plaintiff Oniel Martin is an individual residing in Maryland. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5320. Plaintiff Steven Martin is an individual residing in Nevada. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5321. Plaintiff Gary Mason is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mason worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mason has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mason has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5322. Plaintiff Robert Mason is an individual residing in Maryland. Mason worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mason has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mason has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5323. Plaintiff Dekeisha Mathis is an individual residing in Maryland. Mathis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mathis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mathis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5324. Plaintiff Jalil Mcallister is an individual residing in Maryland. Mcallister worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2013 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcallister has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcallister has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5325. Plaintiff Dominic Mccloud is an individual residing in Maryland. Mccloud worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccloud has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccloud has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5326. Plaintiff Dwight Mcclung is an individual residing in Maryland. Mcclung worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcclung has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcclung has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5327. Plaintiff Miriam Mckenzie is an individual residing in Georgia. Mckenzie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland and Georgia from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mckenzie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckenzie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5328. Plaintiff Craig Mclaurin is an individual residing in Maryland. Mclaurin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mclaurin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mclaurin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5329. Plaintiff Davon Mclaurin is an individual residing in Maryland. Mclaurin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mclaurin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McLaurin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5330. Plaintiff Jamaal Mclean is an individual residing in Maryland. Mclean worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mclean has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mclean has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5331. Plaintiff Reginald Mcneill is an individual residing in Maryland. Mcneill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcneill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcneill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5332. Plaintiff Davonte Mcwayne is an individual residing in Maryland. Mcwayne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcwayne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcwayne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5333. Plaintiff John Medley is an individual residing in Maryland. Medley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Medley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Medley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5334. Plaintiff Michael Megginson is an individual residing in Maryland. Megginson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Megginson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Megginson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5335. Plaintiff Angela Mellott is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mellott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mellott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mellott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5336. Plaintiff Gary Metz is an individual residing in Maryland. Metz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2002 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Metz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Metz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5337. Plaintiff Kshawn Mickens is an individual residing in Maryland. Mickens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mickens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mickens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5338. Plaintiff Leon Midgette is an individual residing in Maryland. Midgette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Midgette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Midgette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5339. Plaintiff Jermaine Miles is an individual residing in Maryland. Miles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5340. Plaintiff Teresa Miles is an individual residing in Maryland. Miles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5341. Plaintiff Jovan Miller is an individual residing in Maryland. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5342. Plaintiff Douglas Miller is an individual residing in Maryland. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5343. Plaintiff Donte Miller-Lomax is an individual residing in Maryland. Miller-Lomax worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller-Lomax has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller-Lomax has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5344. Plaintiff Loutricia Mitchell is an individual residing in Maryland. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5345. Plaintiff Ava Montgomery is an individual residing in Maryland. Montgomery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Montgomery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Montgomery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5346. Plaintiff Adam Montgomery is an individual residing in Maryland. Montgomery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Montgomery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Montgomery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5347. Plaintiff Angel Moody is an individual residing in Maryland. Moody worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moody has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moody has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5348. Plaintiff Marcus Moore is an individual residing in Maryland. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5349. Plaintiff Christopher Green is an individual residing in Maryland. Morales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5350. Plaintiff Adam Morgan is an individual residing in Maryland. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5351. Plaintiff Mikail Mosby is an individual residing in Maryland. Mosby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mosby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mosby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5352. Plaintiff Gerrett Mosby is an individual residing in Maryland. Mosby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mosby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mosby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5353. Plaintiff Larry Muir is an individual residing in Maryland. Muir worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2002 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Muir has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Muir has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5354. Plaintiff Richard Murphy is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Murphy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murphy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murphy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5355. Plaintiff John Murphy is an individual residing in New Jersey. Murphy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murphy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murphy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5356. Plaintiff Forest Naylor is an individual residing in Maryland. Naylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Naylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Naylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5357. Plaintiff Damon Nelson is an individual residing in Maryland. Nelson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5358. Plaintiff Gerald Nembhard is an individual residing in Maryland. Nembhard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nembhard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nembhard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5359. Plaintiff Matthew Newman is an individual residing in Maryland. Newman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Newman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Newman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5360. Plaintiff Giovanni Newman Jr is an individual residing in Maryland. Newman Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Newman Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Newman Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5361. Plaintiff Kiah Norris is an individual residing in Maryland. Norris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Norris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Norris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5362. Plaintiff John Odonnell is an individual residing in Maryland. Odonnell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 1999 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Odonnell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Odonnell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5363. Plaintiff Zachary O'Neill is an individual residing in Maryland. O'Neill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. O'Neill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because O'Neill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5364. Plaintiff Chukwuemeka Oraka is an individual residing in Georgia. Oraka worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oraka has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oraka has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5365. Plaintiff Anthony Owens is an individual residing in Maryland. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5366. Plaintiff Dyandre Owens is an individual residing in Maryland. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5367. Plaintiff Stephen Palmbos is an individual residing in Tennessee. Palmbos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palmbos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palmbos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5368. Plaintiff Charles Parker is an individual residing in Maryland. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5369. Plaintiff Michael Parker is an individual residing in Maryland. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2011 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5370. Plaintiff James Patterson is an individual residing in Maryland. Patterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5371. Plaintiff James Payton is an individual residing in Maryland. Payton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Payton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Payton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5372. Plaintiff Reinaldo Perez Jr is an individual residing in West Virginia. Perez Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5373. Plaintiff Sean Phillips is an individual residing in Maryland. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5374. Plaintiff Patrick Pierre is an individual residing in Maryland. Pierre worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pierre has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pierre has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5375. Plaintiff James Pinkney is an individual residing in Maryland. Pinkney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pinkney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pinkney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5376. Plaintiff Charles Pittman is an individual residing in Maryland. Pittman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pittman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pittman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5377. Plaintiff George Pleines is an individual residing in Florida. Pleines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2008 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pleines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pleines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5378. Plaintiff Shean Poole is an individual residing in Maryland. Poole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Poole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Poole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5379. Plaintiff Rodney Pratcher is an individual residing in Maryland. Pratcher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pratcher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pratcher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5380. Plaintiff Anthony Pratt is an individual residing in Maryland. Pratt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pratt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pratt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5381. Plaintiff Dimitri Pratt is an individual residing in Maryland. Pratt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pratt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pratt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5382. Plaintiff Anthony Preston is an individual residing in New York. Preston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Preston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Preston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5383. Plaintiff Jasmine Ragler is an individual residing in Maryland. Ragler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ragler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ragler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5384. Plaintiff Rodolfo Ramos is an individual residing in Maryland. Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 1999 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5385. Plaintiff Zachary Ransom is an individual residing in Maryland. Ransom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ransom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ransom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5386. Plaintiff Carissa Ratcliff is an individual residing in Maryland. Ratcliff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ratcliff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ratcliff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5387. Plaintiff Daniel Reynolds is an individual residing in Delaware. Reynolds worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reynolds has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reynolds has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5388. Plaintiff Jonathan Richardson is an individual residing in Maryland. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5389. Plaintiff Matthew Riggs is an individual residing in Maryland. Riggs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riggs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riggs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5390. Plaintiff Marc Riley is an individual residing in Maryland. Riley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5391. Plaintiff Lasheka Robinson is an individual residing in Maryland. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5392. Plaintiff Dashaun Robinson is an individual residing in Maryland. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5393. Plaintiff Jonathan Robinson is an individual residing in Maryland. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5394. Plaintiff Jose Rodas is an individual residing in Maryland. Rodas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2005 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5395. Plaintiff Rosa Rodas-Menjivar is an individual residing in Maryland. Rodas-Menjivar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodas-Menjivar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodas-Menjivar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5396. Plaintiff Pedro Rodriguez is an individual residing in Maryland. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5397. Plaintiff Jonathan Rudd is an individual residing in Maryland. Rudd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rudd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rudd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5398. Plaintiff Latara Russ is an individual residing in Maryland. Russ worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Russ has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Russ has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5399. Plaintiff Ibrahim Samassekou is an individual residing in Maryland. Samassekou worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Samassekou has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Samassekou has

driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5400. Plaintiff Jabari Sampson is an individual residing in Maryland. Sampson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sampson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sampson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5401. Plaintiff Brian Sanders is an individual residing in Maryland. Sanders worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanders has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanders has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5402. Plaintiff Eduardo Santos is an individual residing in Maryland. Santos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5403. Plaintiff Brandon Saunders is an individual residing in Maryland. Saunders worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saunders has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saunders has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5404. Plaintiff Wade Savage is an individual residing in Maryland. Savage worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Savage has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Savage has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5405. Plaintiff Corey Seeger is an individual residing in Maryland. Seeger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Seeger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Seeger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5406. Plaintiff Marcus Shackelford is an individual residing in Maryland. Shackelford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shackelford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shackelford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5407. Plaintiff Dustin Shadwell is an individual residing in Maryland. Shadwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shadwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shadwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5408. Plaintiff Tenisha Sherman is an individual residing in Maryland. Sherman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sherman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sherman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5409. Plaintiff Hamane Sidy is an individual residing in Maryland. Sidy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sidy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sidy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5410. Plaintiff Tajh Simmons is an individual residing in Virginia. Simmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5411. Plaintiff Kenneth Simms is an individual residing in Maryland. Simms worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simms has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simms has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5412. Plaintiff Jeffrey Simon is an individual residing in Maryland. Simon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5413. Plaintiff Christine Smith is an individual residing in Maryland. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5414. Plaintiff Tejon Smith is an individual residing in Maryland. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5415. Plaintiff Quincy Sparman is an individual residing in Maryland. Sparman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sparman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sparman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5416. Plaintiff Dorothy Stellabotta is an individual residing in Maryland. Stellabotta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Stellabotta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stellabotta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5417. Plaintiff Lucas Stevens is an individual residing in West Virginia. Stevens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5418. Plaintiff Renard Stevens is an individual residing in Maryland. Stevens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 1992 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5419. Plaintiff Hakeem Stewart is an individual residing in Maryland. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5420. Plaintiff Leonard Stine is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Stine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2009 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5421. Plaintiff Lylydia Stokes is an individual residing in Maryland. Stokes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stokes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stokes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5422. Plaintiff Michelle Street is an individual residing in Maryland. Street worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Street has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Street has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5423. Plaintiff Robert Surratt is an individual residing in Maryland. Surratt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Surratt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Surratt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5424. Plaintiff Harold Swett is an individual residing in Maryland. Swett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5425. Plaintiff Kyle Symonette is an individual residing in Maryland. Symonette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Symonette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Symonette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5426. Plaintiff Warrace Teel is an individual residing in Maryland. Teel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Teel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Teel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5427. Plaintiff Claude Theisen is an individual residing in Maryland. Theisen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Theisen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Theisen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5428. Plaintiff Arrington Thomas is an individual residing in Maryland. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5429. Plaintiff Terrance Thomas is an individual residing in Maryland. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5430. Plaintiff Jeffrey Thomas is an individual residing in Maryland. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2005 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5431. Plaintiff Chad Thomas is an individual residing in West Virginia. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland and Virginia from approximately 2001 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5432. Plaintiff Darryl Thomas is an individual residing in Maryland. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5433. Plaintiff Marlon Thompson, Sr. is an individual residing in Maryland. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5434. Plaintiff Jacob Tiller is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Tiller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tiller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tiller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5435. Plaintiff Mark Titus is an individual residing in Maryland. Titus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Titus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Titus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5436. Plaintiff Keaton Trentler is an individual residing in Maryland. Trentler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trentler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trentler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5437. Plaintiff Nicholas Trombley is an individual residing in Maryland. Trombley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trombley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trombley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5438. Plaintiff Kira Tubman is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Tubman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tubman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tubman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5439. Plaintiff Lamarr Tucker is an individual residing in Maryland. Tucker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tucker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tucker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5440. Plaintiff Queenique Tyler is an individual residing in Maryland. Tyler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tyler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tyler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5441. Plaintiff Alex Wagner is an individual residing in Arizona. Wagner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2003 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wagner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wagner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5442. Plaintiff David Wagoner is an individual residing in Maryland. Wagoner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wagoner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wagoner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5443. Plaintiff Daniel Wall is an individual residing in West Virginia. Wall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5444. Plaintiff Raymond Walls is an individual residing in Georgia. Walls worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walls has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walls has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5445. Plaintiff Paula Warren is an individual residing in District of Columbia. Warren worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warren has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warren has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5446. Plaintiff Shehzad Waseem is an individual residing in Maryland. Waseem worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Waseem has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Waseem has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5447. Plaintiff Esceo Webb is an individual residing in Maryland. Webb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5448. Plaintiff Dennis Welch is an individual residing in Maryland. Welch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Welch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Welch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5449. Plaintiff Anthony Wells is an individual residing in Maryland. Wells worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wells has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wells has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5450. Plaintiff Tyrisha White is an individual residing in Maryland. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5451. Plaintiff Monique White is an individual residing in Maryland. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5452. Plaintiff Jessica Whiteside is an individual residing in Maryland. Whiteside worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whiteside has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whiteside has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5453. Plaintiff Joseph Wiggins is an individual residing in Maryland. Wiggins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wiggins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wiggins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5454. Plaintiff Joseph Wilczek is an individual residing in Maryland. Wilczek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilczek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilczek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5455. Plaintiff Jermaine Wilkerson is an individual residing in Maryland. Wilkerson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilkerson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilkerson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5456. Plaintiff Altimont Wilks is an individual residing in Maryland. Wilks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5457. Plaintiff Marco Williams is an individual residing in Maryland. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5458. Plaintiff Leanne Williams is an individual residing in Maryland. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5459. Plaintiff Anthony Williams is an individual residing in Maryland. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5460. Plaintiff Dominique Williams is an individual residing in Maryland. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5461. Plaintiff Amber Williams is an individual residing in Maryland. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5462. Plaintiff Timothy Wilson is an individual residing in Maryland. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5463. Plaintiff Devron Worley is an individual residing in Maryland. Worley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Worley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Worley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5464. Plaintiff Adam Wright is an individual residing in Maryland. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5465. Plaintiff Kerine Young is an individual residing in Maryland. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5466. Plaintiff Jason Zais is an individual residing in Maryland. Zais worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Maryland but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zais has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zais has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5467. Plaintiff Tammy Aaron is an individual residing in Michigan. Aaron worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aaron has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aaron has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5468. Plaintiff Nael Abuhamad is an individual residing in Michigan. Abuhamad worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abuhamad has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abuhamad has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5469. Plaintiff Robert Ainsworth is an individual residing in Michigan. Ainsworth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ainsworth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ainsworth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5470. Plaintiff Jalal Al Jawhari is an individual residing in Michigan. Al Jawhari worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Al Jawhari has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Al Jawhari has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5471. Plaintiff Samuel Aldis is an individual residing in Michigan. Aldis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aldis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aldis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5472. Plaintiff Angela Almeida-Grisdale is an individual residing in Michigan. Almeida-Grisdale worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Almeida-Grisdale has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Almeida-Grisdale has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5473. Plaintiff Ahmed Alsharejy is an individual residing in Michigan. Alsharejy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alsharejy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alsharejy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5474. Plaintiff Joe Anderson is an individual residing in Michigan. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5475. Plaintiff Robert Ankney is an individual residing in Michigan. Ankney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ankney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ankney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5476. Plaintiff Shawn Anthony is an individual residing in Michigan. Anthony worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anthony has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anthony has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5477. Plaintiff Thomas Armetta is an individual residing in Michigan. Armetta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Armetta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armetta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5478. Plaintiff Jody Armstrong is an individual residing in Michigan. Armstrong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Armstrong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armstrong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5479. Plaintiff Anthony Arthmire is an individual residing in Michigan. Arthmire worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arthmire has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arthmire has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5480. Plaintiff Lamont Ayers is an individual residing in Michigan. Ayers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ayers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ayers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5481. Plaintiff Robert Ayotte is an individual residing in Michigan. Ayotte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ayotte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ayotte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5482. Plaintiff Stuart Baker is an individual residing in Michigan. Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5483. Plaintiff Jason Banas is an individual residing in Michigan. Banas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Banas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Banas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5484. Plaintiff Krissie Barnes is an individual residing in Michigan. Barnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5485. Plaintiff Mark Beauchamp is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Beauchamp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beauchamp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beauchamp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5486. Plaintiff Paul Beck is an individual residing in Michigan. Beck worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beck has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beck has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5487. Plaintiff Jeffrey Bennett is an individual residing in Michigan. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5488. Plaintiff Hussien Beydoun is an individual residing in Michigan. Beydoun worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beydoun has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beydoun has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5489. Plaintiff Richard Billin is an individual residing in Michigan. Billin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2003 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Billin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Billin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5490. Plaintiff Deondra Blackmon is an individual residing in Michigan. Blackmon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blackmon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blackmon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5491. Plaintiff Matt Blank is an individual residing in Michigan. Blank worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blank has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blank has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5492. Plaintiff Eric Bleecker is an individual residing in Michigan. Bleecker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bleecker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bleecker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5493. Plaintiff Steven Bottrell is an individual residing in Michigan. Bottrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bottrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bottrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5494. Plaintiff Marcus Bradford is an individual residing in Michigan. Bradford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bradford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bradford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5495. Plaintiff Michael Bradley is an individual residing in Arizona. Bradley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bradley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bradley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5496. Plaintiff David Brocklehurst is an individual residing in Michigan. Brocklehurst worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brocklehurst has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brocklehurst has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5497. Plaintiff Cody Brown is an individual residing in Michigan. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5498. Plaintiff Demario Brown is an individual residing in Michigan. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5499. Plaintiff William Brown is an individual residing in Florida. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5500. Plaintiff Christopher Brown is an individual residing in Michigan. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5501. Plaintiff Michael Brumley is an individual residing in Michigan. Brumley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brumley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brumley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5502. Plaintiff Rayleon Bryson is an individual residing in Michigan. Bryson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bryson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bryson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5503. Plaintiff Costantino Buffa is an individual residing in Michigan. Buffa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buffa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buffa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5504. Plaintiff Trevis Bullock is an individual residing in Michigan. Bullock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bullock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bullock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5505. Plaintiff Roger Burgess is an individual residing in Michigan. Burgess worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burgess has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burgess has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5506. Plaintiff Shawn Burhans is an individual residing in Michigan. Burhans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burhans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burhans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5507. Plaintiff Crystal Bush is an individual residing in Michigan. Bush worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bush has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bush has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5508. Plaintiff Darious Bussell is an individual residing in Michigan. Bussell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bussell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bussell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5509. Plaintiff Daniel Canafax is an individual residing in Alabama. Canafax worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Canafax has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Canafax has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5510. Plaintiff Kyle Carbiener is an individual residing in Michigan. Carbiener worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carbiener has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carbiener has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5511. Plaintiff Douglas Carver Jr. is an individual residing in Michigan. Carver Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carver Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carver Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5512. Plaintiff David Cash is an individual residing in Michigan. Cash worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cash has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cash has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5513. Plaintiff Eric Casper is an individual residing in Michigan. Casper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Casper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Casper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5514. Plaintiff Johnathan Cator is an individual residing in Indiana. Cator worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan and Utah from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cator has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cator has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5515. Plaintiff Jordan Chambers is an individual residing in Michigan. Chambers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chambers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chambers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5516. Plaintiff Bryan Chambliss is an individual residing in Michigan. Chambliss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chambliss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chambliss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5517. Plaintiff Ronald Cifolelli is an individual residing in Michigan. Cifolelli worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cifolelli has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cifolelli has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5518. Plaintiff Gim Cipriano is an individual residing in Michigan. Cipriano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cipriano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cipriano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5519. Plaintiff Marvin Cischke is an individual residing in Michigan. Cischke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cischke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cischke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5520. Plaintiff Jeffrey Clemence is an individual residing in Michigan. Clemence worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clemence has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clemence has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5521. Plaintiff Troy Coley is an individual residing in Michigan. Coley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5522. Plaintiff Jenna Schillman is an individual residing in Michigan. Collins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5523. Plaintiff Marcellus Conner is an individual residing in Michigan. Conner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5524. Plaintiff Kenneth Coombs is an individual residing in Michigan. Coombs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coombs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coombs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5525. Plaintiff Jamel Cooper is an individual residing in Michigan. Cooper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cooper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cooper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5526. Plaintiff Boyd Cottrell Jr is an individual residing in Michigan. Cottrell Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cottrell Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cottrell Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5527. Plaintiff Daniel Coulter is an individual residing in Michigan. Coulter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coulter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coulter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5528. Plaintiff Patricia Coy is an individual residing in Michigan. Coy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5529. Plaintiff Ernest Crawford is an individual residing in Michigan. Crawford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 1900 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crawford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crawford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5530. Plaintiff Kareem Crowley is an individual residing in Michigan. Crowley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crowley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crowley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5531. Plaintiff James Crowther is an individual residing in Michigan. Crowther worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crowther has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crowther has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5532. Plaintiff Wayne Custer is an individual residing in Michigan. Custer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Custer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Custer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5533. Plaintiff Jason Czenkus is an individual residing in Minnesota. Czenkus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Czenkus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Czenkus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5534. Plaintiff Kassem Dabajeh is an individual residing in Michigan. Dabajeh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dabajeh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dabajeh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5535. Plaintiff Deandre Davis is an individual residing in Michigan. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5536. Plaintiff Tiffinee Davis is an individual residing in Michigan. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5537. Plaintiff Dylan Deatsman is an individual residing in Michigan. Deatsman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deatsman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deatsman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5538. Plaintiff John Deeter is an individual residing in Michigan. Deeter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deeter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deeter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5539. Plaintiff Caleb Derosse is an individual residing in Michigan. Derosse worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Derosse has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Derosse has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5540. Plaintiff Derek Dibella is an individual residing in Michigan. Dibella worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dibella has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dibella has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5541. Plaintiff Colton Dickerson is an individual residing in Texas. Dickerson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dickerson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dickerson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5542. Plaintiff Dameicos Dickson is an individual residing in Michigan. Dickson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dickson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dickson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5543. Plaintiff David Diehl, Sr. is an individual residing in Michigan. Diehl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Diehl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Diehl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5544. Plaintiff Fonda Dorsey is an individual residing in Michigan. Dorsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2001 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dorsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dorsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5545. Plaintiff Jacob Draper is an individual residing in Michigan. Draper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Draper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Draper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5546. Plaintiff Molloy Dumas is an individual residing in Michigan. Dumas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dumas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dumas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5547. Plaintiff Taurean Ealy is an individual residing in Michigan. Ealy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ealy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ealy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5548. Plaintiff Christopher Easley is an individual residing in Michigan. Easley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Easley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Easley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5549. Plaintiff James Edwards is an individual residing in Florida. Edwards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edwards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edwards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5550. Plaintiff Frederick Evans is an individual residing in Michigan. Evans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Evans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Evans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5551. Plaintiff Robert Fabian is an individual residing in Michigan. Fabian worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fabian has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fabian has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5552. Plaintiff Kyle Fahler is an individual residing in Michigan. Fahler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fahler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fahler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5553. Plaintiff Anna Fair is an individual residing in Michigan. Fair worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fair has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fair has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5554. Plaintiff Bryce Fairchild- Clark is an individual residing in Michigan. Fairchild- Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fairchild- Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fairchild- Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5555. Plaintiff Patrick Feeney is an individual residing in Michigan. Feeney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Feeney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Feeney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5556. Plaintiff Katherine Fletcher is an individual residing in Michigan. Fletcher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fletcher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fletcher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5557. Plaintiff Benjamin Foreman is an individual residing in Michigan. Foreman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foreman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foreman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5558. Plaintiff Christopher Foster is an individual residing in Michigan. Foster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2006 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5559. Plaintiff Maurice Frank is an individual residing in Michigan. Frank worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frank has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frank has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5560. Plaintiff Curtis Garland is an individual residing in Michigan. Garland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5561. Plaintiff Brandon Garrison is an individual residing in Michigan. Garrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5562. Plaintiff Eric George Jr. is an individual residing in Michigan. George Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. George Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because George Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5563. Plaintiff Shaun Good is an individual residing in Michigan. Good worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Good has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Good has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5564. Plaintiff Alexander Goodson-Childs is an individual residing in Michigan. Goodson-Childs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodson-Childs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodson-Childs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5565. Plaintiff Kyle Grant is an individual residing in Michigan. Grant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5566. Plaintiff John Grawey is an individual residing in Michigan. Grawey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grawey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grawey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5567. Plaintiff Edwin Gromek is an individual residing in Indiana. Gromek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gromek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gromek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5568. Plaintiff Jeffery Guethlein is an individual residing in Michigan. Guethlein worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guethlein has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guethlein has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5569. Plaintiff Aaron Halstead is an individual residing in Michigan. Halstead worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Halstead has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Halstead has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5570. Plaintiff Timothy Hamden is an individual residing in Michigan. Hamden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5571. Plaintiff Charles Hammons is an individual residing in Michigan. Hammons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Hammons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hammons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5572. Plaintiff Corey Hardy is an individual residing in Michigan. Hardy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hardy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hardy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5573. Plaintiff Andre Harris is an individual residing in Michigan. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5574. Plaintiff Prezell Harris is an individual residing in Michigan. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5575. Plaintiff Michael Harrison is an individual residing in Michigan. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5576. Plaintiff Rick Hart is an individual residing in Michigan. Hart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 1986 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5577. Plaintiff Sheren Harvey is an individual residing in Michigan. Harvey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harvey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harvey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5578. Plaintiff Brent Havard is an individual residing in Michigan. Havard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 1996 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Havard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Havard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5579. Plaintiff Mark Havens is an individual residing in Michigan. Havens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Havens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Havens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5580. Plaintiff Adrian Hawkins is an individual residing in Michigan. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5581. Plaintiff Dean Hawkins is an individual residing in Michigan. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5582. Plaintiff Scott Hayes is an individual residing in Michigan. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5583. Plaintiff Tiffanie Head is an individual residing in Michigan. Head worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Head has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Head has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5584. Plaintiff Steven Herrmann is an individual residing in Michigan. Herrmann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herrmann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herrmann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5585. Plaintiff Thomas Heslin Iii is an individual residing in South Carolina. Heslin Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heslin Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heslin Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5586. Plaintiff Robert Holler is an individual residing in Michigan. Holler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5587. Plaintiff Jacklyn Hopper is an individual residing in Louisiana. Hopper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hopper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hopper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5588. Plaintiff Jonathon Horne is an individual residing in Michigan. Horne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Horne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Horne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5589. Plaintiff Ryan Hubbs is an individual residing in Michigan. Hubbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hubbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hubbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5590. Plaintiff Evan Huizar is an individual residing in Michigan. Huizar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huizar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huizar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5591. Plaintiff Art Hulme is an individual residing in Michigan. Hulme worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 1994 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hulme has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hulme has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5592. Plaintiff Ryan Hush is an individual residing in Michigan. Hush worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hush has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hush has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5593. Plaintiff Michael Irvine is an individual residing in Michigan. Irvine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Irvine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Irvine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5594. Plaintiff Chris Isaac is an individual residing in Michigan. Isaac worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Isaac has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Isaac has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5595. Plaintiff David James is an individual residing in Michigan. James worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. James has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because James has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5596. Plaintiff John Jefferson is an individual residing in Michigan. Jefferson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jefferson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jefferson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5597. Plaintiff Gaylon Jefferson is an individual residing in Michigan. Jefferson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jefferson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jefferson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5598. Plaintiff James Jenks is an individual residing in Michigan. Jenks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jenks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jenks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5599. Plaintiff Daniel Jenks is an individual residing in South Carolina. Jenks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jenks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jenks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5600. Plaintiff Paul Johnson is an individual residing in Michigan. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5601. Plaintiff Daniel Jones is an individual residing in Michigan. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5602. Plaintiff Robert Jones is an individual residing in Michigan. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5603. Plaintiff Myamika Jordan is an individual residing in Michigan. Jordan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jordan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jordan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5604. Plaintiff Gerquinn Joshua is an individual residing in Michigan. Joshua worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joshua has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joshua has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5605. Plaintiff Karen Juillerat is an individual residing in North Carolina. Juillerat worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Juillerat has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Juillerat has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5606. Plaintiff Joshua Kandal is an individual residing in Michigan. Kandal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kandal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kandal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5607. Plaintiff Andrew Kapusta is an individual residing in Michigan. Kapusta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kapusta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kapusta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5608. Plaintiff Brian Keating is an individual residing in Michigan. Keating worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keating has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keating has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5609. Plaintiff Christopher Keller is an individual residing in Michigan. Keller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5610. Plaintiff Jawara Kenyatte is an individual residing in Georgia. Kenyatte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kenyatte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kenyatte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5611. Plaintiff Mark Kieffer is an individual residing in Michigan. Kieffer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2002 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kieffer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kieffer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5612. Plaintiff Maurice King is an individual residing in Michigan. King worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. King has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because King has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5613. Plaintiff Timothy Koop is an individual residing in Michigan. Koop worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Koop has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Koop has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5614. Plaintiff Dawn Kowalske is an individual residing in Michigan. Kowalske worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kowalske has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kowalske has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5615. Plaintiff James Kuzma is an individual residing in Michigan. Kuzma worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kuzma has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kuzma has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5616. Plaintiff Darrell Laford is an individual residing in Michigan. Laford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5617. Plaintiff Steven Lalone is an individual residing in Michigan. Lalone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lalone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lalone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5618. Plaintiff Christopher Lamphere is an individual residing in Michigan. Lamphere worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lamphere has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lamphere has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5619. Plaintiff Kenneth Lawless is an individual residing in Michigan. Lawless worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2003 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawless has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawless has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5620. Plaintiff Tina Lawrence is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Lawrence worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawrence has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawrence has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5621. Plaintiff Jason Lewis is an individual residing in Michigan. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2004 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5622. Plaintiff Mark London is an individual residing in Michigan. London worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. London has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because London has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5623. Plaintiff Tate Lovely is an individual residing in Michigan. Lovely worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lovely has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lovely has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5624. Plaintiff Matt Mance is an individual residing in Michigan. Mance worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2002 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mance has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mance has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5625. Plaintiff Michael Mance is an individual residing in Michigan. Mance worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mance has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mance has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5626. Plaintiff Jonathen Mandycz is an individual residing in Arizona. Mandycz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mandycz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mandycz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5627. Plaintiff Anthony Marbury, Sr. is an individual residing in Michigan. Marbury worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marbury has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marbury has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5628. Plaintiff Anthony Martin is an individual residing in Michigan. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5629. Plaintiff Michael Martin is an individual residing in Michigan. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5630. Plaintiff Eric Martin is an individual residing in Michigan. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5631. Plaintiff Corey Mason is an individual residing in Michigan. Mason worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan and Tennessee from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mason has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mason has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5632. Plaintiff Kevin McDonald is an individual residing in Michigan. McDonald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McDonald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McDonald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5633. Plaintiff Terry McDonnell is an individual residing in Michigan. McDonnell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McDonnell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McDonnell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5634. Plaintiff Chad Mcfarlin is an individual residing in Michigan. Mcfarlin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcfarlin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcfarlin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5635. Plaintiff Spenser Mckee is an individual residing in Michigan. Mckee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mckee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5636. Plaintiff Steven Mckenzie is an individual residing in Michigan. Mckenzie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mckenzie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckenzie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5637. Plaintiff David Mclellan is an individual residing in Michigan. Mclellan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mclellan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mclellan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5638. Plaintiff Chad McNabb is an individual residing in Michigan. McNabb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McNabb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McNabb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5639. Plaintiff Chelsea Means is an individual residing in Tennessee. Means worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Means has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Means has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5640. Plaintiff Kenita Merriweather is an individual residing in Michigan. Merriweather worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Merriweather has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Merriweather has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5641. Plaintiff Jay Micou is an individual residing in Michigan. Micou worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Micou has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Micou has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5642. Plaintiff Nathan Bemis is an individual residing in Michigan. Middleton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Middleton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Middleton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5643. Plaintiff Gordon Miles is an individual residing in Michigan. Miles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5644. Plaintiff Nicholas Miller is an individual residing in Michigan. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5645. Plaintiff Christopher Mills is an individual residing in Michigan. Mills worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mills has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mills has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5646. Plaintiff Kyannya Mitchell is an individual residing in Michigan. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5647. Plaintiff Anthony Mitchell is an individual residing in Michigan. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5648. Plaintiff Kevin Moore is an individual residing in Michigan. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5649. Plaintiff Jajuan Moore is an individual residing in Michigan. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5650. Plaintiff Jesse Moore is an individual residing in Michigan. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5651. Plaintiff Roy Moreno is an individual residing in Texas. Moreno worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moreno has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moreno has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5652. Plaintiff Travis Morris is an individual residing in Michigan. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5653. Plaintiff Ray Mosley is an individual residing in Michigan. Mosley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mosley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mosley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5654. Plaintiff Corey Mosley is an individual residing in Michigan. Mosley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mosley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mosley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5655. Plaintiff Timothy Moss is an individual residing in Michigan. Moss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5656. Plaintiff Kelly Mullins is an individual residing in Michigan. Mullins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mullins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mullins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5657. Plaintiff Sean Munson is an individual residing in Michigan. Munson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5658. Plaintiff Shaun Murphy is an individual residing in Michigan. Murphy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murphy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murphy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5659. Plaintiff Chizia Mwila is an individual residing in Michigan. Mwila worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mwila has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mwila has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5660. Plaintiff Marlon Nabors is an individual residing in Michigan. Nabors worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nabors has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nabors has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5661. Plaintiff Mohamad Naura is an individual residing in Michigan. Naura worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Naura has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Naura has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5662. Plaintiff Mark Near is an individual residing in Michigan. Near worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Near has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Near has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5663. Plaintiff Wendy Neuhardt is an individual residing in Michigan. Neuhardt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neuhardt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neuhardt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5664. Plaintiff Patti Olivares is an individual residing in Michigan. Olivares worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olivares has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olivares has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5665. Plaintiff Brandon Otto is an individual residing in Michigan. Otto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Otto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Otto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5666. Plaintiff Adul Owens is an individual residing in Michigan. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5667. Plaintiff Juan Pabon is an individual residing in Michigan. Pabon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pabon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pabon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5668. Plaintiff Corey Padgett is an individual residing in Michigan. Padgett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Padgett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Padgett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5669. Plaintiff Robin Papendik is an individual residing in Michigan. Papendik worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Papendik has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Papendik has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5670. Plaintiff Sheryl Parker is an individual residing in Michigan. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5671. Plaintiff Antonio Passalacqua is an individual residing in Michigan. Passalacqua worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Passalacqua has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Passalacqua has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5672. Plaintiff Harold Peagler is an individual residing in Michigan. Peagler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peagler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peagler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5673. Plaintiff Joseph Perault is an individual residing in Michigan. Perault worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perault has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perault has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5674. Plaintiff Lisa Perry is an individual residing in Michigan. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2009 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5675. Plaintiff Steve Phillips is an individual residing in Michigan. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5676. Plaintiff Brian Phillips is an individual residing in Michigan. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5677. Plaintiff Jeffrey Piasecki is an individual residing in Michigan. Piasecki worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Piasecki has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Piasecki has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5678. Plaintiff Joseph Swanson is an individual residing in Michigan. Pinkerman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pinkerman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pinkerman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5679. Plaintiff Jeremy Poterek is an individual residing in Michigan. Poterek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Poterek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Poterek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5680. Plaintiff David Pray is an individual residing in Tennessee. Pray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5681. Plaintiff Christian Pye is an individual residing in Michigan. Prichard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prichard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prichard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5682. Plaintiff Bradley Pruzzo is an individual residing in Michigan. Pruzzo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pruzzo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pruzzo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5683. Plaintiff Jesse Rae is an individual residing in Michigan. Rae worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rae has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rae has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5684. Plaintiff Duane Mayfield is an individual residing in Michigan. Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5685. Plaintiff James Ray is an individual residing in Michigan. Ray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5686. Plaintiff Eddie Render Jr. is an individual residing in Michigan. Render Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Render Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Render Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5687. Plaintiff Brandon Rider is an individual residing in Michigan. Rider worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rider has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rider has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5688. Plaintiff Joseph Risek is an individual residing in Michigan. Risek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2006 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Risek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Risek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5689. Plaintiff Jonathan Ritzler is an individual residing in Michigan. Ritzler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ritzler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ritzler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5690. Plaintiff Kyle Roark is an individual residing in Michigan. Roark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5691. Plaintiff Ryan Roark is an individual residing in Michigan. Roark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5692. Plaintiff Michele Robinson is an individual residing in Michigan. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5693. Plaintiff William Rodriguez is an individual residing in Michigan. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5694. Plaintiff Aaron Ross is an individual residing in Michigan. Ross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5695. Plaintiff Joseph Sare is an individual residing in Michigan. Sare worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sare has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sare has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5696. Plaintiff Robert Saup is an individual residing in Michigan. Saup worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saup has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saup has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5697. Plaintiff Dennis Sawyer is an individual residing in Michigan. Sawyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2007 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sawyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sawyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5698. Plaintiff Justin Schatzer is an individual residing in Michigan. Schatzer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schatzer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schatzer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5699. Plaintiff Susan Scheid is an individual residing in Michigan. Scheid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scheid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scheid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5700. Plaintiff Peter Scheid is an individual residing in Michigan. Scheid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scheid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scheid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5701. Plaintiff Michael Schinco is an individual residing in Michigan. Schinco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schinco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schinco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5702. Plaintiff Adam Schuster is an individual residing in Michigan. Schuster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schuster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schuster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5703. Plaintiff Larry Schutze is an individual residing in Michigan. Schutze worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schutze has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schutze has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5704. Plaintiff Melanie Sheldon is an individual residing in Michigan. Sheldon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sheldon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sheldon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5705. Plaintiff Gregory Shields is an individual residing in Michigan. Shields worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shields has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shields has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5706. Plaintiff Timothy Shilling is an individual residing in Michigan. Shilling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shilling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shilling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5707. Plaintiff Willie Shorter is an individual residing in Michigan. Shorter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shorter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shorter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5708. Plaintiff Melissa Siegel is an individual residing in Michigan. Siegel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Siegel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Siegel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5709. Plaintiff Ronald Simpson is an individual residing in Michigan. Simpson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simpson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simpson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5710. Plaintiff Johnathon Simpson is an individual residing in Michigan. Simpson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simpson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simpson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5711. Plaintiff Karl Sims is an individual residing in Michigan. Sims worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sims has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sims has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5712. Plaintiff Robert Smagghe is an individual residing in Michigan. Smagghe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smagghe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smagghe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5713. Plaintiff Matthew Smith-Dougherty is an individual residing in Michigan. Smith-Dougherty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith-Dougherty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith-Dougherty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5714. Plaintiff Alec Smythe is an individual residing in Michigan. Smythe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smythe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smythe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5715. Plaintiff Matthew Snarey is an individual residing in Michigan. Snarey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snarey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snarey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5716. Plaintiff Clayton Snider is an individual residing in Michigan. Snider worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snider has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snider has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5717. Plaintiff George Spasovski is an individual residing in Michigan. Spasovski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spasovski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spasovski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5718. Plaintiff Christopher Spreeman is an individual residing in Michigan. Spreeman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spreeman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spreeman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5719. Plaintiff Kathleen Steffens is an individual residing in Michigan. Steffens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steffens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steffens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5720. Plaintiff Nicholas Stephens is an individual residing in Michigan. Stephens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5721. Plaintiff Justin Stephenson is an individual residing in Michigan. Stephenson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephenson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephenson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5722. Plaintiff Charles Stewart is an individual residing in Michigan. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5723. Plaintiff Dwain Stiers is an individual residing in Michigan. Stiers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stiers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stiers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5724. Plaintiff Joe Stiles is an individual residing in Michigan. Stiles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stiles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stiles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5725. Plaintiff Frank Strickland is an individual residing in North Carolina. Strickland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2022 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Strickland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Strickland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5726. Plaintiff Julian Suero is an individual residing in Michigan. Suero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Suero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Suero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5727. Plaintiff Romello Suiter is an individual residing in Michigan. Suiter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Suiter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Suiter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5728. Plaintiff Jason Swart is an individual residing in Michigan. Swart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5729. Plaintiff Simone Talton is an individual residing in Michigan. Talton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan and Georgia from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Talton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Talton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5730. Plaintiff Daniel Tavoularis is an individual residing in Michigan. Tavoularis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tavoularis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tavoularis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5731. Plaintiff Nathaniel Taylor is an individual residing in Michigan. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5732. Plaintiff Jasmine Taylor is an individual residing in Michigan. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5733. Plaintiff Ashlee Thayer is an individual residing in Michigan. Thayer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thayer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thayer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5734. Plaintiff Brandon Thomas is an individual residing in Michigan. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5735. Plaintiff Patrick Thompson is an individual residing in Michigan. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5736. Plaintiff Trevor Timmreck is an individual residing in Michigan. Timmreck worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Timmreck has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Timmreck has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5737. Plaintiff Joshua Tines is an individual residing in Michigan. Tines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5738. Plaintiff Cole Tomlinson is an individual residing in Michigan. Tomlinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tomlinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tomlinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5739. Plaintiff Damarious Triplett is an individual residing in Michigan. Triplett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Triplett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Triplett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5740. Plaintiff Brian Turner is an individual residing in Michigan. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5741. Plaintiff John Umfleet is an individual residing in Michigan. Umfleet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Umfleet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Umfleet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5742. Plaintiff Lucas Valkema is an individual residing in Michigan. Valkema worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Valkema has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Valkema has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5743. Plaintiff David Vann is an individual residing in Michigan. Vann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5744. Plaintiff Kelly Veenstra is an individual residing in Michigan. Veenstra worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Veenstra has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Veenstra has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5745. Plaintiff Christopher Walker is an individual residing in Michigan. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5746. Plaintiff Jason Warner is an individual residing in Michigan. Warner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5747. Plaintiff Joseph Warnock is an individual residing in Michigan. Warnock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warnock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warnock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5748. Plaintiff David Washington is an individual residing in Michigan. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5749. Plaintiff Lawrence Watkins is an individual residing in Michigan. Watkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5750. Plaintiff April Wells is an individual residing in Michigan. Wells worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wells has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wells has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5751. Plaintiff Shayne Wesley is an individual residing in Michigan. Wesley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wesley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wesley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5752. Plaintiff Tyler White is an individual residing in Michigan. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5753. Plaintiff Ricardo White is an individual residing in Michigan. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5754. Plaintiff Steven Whitehead is an individual residing in Michigan. Whitehead worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Whitehead has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whitehead has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5755. Plaintiff Jenifer Wiinamaki-Carver is an individual residing in Michigan.

Wiinamaki-Carver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wiinamaki-Carver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wiinamaki-Carver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5756. Plaintiff Maryeileen Wilkewitz is an individual residing in Michigan. Wilkewitz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilkewitz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilkewitz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5757. Plaintiff Dave Williams is an individual residing in Michigan. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5758. Plaintiff Larry Williams is an individual residing in Michigan. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5759. Plaintiff Jay Williams is an individual residing in Michigan. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5760. Plaintiff Ricci Williams is an individual residing in Michigan. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5761. Plaintiff Mychal Williams is an individual residing in Michigan. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5762. Plaintiff Ray Williamson is an individual residing in Michigan. Williamson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Williamson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williamson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5763. Plaintiff Paul Wilson is an individual residing in Michigan. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5764. Plaintiff Troy Winchel is an individual residing in Michigan. Winchel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Winchel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Winchel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5765. Plaintiff Kevin Wright is an individual residing in Michigan. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5766. Plaintiff Christopher York is an individual residing in Michigan. York worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. York has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because York has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5767. Plaintiff Armando Zamora is an individual residing in Michigan. Zamora worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Michigan from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zamora has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zamora has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5768. Plaintiff Michael Aase is an individual residing in Minnesota. Aase worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aase has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aase has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5769. Plaintiff Amjad Ahmed is an individual residing in Minnesota. Ahmed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ahmed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ahmed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5770. Plaintiff Jose Amador is an individual residing in Minnesota. Amador worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Amador has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Amador has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5771. Plaintiff Josh Anderson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5772. Plaintiff John Armendariz is an individual residing in Minnesota. Armendariz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Armendariz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armendariz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5773. Plaintiff Michael Austin is an individual residing in Minnesota. Austin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2010 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Austin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Austin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5774. Plaintiff Edmond Awaijane is an individual residing in Minnesota. Awaijane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Awaijane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Awaijane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5775. Plaintiff Ryan Bachand is an individual residing in Minnesota. Bachand worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bachand has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bachand has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5776. Plaintiff Mark Barrows is an individual residing in Minnesota. Barrows worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barrows has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barrows has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5777. Plaintiff Jason Blackford is an individual residing in Minnesota. Blackford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blackford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blackford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5778. Plaintiff Ian Boyd is an individual residing in Kentucky. Boyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5779. Plaintiff Anthony Bradley is an individual residing in Minnesota. Bradley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bradley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bradley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5780. Plaintiff Tyler Brockway is an individual residing in Minnesota. Brockway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brockway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brockway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5781. Plaintiff Nuri Brytowski is an individual residing in Minnesota. Brytowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brytowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brytowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5782. Plaintiff Mark Bugni is an individual residing in Minnesota. Bugni worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bugni has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bugni has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5783. Plaintiff Hector Calvo Camacho is an individual residing in Minnesota. Calvo Camacho worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calvo Camacho has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calvo Camacho has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5784. Plaintiff Troy Carlson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Carlson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carlson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carlson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5785. Plaintiff Nathaniel Caza is an individual residing in Minnesota. Caza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5786. Plaintiff Steven Cole is an individual residing in Missouri. Cole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota and Missouri from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5787. Plaintiff Steven Collazo is an individual residing in Minnesota. Collazo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collazo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collazo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5788. Plaintiff Antonio Collodoro is an individual residing in Minnesota. Collodoro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collodoro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collodoro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5789. Plaintiff Jay Cramer is an individual residing in Minnesota. Cramer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cramer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cramer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5790. Plaintiff Tyler Cullen is an individual residing in Minnesota. Cullen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cullen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cullen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5791. Plaintiff John Davis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5792. Plaintiff Dustin Dorr is an individual residing in Minnesota. Dorr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dorr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dorr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5793. Plaintiff Joseph Duevel is an individual residing in Minnesota. Duevel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 1999 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duevel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duevel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5794. Plaintiff Matthias Duevel is an individual residing in Minnesota. Duevel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duevel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duevel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5795. Plaintiff Eben Dundas is an individual residing in Minnesota. Dundas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2002 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dundas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dundas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5796. Plaintiff Fahad Dunkal is an individual residing in Minnesota. Dunkal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dunkal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dunkal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5797. Plaintiff Tamika Dyer is an individual residing in Minnesota. Dyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5798. Plaintiff Luther Ehlenz is an individual residing in Minnesota. Ehlenz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ehlenz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ehlenz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5799. Plaintiff Reda Elsayed is an individual residing in Minnesota. Elsayed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elsayed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elsayed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5800. Plaintiff Matthew Engebos is an individual residing in Minnesota. Engebos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Engebos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Engebos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5801. Plaintiff Tevin Fair is an individual residing in Minnesota. Fair worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fair has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fair has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5802. Plaintiff Rodrigo Fernandez is an individual residing in Minnesota. Fernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Fernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5803. Plaintiff Anthony Frich is an individual residing in Minnesota. Frich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5804. Plaintiff Ali Gibril is an individual residing in Minnesota. Gibril worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibril has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibril has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5805. Plaintiff Justin Golden is an individual residing in Minnesota. Golden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Golden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Golden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5806. Plaintiff John Gonyea is an individual residing in Minnesota. Gonyea worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonyea has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonyea has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5807. Plaintiff Eric Gordon is an individual residing in Minnesota. Gordon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gordon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gordon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5808. Plaintiff Roger Gradine is an individual residing in Minnesota. Gradine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gradine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gradine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5809. Plaintiff Jamie Graning is an individual residing in Minnesota. Graning worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Graning has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Graning has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5810. Plaintiff Brett Guidry is an individual residing in Minnesota. Guidry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guidry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guidry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5811. Plaintiff Andrew Hemmelgarn is an individual residing in Florida. Hemmelgarn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hemmelgarn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hemmelgarn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5812. Plaintiff Dennis Hemminger is an individual residing in Texas. Hemminger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hemminger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hemminger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5813. Plaintiff Erik Hite is an individual residing in Minnesota. Hite worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hite has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hite has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5814. Plaintiff Todd Holmes is an individual residing in Minnesota. Holmes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holmes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holmes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5815. Plaintiff James Houlehan is an individual residing in Minnesota. Houlehan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Houlehan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Houlehan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5816. Plaintiff Kenneth Houser is an individual residing in Minnesota. Houser worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Houser has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Houser has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5817. Plaintiff Joshua Houston is an individual residing in Minnesota. Houston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Houston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Houston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5818. Plaintiff Darris Howard is an individual residing in Minnesota. Howard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5819. Plaintiff Ercan Intepe is an individual residing in Minnesota. Intepe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Intepe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Intepe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5820. Plaintiff Jessie Jacobson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Jacobson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jacobson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jacobson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5821. Plaintiff Benjamin Johnson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5822. Plaintiff Laye Kaba is an individual residing in Minnesota. Kaba worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kaba has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kaba has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5823. Plaintiff Curtis King-Jr is an individual residing in Wisconsin. King-Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota and Wisconsin from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. King-Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because King-Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5824. Plaintiff Andrew Kodet is an individual residing in Minnesota. Kodet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kodet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kodet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5825. Plaintiff Nicholas Koskela is an individual residing in Minnesota. Koskela worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Koskela has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Koskela has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5826. Plaintiff William Krause is an individual residing in Minnesota. Krause worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Krause has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Krause has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5827. Plaintiff Ryan Kuepers is an individual residing in Minnesota. Kuepers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kuepers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kuepers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5828. Plaintiff Jerrett Lampley-Foster is an individual residing in Minnesota. Lampley-Foster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lampley-Foster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lampley-Foster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5829. Plaintiff Christopher Laposky is an individual residing in Minnesota. Laposky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laposky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laposky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5830. Plaintiff Andrew Larson is an individual residing in Colorado. Larson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Larson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Larson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5831. Plaintiff Andrew Leishman is an individual residing in Minnesota. Leishman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leishman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leishman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5832. Plaintiff Margaret Lichy is an individual residing in Minnesota. Lichy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lichy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lichy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5833. Plaintiff Curtis Louks is an individual residing in Minnesota. Louks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Louks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Louks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5834. Plaintiff Walter Lubinski is an individual residing in Minnesota. Lubinski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lubinski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lubinski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5835. Plaintiff Ghetto Lucien is an individual residing in Florida. Lucien worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lucien has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lucien has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5836. Plaintiff Mark Maccallum is an individual residing in Minnesota. Maccallum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2003 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maccallum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maccallum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5837. Plaintiff Patrick Martin is an individual residing in Minnesota. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2005 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5838. Plaintiff Rene Martinez is an individual residing in Minnesota. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5839. Plaintiff Darion Mcdowell is an individual residing in Washington. Mcdowell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcdowell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcdowell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5840. Plaintiff Gerald Mckenna is an individual residing in Minnesota. Mckenna worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mckenna has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckenna has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5841. Plaintiff Jonatan Medina is an individual residing in Minnesota. Medina worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Medina has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Medina has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5842. Plaintiff Daniel Michaud is an individual residing in Minnesota. Michaud worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Michaud has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Michaud has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5843. Plaintiff Rico Miles is an individual residing in Minnesota. Miles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5844. Plaintiff Scott Moore is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5845. Plaintiff Matthew Moua is an individual residing in Minnesota. Moua worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moua has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moua has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5846. Plaintiff Benjamin Neibaur is an individual residing in Minnesota. Neibaur worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neibaur has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neibaur has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5847. Plaintiff Chad Nelson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Nelson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5848. Plaintiff Aaron Nordby is an individual residing in Minnesota. Nordby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nordby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nordby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5849. Plaintiff Apny Omol is an individual residing in Minnesota. Omol worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Omol has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Omol has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5850. Plaintiff James Pavel is an individual residing in Minnesota. Pavel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pavel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pavel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5851. Plaintiff Brek Perry is an individual residing in Minnesota. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5852. Plaintiff Thonglith Phouthavongsay is an individual residing in Minnesota. Phouthavongsay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phouthavongsay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phouthavongsay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5853. Plaintiff Bruce Pierson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Pierson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pierson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pierson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5854. Plaintiff Austin Pollock is an individual residing in Minnesota. Pollock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pollock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pollock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5855. Plaintiff Christopher Powell is an individual residing in Louisiana. Powell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5856. Plaintiff Randy Ramsdell is an individual residing in Minnesota. Ramsdell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2007 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramsdell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramsdell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5857. Plaintiff David Regan is an individual residing in Minnesota. Regan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Regan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Regan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5858. Plaintiff Ferdinand Rieck is an individual residing in Minnesota. Rieck worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rieck has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rieck has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5859. Plaintiff Manuel Riera Velez Jr is an individual residing in Minnesota. Riera Velez Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riera Velez Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riera Velez Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5860. Plaintiff Kent Roth is an individual residing in Minnesota. Roth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5861. Plaintiff Steven Sandtorf is an individual residing in Georgia. Sandtorf worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sandtorf has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sandtorf has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5862. Plaintiff Jamie Sargent is an individual residing in Minnesota. Sargent worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sargent has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sargent has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5863. Plaintiff Travis Scepaniak is an individual residing in Minnesota. Scepaniak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scepaniak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scepaniak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5864. Plaintiff Theodore Schotzko is an individual residing in Minnesota. Schotzko worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schotzko has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schotzko has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5865. Plaintiff Shane Scott is an individual residing in Minnesota. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5866. Plaintiff Paul Sistad is an individual residing in Utah. Sistad worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sistad has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sistad has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5867. Plaintiff Barry Slagter is an individual residing in Minnesota. Slagter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 1996 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Slagter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slagter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5868. Plaintiff Mohamed Soumah is an individual residing in Minnesota. Soumah worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soumah has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soumah has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5869. Plaintiff Donald Stafki is an individual residing in Minnesota. Stafki worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stafki has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stafki has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5870. Plaintiff Shawn Stegner is an individual residing in Minnesota. Stegner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2004 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stegner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stegner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5871. Plaintiff Paul Stewart is an individual residing in Florida. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5872. Plaintiff Mike Stipe is an individual residing in Minnesota. Stipe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stipe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stipe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5873. Plaintiff Brock Stout is an individual residing in Missouri. Stout worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stout has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stout has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5874. Plaintiff Brian Swanson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Swanson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swanson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swanson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5875. Plaintiff Larry Thieman is an individual residing in Minnesota. Thieman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thieman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thieman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5876. Plaintiff Patrick Tierney is an individual residing in Minnesota. Tierney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tierney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tierney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5877. Plaintiff Christopher Tikalsky is an individual residing in Minnesota. Tikalsky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tikalsky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tikalsky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5878. Plaintiff Steven Triebernig is an individual residing in Minnesota. Triebernig worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Triebernig has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Triebernig has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5879. Plaintiff Batsaikhan Usukh is an individual residing in Arizona. Usukh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Usukh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Usukh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5880. Plaintiff Meng Vang is an individual residing in Minnesota. Vang worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vang has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vang has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5881. Plaintiff Tina Varchminn is an individual residing in Minnesota. Varchminn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Varchminn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Varchminn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5882. Plaintiff Alexander Vasko is an individual residing in Minnesota. Vasko worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vasko has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vasko has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5883. Plaintiff Jeffrey Vonasek is an individual residing in Minnesota. Vonasek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vonasek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vonasek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5884. Plaintiff Kerry Ward is an individual residing in Minnesota. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5885. Plaintiff Kyle Werner is an individual residing in Michigan. Werner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Werner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Werner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5886. Plaintiff Derek Wonsmos is an individual residing in Minnesota. Wonsmos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wonsmos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wonsmos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5887. Plaintiff Aaron Wrobel is an individual residing in Minnesota. Wrobel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wrobel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wrobel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5888. Plaintiff Chuefing Xiong is an individual residing in Minnesota. Xiong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Xiong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Xiong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5889. Plaintiff Lia Yang is an individual residing in Minnesota. Yang worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yang has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yang has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5890. Plaintiff Arnold Yang is an individual residing in Minnesota. Yang worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yang has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yang has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5891. Plaintiff Xang Yang is an individual residing in Minnesota. Yang worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yang has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yang has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5892. Plaintiff Arola Yang is an individual residing in Minnesota. Yang worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yang has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yang has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5893. Plaintiff Dzmitryi Zimnitski is an individual residing in Minnesota. Zimnitski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Minnesota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zimnitski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zimnitski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5894. Plaintiff Jamaal Adams is an individual residing in Mississippi. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2007 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5895. Plaintiff Richard Adams is an individual residing in Mississippi. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5896. Plaintiff Raleigh Ainsworth is an individual residing in Mississippi. Ainsworth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Ainsworth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ainsworth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5897. Plaintiff Jimmie Akins is an individual residing in Mississippi. Akins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Akins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Akins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5898. Plaintiff Eric Alford is an individual residing in Mississippi. Alford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5899. Plaintiff Shannita Allen is an individual residing in Mississippi. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2022 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5900. Plaintiff Kourtknie Amillidreem is an individual residing in Mississippi. Amillidreem worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Amillidreem has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Amillidreem has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5901. Plaintiff Sherman Amos is an individual residing in Mississippi. Amos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Amos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Amos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5902. Plaintiff Joseph Arabshahi is an individual residing in Mississippi. Arabshahi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arabshahi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arabshahi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5903. Plaintiff Jasmine Aytch is an individual residing in Mississippi. Aytch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aytch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aytch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5904. Plaintiff Deneice Bailey is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5905. Plaintiff Kevin Baker is an individual residing in Mississippi. Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5906. Plaintiff Kimberlin Balthazar is an individual residing in Mississippi. Balthazar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Balthazar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Balthazar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5907. Plaintiff Jarvis Bardely is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bardely worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bardely has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bardely has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5908. Plaintiff Kendrick King is an individual residing in Mississippi. Barrero Figueredo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barrero Figueredo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barrero Figueredo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5909. Plaintiff Cary Hawkins is an individual residing in Mississippi. Barrero Figueredo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barrero Figueredo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barrero Figueredo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5910. Plaintiff Frederick Barrett is an individual residing in Mississippi. Barrett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barrett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barrett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5911. Plaintiff Kedric Barron is an individual residing in Tennessee. Barron worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barron has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barron has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5912. Plaintiff Tyreaccus Bateaste is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bateaste worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bateaste has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bateaste has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5913. Plaintiff Alexia Bates is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bates worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bates has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bates has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5914. Plaintiff Jaquita Benard is an individual residing in Mississippi. Benard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Benard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Benard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5915. Plaintiff Jason Bendall is an individual residing in Tennessee. Bendall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bendall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bendall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5916. Plaintiff Cedric Bennett is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5917. Plaintiff Evelyn Bethea is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bethea worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bethea has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bethea has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5918. Plaintiff Willie Bishop is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bishop worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bishop has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bishop has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5919. Plaintiff Kristopher Bittle is an individual residing in Arkansas. Bittle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bittle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bittle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5920. Plaintiff Clemmie Bolton is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bolton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bolton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bolton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5921. Plaintiff Irishma Bowie is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bowie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5922. Plaintiff Tino Bowman is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bowman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5923. Plaintiff Antonia Box is an individual residing in Tennessee. Box worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi and Texas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Box has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Box has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5924. Plaintiff Frederick Boyd is an individual residing in Mississippi. Boyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5925. Plaintiff Kevin Boyd is an individual residing in Mississippi. Boyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5926. Plaintiff Cari Brackett is an individual residing in Mississippi. Brackett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brackett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brackett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5927. Plaintiff Gregory Bray is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5928. Plaintiff Kevin Brown is an individual residing in Mississippi. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5929. Plaintiff Kristy Brown is an individual residing in Mississippi. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5930. Plaintiff Victoria Brown is an individual residing in Mississippi. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 1900 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5931. Plaintiff Dvonyotto Brown is an individual residing in Mississippi. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5932. Plaintiff Leonard Brown is an individual residing in Mississippi. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5933. Plaintiff Wendy Buckley is an individual residing in Mississippi. Buckley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buckley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buckley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5934. Plaintiff Mitchell Bullock is an individual residing in Mississippi. Bullock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2005 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bullock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bullock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5935. Plaintiff Matthew Burke is an individual residing in Mississippi. Burke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5936. Plaintiff Ashley Burnett is an individual residing in Mississippi. Burnett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burnett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burnett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5937. Plaintiff Derrick Cain is an individual residing in Mississippi. Cain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5938. Plaintiff Lazarus Caldwell is an individual residing in Mississippi. Caldwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caldwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caldwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5939. Plaintiff Ranier Caldwell is an individual residing in Mississippi. Caldwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caldwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caldwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5940. Plaintiff Darrion Caldwell is an individual residing in Mississippi. Caldwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caldwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caldwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5941. Plaintiff Jeremy Caldwell is an individual residing in Mississippi. Caldwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caldwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caldwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5942. Plaintiff Anthony Caldwell is an individual residing in Mississippi. Caldwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caldwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caldwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5943. Plaintiff Leroy Calvert is an individual residing in Mississippi. Calvert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calvert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calvert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5944. Plaintiff Stephen Carlisle is an individual residing in Tennessee. Carlisle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carlisle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carlisle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5945. Plaintiff Roderick Willingham is an individual residing in Mississippi. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5946. Plaintiff Shameika Carter is an individual residing in Mississippi. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5947. Plaintiff Derrick Chapman is an individual residing in Mississippi. Chapman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chapman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chapman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5948. Plaintiff Tyra Clardy/ Turner is an individual residing in Mississippi. Clardy/ Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clardy/ Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clardy/ Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5949. Plaintiff Cortney Clark is an individual residing in Tennessee. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5950. Plaintiff Carla Clark Mckenzie is an individual residing in Mississippi. Clark Mckenzie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark Mckenzie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark Mckenzie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5951. Plaintiff Paul Clavet is an individual residing in Arkansas. Clavet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clavet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clavet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5952. Plaintiff Joseph Clifton is an individual residing in Alabama. Clifton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clifton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clifton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5953. Plaintiff Ronnie Collins is an individual residing in Mississippi. Collins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5954. Plaintiff Robin Conner is an individual residing in Mississippi. Conner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5955. Plaintiff Shirley Crayton is an individual residing in Mississippi. Crayton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crayton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crayton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5956. Plaintiff Will Crenshaw is an individual residing in Tennessee. Crenshaw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crenshaw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crenshaw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5957. Plaintiff Jennifer Crews is an individual residing in Mississippi. Crews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5958. Plaintiff Sid Davis is an individual residing in Mississippi. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5959. Plaintiff James Dawson is an individual residing in Mississippi. Dawson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dawson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dawson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5960. Plaintiff Tyson Seals is an individual residing in Mississippi. De Leon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. De Leon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because De Leon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5961. Plaintiff Bryan Delong is an individual residing in Mississippi. Delong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Delong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Delong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5962. Plaintiff Joseph Dillard is an individual residing in Mississippi. Dillard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dillard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dillard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5963. Plaintiff Heather Dillon is an individual residing in Mississippi. Dillon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dillon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dillon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5964. Plaintiff Maureen Dupre is an individual residing in Arizona. Dupre worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dupre has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dupre has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5965. Plaintiff Vashaun Dykes is an individual residing in Mississippi. Dykes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dykes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dykes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5966. Plaintiff Joshua Easterling is an individual residing in Mississippi. Easterling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Easterling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Easterling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5967. Plaintiff Antwin Edwards is an individual residing in Mississippi. Edwards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edwards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edwards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5968. Plaintiff Tambria Edwards is an individual residing in Tennessee. Edwards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edwards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edwards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5969. Plaintiff Gary Enis is an individual residing in Mississippi. Enis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Enis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Enis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5970. Plaintiff Avery Evans is an individual residing in Alabama. Evans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Evans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Evans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5971. Plaintiff Wiakila Ferguson is an individual residing in Mississippi. Ferguson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ferguson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ferguson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5972. Plaintiff Anita Fernandez is an individual residing in Mississippi. Fernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5973. Plaintiff J Finley is an individual residing in Mississippi. Finley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Finley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Finley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5974. Plaintiff Tusha Floyd is an individual residing in Mississippi. Floyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Floyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Floyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5975. Plaintiff Michael Flynt is an individual residing in Mississippi. Flynt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flynt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flynt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5976. Plaintiff Robin Ford is an individual residing in Mississippi. Ford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5977. Plaintiff Natasha Foulks is an individual residing in Tennessee. Foulks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foulks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foulks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5978. Plaintiff Jay Freemyer is an individual residing in Mississippi. Freemyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Freemyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Freemyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5979. Plaintiff Helen Gable is an individual residing in Mississippi. Gable worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gable has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gable has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5980. Plaintiff Cary Gaddy is an individual residing in Mississippi. Gaddy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gaddy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gaddy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5981. Plaintiff Lindsey Goolsby is an individual residing in Mississippi. Goolsby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goolsby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goolsby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5982. Plaintiff Alfred Granger III is an individual residing in Mississippi. Granger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Granger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Granger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5983. Plaintiff Justin Gray is an individual residing in Mississippi. Gray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5984. Plaintiff Darrio Green is an individual residing in Mississippi. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5985. Plaintiff M Griffith is an individual residing in Mississippi. Griffith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5986. Plaintiff Allen Guidry is an individual residing in Louisiana. Guidry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guidry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guidry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5987. Plaintiff David Hall is an individual residing in Mississippi. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5988. Plaintiff Kevin Hargrove is an individual residing in Mississippi. Hargrove worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hargrove has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hargrove has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5989. Plaintiff Brondon Harper is an individual residing in Mississippi. Harper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5990. Plaintiff Jerald Harris is an individual residing in Tennessee. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5991. Plaintiff Kenneth Harris is an individual residing in Ohio. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5992. Plaintiff Yakimia Harris is an individual residing in Mississippi. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5993. Plaintiff Devin Hawkins is an individual residing in Mississippi. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5994. Plaintiff Tony Hawthorn is an individual residing in Mississippi. Hawthorn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawthorn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawthorn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5995. Plaintiff Leo Hayslett is an individual residing in Tennessee. Hayslett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayslett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayslett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5996. Plaintiff Roshell Henderson is an individual residing in Mississippi. Henderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5997. Plaintiff Sebrina Henry is an individual residing in Mississippi. Henry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5998. Plaintiff Litisa Hill is an individual residing in Mississippi. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

5999. Plaintiff Joshua Hill is an individual residing in Mississippi. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6000. Plaintiff Kenneth Hill is an individual residing in Mississippi. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 1999 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6001. Plaintiff Nathan Hobson is an individual residing in Texas. Hobson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hobson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hobson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6002. Plaintiff Eric Hodges is an individual residing in Mississippi. Hodges worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hodges has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hodges has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6003. Plaintiff Marcus Homan is an individual residing in Mississippi. Homan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Homan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Homan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6004. Plaintiff Clyde Hood is an individual residing in Florida. Hood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6005. Plaintiff Persephine Hopkins is an individual residing in Mississippi. Hopkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hopkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hopkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6006. Plaintiff Mark Houston is an individual residing in Tennessee. Houston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Houston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Houston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6007. Plaintiff Austin Howell is an individual residing in Mississippi. Howell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6008. Plaintiff Tyrone Jefferson is an individual residing in Mississippi. Jefferson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jefferson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jefferson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6009. Plaintiff Cedrick Johnson is an individual residing in Mississippi. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6010. Plaintiff Lakendrick Jones is an individual residing in Mississippi. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6011. Plaintiff Larry Jones is an individual residing in Mississippi. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6012. Plaintiff Cotasha Jones is an individual residing in Mississippi. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6013. Plaintiff Bobbie Jones is an individual residing in Mississippi. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6014. Plaintiff Lashonda Jordan is an individual residing in Mississippi. Jordan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jordan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jordan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6015. Plaintiff Allen Joynes is an individual residing in Mississippi. Joynes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joynes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joynes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6016. Plaintiff Milton Kendrick is an individual residing in Texas. Kendrick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kendrick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kendrick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6017. Plaintiff Kasey Kennedy is an individual residing in Mississippi. Kennedy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kennedy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kennedy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6018. Plaintiff Erwin Keys is an individual residing in Mississippi. Keys worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keys has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keys has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6019. Plaintiff George Lacey is an individual residing in Mississippi. Lacey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lacey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lacey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6020. Plaintiff Cynthia Lamaster is an individual residing in Tennessee. Lamaster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lamaster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lamaster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6021. Plaintiff James Lawrence is an individual residing in Mississippi. Lawrence worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawrence has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawrence has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6022. Plaintiff Ricky Lee is an individual residing in Mississippi. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6023. Plaintiff Latunja Leflore-Davis is an individual residing in Mississippi. Leflore-Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leflore-Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leflore-Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6024. Plaintiff Linda Lenoir is an individual residing in Mississippi. Lenoir worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lenoir has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lenoir has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6025. Plaintiff Tommy Lester is an individual residing in Mississippi. Lester worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lester has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lester has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6026. Plaintiff Juwana Lewis is an individual residing in Mississippi. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6027. Plaintiff Ernest Logan is an individual residing in Mississippi. Logan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Logan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Logan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6028. Plaintiff Antoine Lomax is an individual residing in Mississippi. Lomax worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lomax has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lomax has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6029. Plaintiff Quintarius Lovett is an individual residing in Texas. Lovett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lovett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lovett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6030. Plaintiff David Lyons is an individual residing in Mississippi. Lyons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6031. Plaintiff Raheem Magee is an individual residing in Mississippi. Magee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Magee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Magee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6032. Plaintiff Stephen Mangum is an individual residing in Mississippi. Mangum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mangum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mangum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6033. Plaintiff Mary Marion is an individual residing in Mississippi. Marion worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marion has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marion has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6034. Plaintiff Cristy Marsalis is an individual residing in Mississippi. Marsalis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marsalis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marsalis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6035. Plaintiff John Martin is an individual residing in Mississippi. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6036. Plaintiff Tanisha Martin is an individual residing in Mississippi. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6037. Plaintiff Kenyatta Mayes is an individual residing in Mississippi. Mayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6038. Plaintiff Norman Mccarty is an individual residing in Mississippi. Mccarty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccarty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccarty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6039. Plaintiff Steven Mcewen is an individual residing in Mississippi. Mcewen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcewen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcewen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6040. Plaintiff Michael McIntosh is an individual residing in Mississippi. McIntosh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McIntosh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McIntosh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6041. Plaintiff Kendrics Mckenzie is an individual residing in Mississippi. Mckenzie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mckenzie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckenzie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6042. Plaintiff Brystan Mckinnis is an individual residing in Mississippi. Mckinnis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mckinnis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckinnis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6043. Plaintiff Sharnice Mclemore is an individual residing in Mississippi. Mclemore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mclemore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mclemore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6044. Plaintiff Edgar Miller is an individual residing in Mississippi. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2003 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6045. Plaintiff Michael Miller is an individual residing in Mississippi. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6046. Plaintiff Adam Miller is an individual residing in Mississippi. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6047. Plaintiff Ricardo McDonald is an individual residing in Mississippi. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6048. Plaintiff Alicia Mitchell is an individual residing in Mississippi. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6049. Plaintiff Donovan Mitchell is an individual residing in Mississippi. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6050. Plaintiff Jesse Morace is an individual residing in Mississippi. Morace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6051. Plaintiff Matthew Morris is an individual residing in Arkansas. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6052. Plaintiff Roger Morris is an individual residing in Mississippi. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6053. Plaintiff Temeka Morris is an individual residing in Mississippi. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6054. Plaintiff Kentwain Mosley is an individual residing in Mississippi. Mosley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mosley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mosley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6055. Plaintiff Leroy Murray is an individual residing in Tennessee. Murray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6056. Plaintiff Valisha Neal is an individual residing in Mississippi. Neal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6057. Plaintiff John Netterville is an individual residing in Mississippi. Netterville worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Netterville has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Netterville has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6058. Plaintiff Samuel Newton is an individual residing in Mississippi. Newton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Newton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Newton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6059. Plaintiff April Ormond is an individual residing in Mississippi. Ormond worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ormond has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ormond has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6060. Plaintiff Darren Orr is an individual residing in Mississippi. Orr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Orr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Orr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6061. Plaintiff Howard Parish is an individual residing in Mississippi. Parish worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parish has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parish has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6062. Plaintiff Matthew Parker is an individual residing in Mississippi. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6063. Plaintiff Roderick Parker is an individual residing in Mississippi. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6064. Plaintiff James Parker is an individual residing in Mississippi. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6065. Plaintiff Shunderrick Parker is an individual residing in Mississippi. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6066. Plaintiff Pacall Parks is an individual residing in Mississippi. Parks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6067. Plaintiff Deanthony Parrott is an individual residing in Mississippi. Parrott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parrott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parrott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6068. Plaintiff James Patterson is an individual residing in Mississippi. Patterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6069. Plaintiff Fredrick Peete is an individual residing in Tennessee. Peete worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi and Tennessee but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peete has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peete has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6070. Plaintiff Maisha Pernell is an individual residing in Tennessee. Pernell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pernell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pernell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6071. Plaintiff Melissa Petty is an individual residing in Mississippi. Petty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Petty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Petty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6072. Plaintiff Joseph Phillips is an individual residing in Mississippi. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6073. Plaintiff Justin Phillips is an individual residing in Mississippi. Phillips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Phillips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Phillips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6074. Plaintiff Douglas Pigford is an individual residing in Mississippi. Pigford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pigford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pigford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6075. Plaintiff Jamario Pippins is an individual residing in Mississippi. Pippins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pippins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pippins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6076. Plaintiff Grant Pisani Jr is an individual residing in Florida. Pisani Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pisani Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pisani Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6077. Plaintiff Sonya Poole is an individual residing in Mississippi. Poole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Poole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Poole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6078. Plaintiff Vierre Porter is an individual residing in Mississippi. Porter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Porter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Porter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6079. Plaintiff Cassandra Powell is an individual residing in Mississippi. Powell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6080. Plaintiff Kenny Pratcher is an individual residing in Mississippi. Pratcher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pratcher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pratcher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6081. Plaintiff Sharay Ransom is an individual residing in Mississippi. Ransom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ransom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ransom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6082. Plaintiff Kiran Rawal is an individual residing in Mississippi. Rawal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rawal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rawal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6083. Plaintiff Juan Reid is an individual residing in Mississippi. Reid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi and Tennessee from approximately 2022 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6084. Plaintiff Benjamin Rhodes is an individual residing in Tennessee. Rhodes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rhodes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rhodes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6085. Plaintiff Lakiesha Rias is an individual residing in Mississippi. Rias worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rias has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rias has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6086. Plaintiff Christopher Rice is an individual residing in Mississippi. Rice worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rice has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rice has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6087. Plaintiff Angela Robinson is an individual residing in Mississippi. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6088. Plaintiff Sharita Rogers is an individual residing in Mississippi. Rogers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rogers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rogers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6089. Plaintiff Craig Ross is an individual residing in Mississippi. Ross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 1961 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6090. Plaintiff Corey Rowell is an individual residing in Mississippi. Rowell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rowell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rowell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6091. Plaintiff Earnest Sanders is an individual residing in Mississippi. Sanders worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanders has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanders has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6092. Plaintiff Marcus Scott is an individual residing in Mississippi. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6093. Plaintiff Marquavious Seals is an individual residing in Mississippi. Seals worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Seals has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Seals has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6094. Plaintiff Lorenzo Shead is an individual residing in Texas. Shead worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2007 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shead has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shead has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6095. Plaintiff Sheryl Shirley is an individual residing in Mississippi. Shirley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shirley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shirley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6096. Plaintiff Jasime Simeona Slougher is an individual residing in Mississippi. Simeona Slougher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simeona Slougher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simeona Slougher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6097. Plaintiff Bobby Sims is an individual residing in Mississippi. Sims worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sims has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sims has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6098. Plaintiff Creighton Sistrunk is an individual residing in Mississippi. Sistrunk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sistrunk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sistrunk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6099. Plaintiff Janice Slaughter is an individual residing in Mississippi. Slaughter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Slaughter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slaughter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6100. Plaintiff Malcolm Slay is an individual residing in Mississippi. Slay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2009 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Slay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6101. Plaintiff Jerome Smith is an individual residing in Mississippi. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6102. Plaintiff Casey Smith is an individual residing in Mississippi. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6103. Plaintiff Rodrick Smith is an individual residing in Mississippi. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6104. Plaintiff Gary Smith is an individual residing in Mississippi. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6105. Plaintiff Lasandra Smith is an individual residing in Mississippi. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6106. Plaintiff Robert Smith is an individual residing in Mississippi. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6107. Plaintiff Priscilla Smith is an individual residing in Mississippi. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6108. Plaintiff Isaac Smith Iii is an individual residing in Mississippi. Smith Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6109. Plaintiff Norberto Solis is an individual residing in Texas. Solis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Solis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Solis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6110. Plaintiff Raneka Felder is an individual residing in Mississippi. Srey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Srey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Srey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6111. Plaintiff Christopher Stevens is an individual residing in Mississippi. Stevens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6112. Plaintiff Ashley Stevens is an individual residing in Mississippi. Stevens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6113. Plaintiff Sierra Stokes is an individual residing in Mississippi. Stokes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stokes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stokes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6114. Plaintiff Rosa Tate is an individual residing in Louisiana. Tate worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tate has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tate has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6115. Plaintiff Yolanda Tate is an individual residing in Mississippi. Tate worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tate has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tate has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6116. Plaintiff Fernandas Taylor is an individual residing in Alabama. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6117. Plaintiff Bruce Taylor is an individual residing in Mississippi. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6118. Plaintiff Jonathan Thigpen is an individual residing in Mississippi. Thigpen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thigpen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thigpen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6119. Plaintiff David Thigpen is an individual residing in Mississippi. Thigpen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thigpen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thigpen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6120. Plaintiff Victor Thomas is an individual residing in Mississippi. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6121. Plaintiff Tarnce Thomas is an individual residing in Illinois. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6122. Plaintiff Derek Thompson is an individual residing in Mississippi. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6123. Plaintiff Parker Thornton is an individual residing in Mississippi. Thornton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thornton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thornton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6124. Plaintiff Eric Tillman is an individual residing in Mississippi. Tillman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tillman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tillman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6125. Plaintiff Tevin Tobias is an individual residing in Louisiana. Tobias worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tobias has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tobias has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6126. Plaintiff Jarvis Townsend is an individual residing in Mississippi. Townsend worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Townsend has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Townsend has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6127. Plaintiff Douglas Triplett is an individual residing in Mississippi. Triplett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Triplett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Triplett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6128. Plaintiff James Triplett is an individual residing in Mississippi. Triplett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Triplett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Triplett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6129. Plaintiff Kevin Tubbs is an individual residing in Tennessee. Tubbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tubbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tubbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6130. Plaintiff Cedrick Vance is an individual residing in Mississippi. Vance worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vance has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vance has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6131. Plaintiff Katrena Varnado is an individual residing in Mississippi. Varnado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Varnado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Varnado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6132. Plaintiff Ternisha Walker is an individual residing in Mississippi. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6133. Plaintiff Jeffory Wallace is an individual residing in Mississippi. Wallace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6134. Plaintiff Lawanda Walton Lane is an individual residing in Mississippi. Walton Lane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walton Lane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walton Lane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6135. Plaintiff Vernise Wansley is an individual residing in Mississippi. Wansley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wansley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wansley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6136. Plaintiff Dequinn Ward is an individual residing in Mississippi. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6137. Plaintiff Benson Warnsley is an individual residing in Mississippi. Warnsley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warnsley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warnsley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6138. Plaintiff Harley Warren is an individual residing in Mississippi. Warren worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warren has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warren has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6139. Plaintiff Alicia Washington is an individual residing in Mississippi. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6140. Plaintiff Jameka Watkins is an individual residing in Mississippi. Watkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6141. Plaintiff Jeremy Watts is an individual residing in Mississippi. Watts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2008 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6142. Plaintiff Terry Watts is an individual residing in Tennessee. Watts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6143. Plaintiff Chandra Weathersby is an individual residing in Mississippi. Weathersby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weathersby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weathersby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6144. Plaintiff Christopher Webb is an individual residing in Mississippi. Webb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2000 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6145. Plaintiff Hilary Wells is an individual residing in Mississippi. Wells worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wells has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wells has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6146. Plaintiff Quincy West is an individual residing in Mississippi. West worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. West has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because West has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6147. Plaintiff Chester White is an individual residing in Mississippi. White worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. White has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because White has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6148. Plaintiff Danny Williams is an individual residing in Mississippi. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6149. Plaintiff Treveon Williams is an individual residing in Mississippi. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6150. Plaintiff Christopher Williams is an individual residing in Mississippi. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6151. Plaintiff Isaiah Williams is an individual residing in Mississippi. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6152. Plaintiff Shandel Williams is an individual residing in Mississippi. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6153. Plaintiff Milton Williams is an individual residing in Mississippi. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6154. Plaintiff Cody Williams is an individual residing in Mississippi. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6155. Plaintiff Lawrence Williams is an individual residing in Mississippi. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6156. Plaintiff Matthew Wilson is an individual residing in Mississippi. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6157. Plaintiff Joseph Winters is an individual residing in Mississippi. Winters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Winters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Winters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6158. Plaintiff Ronald Winters is an individual residing in Mississippi. Winters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Winters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Winters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6159. Plaintiff Iranica Woodruff is an individual residing in Texas. Woodruff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woodruff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woodruff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6160. Plaintiff William Wooten is an individual residing in Mississippi. Wooten worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wooten has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wooten has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6161. Plaintiff Charlie Wren is an individual residing in Mississippi. Wren worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wren has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wren has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6162. Plaintiff Danny Wright is an individual residing in Mississippi. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6163. Plaintiff Robin York is an individual residing in Mississippi. York worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. York has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because York has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6164. Plaintiff Allen Young is an individual residing in Mississippi. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Mississippi from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6165. Plaintiff Joshua Adams is an individual residing in Kentucky. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6166. Plaintiff Fredrick Allen is an individual residing in Missouri. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6167. Plaintiff Lamarion Allen is an individual residing in Missouri. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6168. Plaintiff Jayona Almon is an individual residing in Missouri. Almon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Almon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Almon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6169. Plaintiff Camese Anderson is an individual residing in Missouri. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6170. Plaintiff Derek Anderson is an individual residing in Missouri. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6171. Plaintiff Jerold Arcisz is an individual residing in Missouri. Arcisz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arcisz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arcisz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6172. Plaintiff Brian Arguello is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Arguello worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arguello has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arguello has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6173. Plaintiff Richard Armstrong is an individual residing in Missouri. Armstrong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2011 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Armstrong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armstrong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6174. Plaintiff Kenneth Arthur is an individual residing in Missouri. Arthur worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arthur has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arthur has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6175. Plaintiff John Bangerter is an individual residing in Missouri. Bangerter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bangerter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bangerter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6176. Plaintiff William Banks is an individual residing in Missouri. Banks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Banks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Banks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6177. Plaintiff Ryan Barber is an individual residing in Missouri. Barber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6178. Plaintiff Randall Barbour is an individual residing in Missouri. Barbour worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2001 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barbour has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barbour has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6179. Plaintiff Kerri Barclay is an individual residing in Missouri. Barclay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barclay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barclay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6180. Plaintiff Raphael Bates is an individual residing in Missouri. Bates worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bates has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bates has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6181. Plaintiff David Baty is an individual residing in Missouri. Baty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6182. Plaintiff James Beckett is an individual residing in Missouri. Beckett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 1995 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beckett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beckett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6183. Plaintiff Glenn Beeks is an individual residing in Missouri. Beeks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beeks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beeks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6184. Plaintiff Daniel Bennett is an individual residing in Missouri. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6185. Plaintiff Travis Bennett is an individual residing in Missouri. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6186. Plaintiff Kyle Besaw is an individual residing in Missouri. Besaw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Besaw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Besaw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6187. Plaintiff Jeffery Beullens is an individual residing in Kansas. Beullens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beullens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beullens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6188. Plaintiff John Bigelow is an individual residing in Missouri. Bigelow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bigelow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bigelow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6189. Plaintiff Vincent Binion-Moss is an individual residing in Missouri. Binion-Moss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Binion-Moss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Binion-Moss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6190. Plaintiff Connor Bloss is an individual residing in Missouri. Bloss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bloss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bloss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6191. Plaintiff Mark Bolin is an individual residing in Missouri. Bolin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bolin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bolin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6192. Plaintiff Crissy Boone is an individual residing in Missouri. Boone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6193. Plaintiff Dwaine Boone is an individual residing in Missouri. Boone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6194. Plaintiff Percy Bowman is an individual residing in Missouri. Bowman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6195. Plaintiff Robert Boyce is an individual residing in Missouri. Boyce worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyce has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyce has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6196. Plaintiff Rodrick Branson is an individual residing in Missouri. Branson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Branson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Branson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6197. Plaintiff Leonard Braton is an individual residing in Missouri. Braton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 1998 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Braton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Braton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6198. Plaintiff Jerry Braun is an individual residing in Missouri. Braun worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Braun has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Braun has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6199. Plaintiff Billy Bresee is an individual residing in Missouri. Bresee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bresee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bresee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6200. Plaintiff Rebecca Brooks is an individual residing in Illinois. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri and Illinois from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6201. Plaintiff Gregory Brooks is an individual residing in Illinois. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2009 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6202. Plaintiff Rickie Bryan is an individual residing in Missouri. Bryan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2008 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bryan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bryan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6203. Plaintiff Kyle Burbridge is an individual residing in Missouri. Burbridge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burbridge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burbridge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6204. Plaintiff Joseph Burks is an individual residing in Missouri. Burks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6205. Plaintiff Dajuan Burnett is an individual residing in Missouri. Burnett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burnett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burnett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6206. Plaintiff Patrick Burns Jr is an individual residing in Missouri. Burns Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burns Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burns Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6207. Plaintiff Mitchell Bushnell-Chamness is an individual residing in Illinois. Bushnell-Chamness worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bushnell-Chamness has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bushnell-Chamness has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6208. Plaintiff Pamela Carey is an individual residing in Missouri. Carey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6209. Plaintiff Melissa Carlton is an individual residing in Missouri. Carlton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carlton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carlton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6210. Plaintiff Christopher Carr Ii is an individual residing in Missouri. Carr Ii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carr Ii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carr Ii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6211. Plaintiff Derrell Carruth is an individual residing in Missouri. Carruth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2022 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carruth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carruth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6212. Plaintiff Joshua Carter is an individual residing in Illinois. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6213. Plaintiff Malcolm Chandler is an individual residing in Illinois. Chandler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chandler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chandler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6214. Plaintiff Jason Chastain is an individual residing in Missouri. Chastain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chastain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chastain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6215. Plaintiff Darwin Chatman is an individual residing in Missouri. Chatman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chatman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chatman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6216. Plaintiff Rashad Cohns is an individual residing in Missouri. Cohns worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cohns has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cohns has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6217. Plaintiff Korte Collins is an individual residing in Missouri. Collins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6218. Plaintiff Michael Conrad is an individual residing in Missouri. Conrad worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conrad has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conrad has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6219. Plaintiff Nathan Cook is an individual residing in Missouri. Cook worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cook has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cook has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6220. Plaintiff Caylah Copas is an individual residing in Missouri. Copas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Copas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Copas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6221. Plaintiff Kevin Copeland is an individual residing in Illinois. Copeland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Copeland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Copeland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6222. Plaintiff Mark Copen is an individual residing in Missouri. Copen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Copen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Copen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6223. Plaintiff Ted Cothran is an individual residing in Missouri. Cothran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cothran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cothran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6224. Plaintiff Mark Cox is an individual residing in Missouri. Cox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6225. Plaintiff Kenneth Cox is an individual residing in Texas. Cox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6226. Plaintiff Sarah Craft is an individual residing in Missouri. Craft worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Craft has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Craft has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6227. Plaintiff Rolf Crockett is an individual residing in Missouri. Crockett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crockett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crockett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6228. Plaintiff Brent Cross is an individual residing in Missouri. Cross worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cross has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cross has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6229. Plaintiff Dustin Cruse is an individual residing in Missouri. Cruse worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cruse has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cruse has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6230. Plaintiff Ethelind Cyprian is an individual residing in Louisiana. Cyprian worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cyprian has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cyprian has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6231. Plaintiff Michael Davis is an individual residing in Missouri. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6232. Plaintiff Dennis Davis is an individual residing in Missouri. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6233. Plaintiff Andrew Davison is an individual residing in Missouri. Davison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6234. Plaintiff Jason Deweese is an individual residing in Missouri. Deweese worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deweese has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deweese has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6235. Plaintiff Thomas Diers is an individual residing in Missouri. Diers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Diers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Diers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6236. Plaintiff Dan Donahue is an individual residing in Missouri. Donahue worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Donahue has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Donahue has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6237. Plaintiff Gary Douglas is an individual residing in Missouri. Douglas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Douglas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Douglas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6238. Plaintiff Nathan Downes is an individual residing in Missouri. Downes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Downes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Downes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6239. Plaintiff James Duncan is an individual residing in Missouri. Duncan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duncan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duncan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6240. Plaintiff Latisha Earl is an individual residing in Missouri. Earl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2005 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Earl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Earl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6241. Plaintiff Roger Eggleston is an individual residing in Missouri. Eggleston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eggleston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eggleston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6242. Plaintiff Jon Elfrink is an individual residing in Missouri. Elfrink worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elfrink has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elfrink has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6243. Plaintiff Larry Emory is an individual residing in Missouri. Emory worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Emory has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Emory has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6244. Plaintiff Gregory Ennis is an individual residing in Missouri. Ennis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ennis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ennis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6245. Plaintiff Justin Eslinger is an individual residing in Missouri. Eslinger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eslinger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eslinger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6246. Plaintiff Heath Estes is an individual residing in Missouri. Estes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Estes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Estes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6247. Plaintiff Chasity Estes is an individual residing in Missouri. Estes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Estes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Estes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6248. Plaintiff Kenneth Ford is an individual residing in Missouri. Ford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6249. Plaintiff Trinetta Franks is an individual residing in Missouri. Franks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Franks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Franks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6250. Plaintiff Sean Frye is an individual residing in Missouri. Frye worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frye has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frye has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6251. Plaintiff Lemeshay Furlow is an individual residing in Missouri. Furlow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Furlow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Furlow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6252. Plaintiff Andy Gaume is an individual residing in Missouri. Gaume worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gaume has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gaume has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6253. Plaintiff Aric Gazaway is an individual residing in Missouri. Gazaway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gazaway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gazaway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6254. Plaintiff Brandon Gibbs is an individual residing in Virginia. Gibbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6255. Plaintiff Gary Gieselman is an individual residing in Missouri. Gieselman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gieselman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gieselman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6256. Plaintiff Juliana Gilloti is an individual residing in Missouri. Gilloti worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilloti has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilloti has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6257. Plaintiff Royce Gilyard is an individual residing in Missouri. Gilyard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2003 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilyard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilyard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6258. Plaintiff Paul Gmoser is an individual residing in Missouri. Gmoser worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gmoser has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gmoser has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6259. Plaintiff Alana Goodman is an individual residing in Missouri. Goodman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6260. Plaintiff Kyle Goodno is an individual residing in Missouri. Goodno worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodno has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodno has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6261. Plaintiff Joshua Gould is an individual residing in Illinois. Gould worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gould has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gould has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6262. Plaintiff Randy Grady is an individual residing in Missouri. Grady worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grady has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grady has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6263. Plaintiff Brandon Graham is an individual residing in Missouri. Graham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Graham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Graham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6264. Plaintiff Cheretta Grayer is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Grayer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grayer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grayer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6265. Plaintiff Ronald Green is an individual residing in Missouri. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6266. Plaintiff George Green is an individual residing in Missouri. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6267. Plaintiff Richard Griffes is an individual residing in Missouri. Griffes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2022 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griffes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griffes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6268. Plaintiff Preston Hale is an individual residing in Missouri. Hale worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hale has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hale has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6269. Plaintiff William Hall is an individual residing in Missouri. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6270. Plaintiff Crystal Harris is an individual residing in Missouri. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6271. Plaintiff Darryl Harris is an individual residing in Missouri. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6272. Plaintiff Nicholas Harrison is an individual residing in Missouri. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6273. Plaintiff Walter Harrison is an individual residing in Missouri. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6274. Plaintiff Cody Harter is an individual residing in Missouri. Harter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6275. Plaintiff Floyd Harvill is an individual residing in Missouri. Harvill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2009 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harvill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harvill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6276. Plaintiff Danny Hays is an individual residing in Missouri. Hays worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hays has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hays has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6277. Plaintiff Peter Hazelton is an individual residing in Missouri. Hazelton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hazelton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hazelton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6278. Plaintiff Roger Heart is an individual residing in Missouri. Heart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6279. Plaintiff Thomas Hicks is an individual residing in Missouri. Hicks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hicks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hicks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6280. Plaintiff Ali Hill is an individual residing in Missouri. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6281. Plaintiff Sylvester Hill is an individual residing in Missouri. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6282. Plaintiff Michael Hilzer is an individual residing in Missouri. Hilzer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hilzer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hilzer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6283. Plaintiff Thomas Holley is an individual residing in Missouri. Holley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6284. Plaintiff William Holley is an individual residing in Missouri. Holley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6285. Plaintiff Trevion Holmes is an individual residing in Missouri. Holmes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holmes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holmes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6286. Plaintiff James Holt is an individual residing in Missouri. Holt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6287. Plaintiff Brian Hubbard is an individual residing in Missouri. Hubbard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hubbard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hubbard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6288. Plaintiff Jerome Hudson is an individual residing in Missouri. Hudson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hudson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hudson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6289. Plaintiff Deserata Hughes-Harlan is an individual residing in Missouri. Hughes-Harlan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hughes-Harlan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hughes-Harlan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6290. Plaintiff Keith Humphrey is an individual residing in Missouri. Humphrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Humphrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Humphrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6291. Plaintiff Christopher Jackson is an individual residing in Missouri. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri and Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6292. Plaintiff Michael Jackson is an individual residing in Missouri. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6293. Plaintiff Charles Jackson Iii is an individual residing in Missouri. Jackson Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6294. Plaintiff Errol Jefferson is an individual residing in Nevada. Jefferson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jefferson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jefferson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6295. Plaintiff Quincy Jenkins is an individual residing in Arkansas. Jenkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jenkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jenkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6296. Plaintiff Karl Johnson is an individual residing in Missouri. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6297. Plaintiff John Johnson is an individual residing in Missouri. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6298. Plaintiff Demetrius Johnson is an individual residing in Texas. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6299. Plaintiff Aaron Johnson is an individual residing in Missouri. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6300. Plaintiff Jasmine Johnson is an individual residing in Missouri. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6301. Plaintiff Ernest Jones is an individual residing in Kansas. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6302. Plaintiff Ashton Kell is an individual residing in Missouri. Kell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6303. Plaintiff James Kelly is an individual residing in Missouri. Kelly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6304. Plaintiff Justin Keys is an individual residing in Missouri. Keys worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Keys has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Keys has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6305. Plaintiff Michael Kremper is an individual residing in Missouri. Kremper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kremper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kremper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6306. Plaintiff Josh Krone is an individual residing in Missouri. Krone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Krone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Krone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6307. Plaintiff David Kuelker is an individual residing in Missouri. Kuelker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kuelker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kuelker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6308. Plaintiff Jason Laffler is an individual residing in Missouri. Laffler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laffler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laffler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6309. Plaintiff Kenneth Lambert is an individual residing in Missouri. Lambert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lambert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lambert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6310. Plaintiff John Legano is an individual residing in Missouri. Legano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Legano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Legano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6311. Plaintiff Adrian Levy is an individual residing in Missouri. Levy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Levy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Levy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6312. Plaintiff Andrew Lewis is an individual residing in Missouri. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6313. Plaintiff Linda Little is an individual residing in Missouri. Little worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri and Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Little has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Little has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6314. Plaintiff Jason Long is an individual residing in Missouri. Long worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Long has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Long has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6315. Plaintiff Bridget Lovera is an individual residing in Texas. Lovera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri and Texas from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lovera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lovera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6316. Plaintiff Dustin Lowe is an individual residing in Missouri. Lowe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lowe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lowe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6317. Plaintiff Desmond Mabry is an individual residing in Missouri. Mabry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mabry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mabry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6318. Plaintiff Timothy Macnaughton is an individual residing in Colorado. Macnaughton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Macnaughton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Macnaughton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6319. Plaintiff Robert Manuel Iii is an individual residing in Missouri. Manuel Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Manuel Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Manuel Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6320. Plaintiff Ryan March is an individual residing in Missouri. March worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2023 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. March has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because March has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6321. Plaintiff Charles Matthews Jr. is an individual residing in Missouri. Matthews Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matthews Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matthews Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6322. Plaintiff Brett Matzenbacher is an individual residing in Missouri. Matzenbacher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2002 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matzenbacher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matzenbacher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6323. Plaintiff Fidel Maxwell is an individual residing in Missouri. Maxwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maxwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maxwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6324. Plaintiff Lauren May is an individual residing in Missouri. May worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. May has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because May has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6325. Plaintiff Dena Mccarty is an individual residing in Missouri. Mccarty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccarty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccarty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6326. Plaintiff Cody Mccaslin is an individual residing in Missouri. Mccaslin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccaslin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccaslin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6327. Plaintiff James Mcdaniel is an individual residing in Missouri. Mcdaniel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcdaniel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcdaniel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6328. Plaintiff Bryanna Mcdaniel-Bockes is an individual residing in Kansas. Mcdaniel-Bockes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri and Kansas but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcdaniel-Bockes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcdaniel-Bockes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6329. Plaintiff Gerald Mcdonald is an individual residing in Illinois. Mcdonald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcdonald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcdonald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6330. Plaintiff Joseph Mckittrick is an individual residing in Missouri. Mckittrick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mckittrick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckittrick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6331. Plaintiff Abrahan Medina is an individual residing in Missouri. Medina worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Medina has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Medina has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6332. Plaintiff Darius Meeks is an individual residing in Texas. Meeks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meeks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meeks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6333. Plaintiff James Mester is an individual residing in Missouri. Mester worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mester has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mester has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6334. Plaintiff Matthew Meyers is an individual residing in Missouri. Meyers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meyers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meyers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6335. Plaintiff Nick Tedrick is an individual residing in Illinois. Middleton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Middleton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Middleton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6336. Plaintiff Christopher Miller is an individual residing in Missouri. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6337. Plaintiff Jamison Miller-Hagler is an individual residing in Missouri. Miller-Hagler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller-Hagler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller-Hagler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6338. Plaintiff Travis Milsap is an individual residing in Missouri. Milsap worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Milsap has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Milsap has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6339. Plaintiff Jordan Mitchell is an individual residing in Missouri. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6340. Plaintiff Jeremy Moore is an individual residing in Missouri. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6341. Plaintiff Lakedra Moore is an individual residing in Missouri. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6342. Plaintiff Robert Moore is an individual residing in Missouri. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6343. Plaintiff Reginald Moore is an individual residing in Missouri. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6344. Plaintiff Dawn Moore is an individual residing in Missouri. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6345. Plaintiff Brian Morgan is an individual residing in Missouri. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6346. Plaintiff Brian Naber is an individual residing in Missouri. Naber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Naber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Naber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6347. Plaintiff Richard Nano is an individual residing in Florida. Nano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6348. Plaintiff Cornell Nichols is an individual residing in Missouri. Nichols worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nichols has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nichols has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6349. Plaintiff Pamela Norman is an individual residing in Missouri. Norman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Norman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Norman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6350. Plaintiff David Norman is an individual residing in Missouri. Norman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Norman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Norman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6351. Plaintiff Rhett Norris is an individual residing in Missouri. Norris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Norris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Norris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6352. Plaintiff Kevin Novak is an individual residing in Missouri. Novak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2001 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Novak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Novak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6353. Plaintiff Ryan Nunes is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Nunes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nunes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nunes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6354. Plaintiff Deborah Oates is an individual residing in Missouri. Oates worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oates has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oates has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6355. Plaintiff Daimen Owens is an individual residing in Missouri. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6356. Plaintiff Antonio Parott is an individual residing in Missouri. Parott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6357. Plaintiff Christian Pegues is an individual residing in Missouri. Pegues worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pegues has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pegues has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6358. Plaintiff Michael Perkins is an individual residing in Missouri. Perkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6359. Plaintiff Daniel Perricone is an individual residing in Kansas. Perricone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perricone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perricone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6360. Plaintiff Jabar Perry is an individual residing in Missouri. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6361. Plaintiff Shane Petty is an individual residing in Missouri. Petty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Petty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Petty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6362. Plaintiff Stephen Piening is an individual residing in Missouri. Piening worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Piening has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Piening has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6363. Plaintiff James Pierce is an individual residing in Missouri. Pierce worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pierce has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pierce has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6364. Plaintiff Billy Porter is an individual residing in Missouri. Porter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Porter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Porter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6365. Plaintiff Jimmy Randle is an individual residing in Missouri. Randle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2022 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Randle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Randle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6366. Plaintiff Paul Reaves is an individual residing in Missouri. Reaves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reaves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reaves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6367. Plaintiff Adam Reese is an individual residing in Missouri. Reese worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reese has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reese has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6368. Plaintiff Kevin Reeves is an individual residing in Missouri. Reeves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reeves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reeves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6369. Plaintiff Roger Renfro is an individual residing in Missouri. Renfro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Renfro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Renfro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6370. Plaintiff Matthew Richards is an individual residing in Indiana. Richards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6371. Plaintiff Clint Riley is an individual residing in Missouri. Riley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6372. Plaintiff Eugene Ritz is an individual residing in Missouri. Ritz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ritz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ritz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6373. Plaintiff Shannon Robertson is an individual residing in Missouri. Robertson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robertson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robertson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6374. Plaintiff Michael Robinson is an individual residing in Missouri. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6375. Plaintiff Robert Robinson is an individual residing in Missouri. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6376. Plaintiff Phillip Roybal is an individual residing in Missouri. Roybal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roybal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roybal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6377. Plaintiff Brandon Rudisill is an individual residing in Missouri. Rudisill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rudisill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rudisill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6378. Plaintiff Randol Russell is an individual residing in Missouri. Russell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Russell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Russell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6379. Plaintiff Roger Scott is an individual residing in Missouri. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6380. Plaintiff Gervon Scott is an individual residing in Missouri. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6381. Plaintiff Kevin Sebourn is an individual residing in Missouri. Sebourn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sebourn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sebourn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6382. Plaintiff David Sharon is an individual residing in Missouri. Sharon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sharon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sharon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6383. Plaintiff Aaron Sheahan is an individual residing in Illinois. Sheahan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sheahan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sheahan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6384. Plaintiff Lakeisha Sherman is an individual residing in Missouri. Sherman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sherman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sherman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6385. Plaintiff Gregory Sherry Ii is an individual residing in Missouri. Sherry Ii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sherry Ii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sherry Ii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6386. Plaintiff Keaton Siebenaler is an individual residing in Missouri. Siebenaler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Siebenaler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Siebenaler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6387. Plaintiff Lavell Simington is an individual residing in Missouri. Simington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6388. Plaintiff Kyle Simmons is an individual residing in Missouri. Simmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6389. Plaintiff Thomas Skundrich is an individual residing in Illinois. Skundrich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2004 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Skundrich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Skundrich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6390. Plaintiff Shawn Slaton is an individual residing in Illinois. Slaton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Slaton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Slaton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6391. Plaintiff Ian Smith is an individual residing in Missouri. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6392. Plaintiff Sabrina Smith is an individual residing in Missouri. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6393. Plaintiff Kelly Smith is an individual residing in Missouri. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6394. Plaintiff Roddrick Smith is an individual residing in Mississippi. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6395. Plaintiff Clarissa Smith is an individual residing in Missouri. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6396. Plaintiff Eric Smith Ii Ii is an individual residing in Missouri. Smith Ii Ii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith Ii Ii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith Ii Ii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6397. Plaintiff Jeremy Starkey is an individual residing in Missouri. Starkey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Starkey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Starkey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6398. Plaintiff Christopher Stephens is an individual residing in Missouri. Stephens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6399. Plaintiff Pierre Steward is an individual residing in Missouri. Steward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Steward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Steward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6400. Plaintiff Caneka Stewart is an individual residing in Missouri. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6401. Plaintiff Carmen Straughn is an individual residing in Iowa. Straughn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Straughn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Straughn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6402. Plaintiff Casey Striblin is an individual residing in Missouri. Striblin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Striblin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Striblin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6403. Plaintiff Kevin Strong is an individual residing in Missouri. Strong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Strong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Strong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6404. Plaintiff Stephen Sturm is an individual residing in Missouri. Sturm worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri and Illinois but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sturm has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sturm has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6405. Plaintiff Daniel Summers is an individual residing in Missouri. Summers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Summers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Summers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6406. Plaintiff Brandon Suttles is an individual residing in Missouri. Suttles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Suttles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Suttles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6407. Plaintiff Dustin Sykes is an individual residing in Missouri. Sykes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sykes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sykes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6408. Plaintiff Kyra Tapp is an individual residing in Missouri. Tapp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tapp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tapp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6409. Plaintiff Krista Tarwaters is an individual residing in Missouri. Tarwaters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tarwaters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tarwaters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6410. Plaintiff Lewis Taylor is an individual residing in Florida. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6411. Plaintiff Larry Taylor is an individual residing in Missouri. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6412. Plaintiff Raymond Taylor is an individual residing in Missouri. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6413. Plaintiff Joey Taylor is an individual residing in Missouri. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6414. Plaintiff Steven Terrell is an individual residing in Missouri. Terrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri and Kansas from approximately 2004 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Terrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Terrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6415. Plaintiff Matthew Thiry is an individual residing in Missouri. Thiry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thiry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thiry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6416. Plaintiff James Thomas is an individual residing in Missouri. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6417. Plaintiff Alicia Thomas is an individual residing in Missouri. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6418. Plaintiff Ronald Thomas is an individual residing in Missouri. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6419. Plaintiff Elgin Thrower is an individual residing in Missouri. Thrower worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thrower has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thrower has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6420. Plaintiff Ronald Tillmon is an individual residing in Missouri. Tillmon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tillmon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tillmon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6421. Plaintiff David Tindall is an individual residing in Missouri. Tindall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tindall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tindall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6422. Plaintiff Nathan Trussoni is an individual residing in Missouri. Trussoni worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trussoni has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trussoni has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6423. Plaintiff Alicia Trustee is an individual residing in Missouri. Trustee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trustee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trustee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6424. Plaintiff Sheila Tubbs is an individual residing in Missouri. Tubbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tubbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tubbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6425. Plaintiff Reif Tucker is an individual residing in Arkansas. Tucker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tucker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tucker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6426. Plaintiff Brian Ussery is an individual residing in Missouri. Ussery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ussery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ussery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6427. Plaintiff Evan Van Ostran is an individual residing in Missouri. Van Ostran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Van Ostran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Van Ostran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6428. Plaintiff William Veit is an individual residing in Missouri. Veit worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Veit has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Veit has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6429. Plaintiff Robert Vines is an individual residing in Missouri. Vines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6430. Plaintiff Shane Vladeff is an individual residing in Missouri. Vladeff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vladeff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vladeff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6431. Plaintiff Ryan Wagener is an individual residing in Missouri. Wagener worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wagener has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wagener has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6432. Plaintiff Brett Wallen is an individual residing in Missouri. Wallen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6433. Plaintiff Lamont Ward is an individual residing in Kansas. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6434. Plaintiff Timothy Ward is an individual residing in Missouri. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6435. Plaintiff Marcel Washington is an individual residing in Missouri. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6436. Plaintiff Donovan Watson is an individual residing in Missouri. Watson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6437. Plaintiff Dakota Welburn is an individual residing in Texas. Welburn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Welburn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Welburn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6438. Plaintiff Orlando Westbrook is an individual residing in Missouri. Westbrook worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Westbrook has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Westbrook has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6439. Plaintiff Jason Whittingham is an individual residing in Missouri. Whittingham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Whittingham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Whittingham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6440. Plaintiff Michael Wientge is an individual residing in Missouri. Wientge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wientge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wientge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6441. Plaintiff Leo Williams is an individual residing in Florida. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6442. Plaintiff Dawnielle Williamson is an individual residing in Missouri. Williamson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williamson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williamson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6443. Plaintiff George Willis is an individual residing in Missouri. Willis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Willis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Willis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6444. Plaintiff Lamont Wilson is an individual residing in Missouri. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6445. Plaintiff Walter Wilson is an individual residing in Missouri. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6446. Plaintiff Joshua Wilson is an individual residing in Missouri. Wilson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6447. Plaintiff Scott Woods is an individual residing in Missouri. Woods worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woods has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woods has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6448. Plaintiff Zackary Yoakum is an individual residing in Missouri. Yoakum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yoakum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yoakum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6449. Plaintiff Joe York is an individual residing in Missouri. York worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. York has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because York has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6450. Plaintiff Nathan Young is an individual residing in Missouri. Young worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Missouri from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Young has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Young has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6451. Plaintiff Russell Barrows is an individual residing in Montana. Barrows worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2015 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barrows has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barrows has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6452. Plaintiff Michael Burmeister is an individual residing in Montana. Burmeister worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burmeister has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burmeister has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6453. Plaintiff Jesse Chitty is an individual residing in Montana. Chitty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chitty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chitty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6454. Plaintiff Michael Cook is an individual residing in Montana. Cook worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cook has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cook has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6455. Plaintiff Cody Cooper is an individual residing in Montana. Cooper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cooper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cooper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6456. Plaintiff Thomas Darko Jr is an individual residing in Montana. Darko Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Darko Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Darko Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6457. Plaintiff Joyce Esterby is an individual residing in Montana. Esterby worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2005 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Esterby has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Esterby has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6458. Plaintiff Gary Foechterle is an individual residing in Montana. Foechterle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foechterle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foechterle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6459. Plaintiff Daniel Gomez is an individual residing in Montana. Gomez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gomez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gomez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6460. Plaintiff Tyler Hageman is an individual residing in Montana. Hageman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hageman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hageman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6461. Plaintiff Mary Hamilton is an individual residing in Montana. Hamilton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamilton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamilton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6462. Plaintiff Brittney Huff is an individual residing in Montana. Huff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6463. Plaintiff Darrel Kramlich is an individual residing in Montana. Kramlich worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kramlich has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kramlich has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6464. Plaintiff Conor Lynch is an individual residing in Washington. Lynch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lynch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lynch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6465. Plaintiff Jason Miller is an individual residing in Montana. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6466. Plaintiff Brant Palmer is an individual residing in Montana. Palmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6467. Plaintiff Morgan Rapp is an individual residing in Montana. Rapp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rapp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rapp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6468. Plaintiff Greg Roll is an individual residing in Montana. Roll worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roll has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roll has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6469. Plaintiff Steven Schaak is an individual residing in Washington. Schaak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schaak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schaak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6470. Plaintiff Ivan Vander Esch is an individual residing in Montana. Vander Esch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vander Esch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vander Esch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6471. Plaintiff Adam Vylasek is an individual residing in Montana. Vylasek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2004 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vylasek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vylasek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6472. Plaintiff Brad Wagner is an individual residing in Montana. Wagner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wagner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wagner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6473. Plaintiff David Wood is an individual residing in Montana. Wood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Montana from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6474. Plaintiff Terresa Barnes is an individual residing in Wyoming. Barnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6475. Plaintiff James Batman is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Batman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Batman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Batman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6476. Plaintiff Kathy Cabbage is an individual residing in Nebraska. Cabbage worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cabbage has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cabbage has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6477. Plaintiff Saul Caceres is an individual residing in Nebraska. Caceres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caceres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caceres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6478. Plaintiff Kent Fitzgerald is an individual residing in Illinois. Fitzgerald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fitzgerald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fitzgerald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6479. Plaintiff Deanna Galvan is an individual residing in Nebraska. Galvan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2007 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Galvan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Galvan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6480. Plaintiff Charles Hardin is an individual residing in Nebraska. Hardin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hardin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hardin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6481. Plaintiff Timothy Haughton is an individual residing in Nebraska. Haughton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haughton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haughton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6482. Plaintiff Kenneth Johnson is an individual residing in Nebraska. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6483. Plaintiff William Kouma is an individual residing in Nebraska. Kouma worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2000 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kouma has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kouma has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6484. Plaintiff Kodi Leslie is an individual residing in Iowa. Leslie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leslie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leslie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6485. Plaintiff Jeffery Loschen is an individual residing in Nebraska. Loschen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loschen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loschen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6486. Plaintiff Jeff Luschen is an individual residing in Nebraska. Luschen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luschen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luschen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6487. Plaintiff Dustin Maul is an individual residing in Nebraska. Maul worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maul has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maul has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6488. Plaintiff Douglas Morris is an individual residing in Nebraska. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6489. Plaintiff Kasey Nachtman is an individual residing in Nebraska. Nachtman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nachtman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nachtman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6490. Plaintiff Sam Nuncio is an individual residing in Nebraska. Nuncio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nuncio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nuncio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6491. Plaintiff Monte Oman is an individual residing in Nebraska. Oman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2003 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6492. Plaintiff Alexander Ortiz is an individual residing in Nebraska. Ortiz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ortiz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ortiz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6493. Plaintiff Daniel Robison is an individual residing in Nebraska. Robison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6494. Plaintiff Sam Rystrom is an individual residing in Nebraska. Rystrom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rystrom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rystrom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6495. Plaintiff Tina Spradley is an individual residing in Nebraska. Spradley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spradley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spradley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6496. Plaintiff Roger Stander is an individual residing in Nebraska. Stander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6497. Plaintiff Eric Svik is an individual residing in Nebraska. Svik worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Svik has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Svik has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6498. Plaintiff Katelyn Tobiasson is an individual residing in Oklahoma. Tobiasson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tobiasson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tobiasson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6499. Plaintiff Dustin Vetrovsky is an individual residing in Nebraska. Vetrovsky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vetrovsky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vetrovsky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6500. Plaintiff Danny Wallace is an individual residing in Nebraska. Wallace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6501. Plaintiff Kenneth Winter is an individual residing in Nebraska. Winter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nebraska but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Winter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Winter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6502. Plaintiff Stefan Alger is an individual residing in Nevada. Alger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6503. Plaintiff Angelo Ancheta is an individual residing in Nevada. Ancheta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ancheta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ancheta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6504. Plaintiff Joshua Andrade is an individual residing in Nevada. Andrade worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Andrade has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Andrade has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6505. Plaintiff Brandi Barneyrodriguez is an individual residing in Nevada. Barneyrodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barneyrodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barneyrodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6506. Plaintiff Tony Bass is an individual residing in Nevada. Bass worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bass has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bass has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6507. Plaintiff Juan Bautista is an individual residing in Nevada. Bautista worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bautista has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bautista has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6508. Plaintiff Christopher Burdette is an individual residing in Nevada. Burdette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burdette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burdette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6509. Plaintiff Dante Cash is an individual residing in Nevada. Cash worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cash has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cash has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6510. Plaintiff Gabriel Chandler is an individual residing in Nevada. Chandler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chandler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chandler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6511. Plaintiff Michael Deale is an individual residing in Nevada. Deale worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deale has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deale has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6512. Plaintiff Richard Del Toro is an individual residing in Nevada. Del Toro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Del Toro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Del Toro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6513. Plaintiff Damion Dickens is an individual residing in Minnesota. Dickens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dickens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dickens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6514. Plaintiff Oscar Duran is an individual residing in Nevada. Duran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6515. Plaintiff Jason Elwell is an individual residing in Nevada. Elwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6516. Plaintiff Sergio Enriquez is an individual residing in Nevada. Enriquez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Enriquez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Enriquez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6517. Plaintiff John Felix is an individual residing in Nevada. Felix worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Felix has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Felix has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6518. Plaintiff Derek Fierro is an individual residing in Nevada. Fierro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fierro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fierro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6519. Plaintiff William Fisher is an individual residing in Nevada. Fisher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fisher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fisher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6520. Plaintiff Allen Flom is an individual residing in Idaho. Flom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6521. Plaintiff Steven Flores is an individual residing in Nevada. Flores worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flores has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flores has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6522. Plaintiff Karri Floud is an individual residing in Idaho. Floud worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Floud has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Floud has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6523. Plaintiff Victor Gaxiola is an individual residing in Nevada. Gaxiola worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gaxiola has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gaxiola has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6524. Plaintiff Jonathan Goepner is an individual residing in Nevada. Goepner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goepner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goepner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6525. Plaintiff Phillip Griego is an individual residing in Nevada. Griego worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Griego has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Griego has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6526. Plaintiff Alex Gutierrez is an individual residing in Nevada. Gutierrez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gutierrez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gutierrez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6527. Plaintiff Torry Hall is an individual residing in Nevada. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6528. Plaintiff Teresa Harrell is an individual residing in Nevada. Harrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6529. Plaintiff Eddie Haywood is an individual residing in Nevada. Haywood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haywood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haywood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6530. Plaintiff Andre Hood is an individual residing in Nevada. Hood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6531. Plaintiff Loi Ieremia is an individual residing in Nevada. Ieremia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ieremia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ieremia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6532. Plaintiff Matthew Irland is an individual residing in Nevada. Irland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Irland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Irland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6533. Plaintiff Ruben Jeronimo is an individual residing in Nevada. Jeronimo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jeronimo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jeronimo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6534. Plaintiff James Jones Jr. is an individual residing in Nevada. Jones Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6535. Plaintiff Dallas Kester is an individual residing in Nevada. Kester worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2006 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kester has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kester has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6536. Plaintiff Jacob Leonard is an individual residing in Washington. Leonard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leonard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leonard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6537. Plaintiff Robert Levene is an individual residing in New Jersey. Levene worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Levene has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Levene has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6538. Plaintiff Erin Looney is an individual residing in Nevada. Looney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Looney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Looney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6539. Plaintiff Angel Lopez is an individual residing in Nevada. Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6540. Plaintiff Daniel Maffei is an individual residing in California. Maffei worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maffei has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maffei has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6541. Plaintiff Julius Miller is an individual residing in Florida. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6542. Plaintiff Joseph Miner is an individual residing in Nevada. Miner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6543. Plaintiff Aaron Moreno is an individual residing in Nevada. Moreno worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2005 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moreno has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moreno has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6544. Plaintiff Mark Moullet is an individual residing in Nevada. Moullet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moullet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moullet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6545. Plaintiff Lucas Mudloff is an individual residing in Nevada. Mudloff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mudloff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mudloff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6546. Plaintiff Noah Munoz is an individual residing in Nevada. Munoz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munoz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munoz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6547. Plaintiff Anthony Munoz is an individual residing in Nevada. Munoz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Munoz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Munoz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6548. Plaintiff Barry Nelson is an individual residing in Idaho. Nelson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6549. Plaintiff Vincent Nelson is an individual residing in Nevada. Nelson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6550. Plaintiff David Nielson is an individual residing in Arizona. Nielson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2004 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nielson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nielson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6551. Plaintiff Vontoria Norwood is an individual residing in Nevada. Norwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Norwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Norwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6552. Plaintiff Alex O Heidelberg is an individual residing in Nevada. O Heidelberg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. O Heidelberg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because O Heidelberg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6553. Plaintiff Ruben Pangilinan is an individual residing in Nevada. Pangilinan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2003 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pangilinan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pangilinan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6554. Plaintiff Antwan Patterson is an individual residing in Nevada. Patterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6555. Plaintiff Raymond Patterson is an individual residing in Arizona. Patterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6556. Plaintiff Brian Powell is an individual residing in Arizona. Powell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6557. Plaintiff Rene Quintero is an individual residing in Nevada. Quintero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quintero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quintero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6558. Plaintiff Tyler Racine is an individual residing in Nevada. Racine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Racine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Racine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6559. Plaintiff Juan Ramirez is an individual residing in Nevada. Ramirez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramirez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramirez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6560. Plaintiff Jason Rand is an individual residing in Nevada. Rand worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rand has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rand has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6561. Plaintiff Dustin Robinson is an individual residing in Nevada. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6562. Plaintiff Matthew Robinson is an individual residing in Nevada. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6563. Plaintiff Aaron Romero is an individual residing in Nevada. Romero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Romero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Romero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6564. Plaintiff Marc Schiff is an individual residing in Nevada. Schiff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schiff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schiff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6565. Plaintiff Johnnie Severson is an individual residing in Nevada. Severson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Severson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Severson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6566. Plaintiff Christian Shearer is an individual residing in Nevada. Shearer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shearer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shearer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6567. Plaintiff James Snyder is an individual residing in Nevada. Snyder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snyder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snyder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6568. Plaintiff Jefferson Stacy Duane is an individual residing in Nevada. Stacy Duane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stacy Duane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stacy Duane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6569. Plaintiff Oshalyee Thomas is an individual residing in Nevada. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6570. Plaintiff Damon Thomas is an individual residing in Maryland. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6571. Plaintiff Thomas Turenne is an individual residing in New York. Turenne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turenne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turenne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6572. Plaintiff Tony Valdez is an individual residing in Nevada. Valdez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Valdez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Valdez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6573. Plaintiff Yolanda Valdez is an individual residing in Nevada. Valdez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Valdez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Valdez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6574. Plaintiff Dmarshae Vann is an individual residing in Nevada. Vann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6575. Plaintiff Mike Rodriguez is an individual residing in Nevada. Wilder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Nevada from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6576. Plaintiff Russell Adams is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6577. Plaintiff David Ballou is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Ballou worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ballou has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ballou has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6578. Plaintiff Benjamin Boisvert is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Boisvert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boisvert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boisvert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6579. Plaintiff Derrick Boumil is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Boumil worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boumil has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boumil has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6580. Plaintiff Michael Carnes is an individual residing in Virginia. Carnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6581. Plaintiff Makayla Coleman is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6582. Plaintiff Sean Coughlin is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Coughlin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coughlin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coughlin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6583. Plaintiff Kevin Della Grotte is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Della Grotte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Della Grotte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Della Grotte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6584. Plaintiff Anthony Delmasto is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Delmasto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Delmasto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Delmasto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6585. Plaintiff Alex Drew is an individual residing in Vermont. Drew worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Drew has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Drew has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6586. Plaintiff Trevor Drew is an individual residing in Vermont. Drew worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Drew has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Drew has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6587. Plaintiff David Duato is an individual residing in Nevada. Duato worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duato has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duato has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6588. Plaintiff Frank English is an individual residing in New Hampshire. English worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2000 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

English has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because English has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6589. Plaintiff Gary Fuller is an individual residing in Florida. Fuller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fuller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fuller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6590. Plaintiff German Goldus is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Goldus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goldus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goldus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6591. Plaintiff John Gonyer is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Gonyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6592. Plaintiff Adam Grijalva is an individual residing in South Carolina. Grijalva worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2000 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Grijalva has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grijalva has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6593. Plaintiff James Hafford is an individual residing in Vermont. Hafford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hafford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hafford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6594. Plaintiff Michael Haigler is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Haigler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haigler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haigler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6595. Plaintiff Quintin Hunter is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Hunter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hunter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hunter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6596. Plaintiff Robert Jantti is an individual residing in Vermont. Jantti worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jantti has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jantti has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6597. Plaintiff Barry Jones is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6598. Plaintiff William Kelly is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Kelly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6599. Plaintiff Arseniy Klimov is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Klimov worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Klimov has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Klimov has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6600. Plaintiff Willard Laraway is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Laraway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Laraway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laraway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6601. Plaintiff Leonard Lebrun is an individual residing in Vermont. Lebrun worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lebrun has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lebrun has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6602. Plaintiff Wayne Lombardo is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Lombardo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lombardo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lombardo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6603. Plaintiff Steven Lornitzo is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Lornitzo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lornitzo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lornitzo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6604. Plaintiff Karyne Maines is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Maines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6605. Plaintiff Thomas Manfredi is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Manfredi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Manfredi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Manfredi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6606. Plaintiff James Manoukian is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Manoukian worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Manoukian has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Manoukian has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6607. Plaintiff Michael Mendes is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Mendes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mendes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mendes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6608. Plaintiff Edward Morley is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Morley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6609. Plaintiff Erik Moyer is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Moyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6610. Plaintiff Angelo Navarro is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Navarro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Navarro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Navarro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6611. Plaintiff Justin Nicholas is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Nicholas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2009 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nicholas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nicholas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6612. Plaintiff Diana Ouellette is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Ouellette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ouellette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ouellette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6613. Plaintiff Laurence Ouellette is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ouellette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ouellette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ouellette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6614. Plaintiff Brian Peace is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Peace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6615. Plaintiff Steven Piscitelli is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Piscitelli worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Piscitelli has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Piscitelli has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6616. Plaintiff Dylan Richardson is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Richardson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richardson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richardson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6617. Plaintiff Jonathan Roberts is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Roberts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6618. Plaintiff Bruce Rodman is an individual residing in Texas. Rodman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6619. Plaintiff Michael Speck is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Speck worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2007 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Speck has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Speck has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6620. Plaintiff Thomas Surridge is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Surridge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Surridge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Surridge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6621. Plaintiff Lynn Vaillancourt is an individual residing in New Hampshire. Vaillancourt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2002 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vaillancourt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vaillancourt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6622. Plaintiff David Widner is an individual residing in Maine. Widner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Widner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Widner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6623. Plaintiff Howard Williams is an individual residing in Wyoming. Williams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire from approximately 2008 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Williams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Williams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6624. Plaintiff Ronald Willis is an individual residing in Louisiana. Willis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Hampshire but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Willis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Willis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6625. Plaintiff Ihab Abdou is an individual residing in New Jersey. Abdou worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abdou has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abdou has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6626. Plaintiff Alim Afrooz is an individual residing in Michigan. Afrooz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Afrooz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Afrooz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6627. Plaintiff Orlin Aguilar Sandoval V is an individual residing in New Jersey. Aguilar Sandoval V worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aguilar Sandoval V has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aguilar Sandoval V has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6628. Plaintiff Darwin Alba is an individual residing in New Jersey. Alba worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alba has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alba has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6629. Plaintiff Daimon Allen is an individual residing in New Jersey. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6630. Plaintiff John Almodovar is an individual residing in New Jersey. Almodovar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Almodovar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Almodovar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6631. Plaintiff Yoely Almonte is an individual residing in New Jersey. Almonte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Almonte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Almonte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6632. Plaintiff Aaron Anderson is an individual residing in New Jersey. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6633. Plaintiff Terry Anderson is an individual residing in New Jersey. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6634. Plaintiff Demarco Anthony is an individual residing in New Jersey. Anthony worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anthony has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anthony has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6635. Plaintiff Francisco Arias is an individual residing in New Jersey. Arias worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arias has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arias has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6636. Plaintiff Richard Arrowood is an individual residing in New Jersey. Arrowood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arrowood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arrowood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6637. Plaintiff John Arshed is an individual residing in New York. Arshed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arshed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arshed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6638. Plaintiff Anthony Attanasio is an individual residing in New Jersey. Attanasio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Attanasio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Attanasio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6639. Plaintiff Mohamed Badr is an individual residing in New Jersey. Badr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Badr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Badr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6640. Plaintiff William Baldwin is an individual residing in New Jersey. Baldwin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baldwin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baldwin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6641. Plaintiff Victor Barrera-Alvarez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Barrera-Alvarez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barrera-Alvarez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barrera-Alvarez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6642. Plaintiff Dionte Beckett is an individual residing in New Jersey. Beckett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beckett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beckett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6643. Plaintiff Richard Bednarski is an individual residing in New Jersey. Bednarski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Bednarski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bednarski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6644. Plaintiff Harry Benanchietti is an individual residing in New Jersey. Benanchietti worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Benanchietti has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Benanchietti has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6645. Plaintiff Simranjit Bhullar is an individual residing in New Jersey. Bhullar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bhullar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bhullar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6646. Plaintiff Jarred Bianchini is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Bianchini worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bianchini has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bianchini has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6647. Plaintiff Willie Billingsley is an individual residing in New Jersey. Billingsley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Billingsley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Billingsley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6648. Plaintiff Anthony Boggiano is an individual residing in New Jersey. Boggiano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boggiano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boggiano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6649. Plaintiff Walter Boria is an individual residing in New Jersey. Boria worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boria has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boria has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6650. Plaintiff Ian Bromfield is an individual residing in New York. Bromfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bromfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bromfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6651. Plaintiff Joseph Brooks is an individual residing in New Jersey. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2005 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6652. Plaintiff Duncan Brown is an individual residing in New Jersey. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6653. Plaintiff Charles Bynum is an individual residing in New Jersey. Bynum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bynum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bynum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6654. Plaintiff Godfry Campbell is an individual residing in New Jersey. Campbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Campbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Campbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6655. Plaintiff Edward Caraballo is an individual residing in New Jersey. Caraballo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caraballo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caraballo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6656. Plaintiff John Carpio is an individual residing in New Jersey. Carpio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carpio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carpio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6657. Plaintiff Richard Carter is an individual residing in New Jersey. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6658. Plaintiff Carlemito Carvalho is an individual residing in New Jersey. Carvalho worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carvalho has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carvalho has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6659. Plaintiff Anthony Casiano is an individual residing in New Jersey. Casiano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Casiano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Casiano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6660. Plaintiff Jorge Cedres is an individual residing in New Jersey. Cedres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2010 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cedres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cedres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6661. Plaintiff Sanvius Celamy is an individual residing in New Jersey. Celamy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Celamy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Celamy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6662. Plaintiff Dominic Cerrone Jr is an individual residing in New Jersey. Cerrone Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cerrone Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cerrone Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6663. Plaintiff Miroslaw Chelchowski is an individual residing in New Jersey. Chelchowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chelchowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chelchowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6664. Plaintiff Vladislav Chernov is an individual residing in New Jersey. Chernov worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chernov has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chernov has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6665. Plaintiff Stefano Chiariza is an individual residing in New York. Chiariza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chiariza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chiariza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6666. Plaintiff Kenneth Clark is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6667. Plaintiff Anthony Cocciolone is an individual residing in New Jersey. Cocciolone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cocciolone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cocciolone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6668. Plaintiff Olynthea Colvin is an individual residing in New Jersey. Colvin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Colvin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Colvin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6669. Plaintiff Shawn Concannon is an individual residing in New Jersey. Concannon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Concannon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Concannon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6670. Plaintiff Luis Concepcion is an individual residing in New Jersey. Concepcion worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Concepcion has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Concepcion has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6671. Plaintiff Eoin Connelly is an individual residing in New Jersey. Connelly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Connelly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Connelly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6672. Plaintiff Delvis Consuegra is an individual residing in New Jersey. Consuegra worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Consuegra has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Consuegra has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6673. Plaintiff Gary Cordi is an individual residing in Florida. Cordi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2001 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cordi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cordi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6674. Plaintiff Antonio Coria is an individual residing in New Jersey. Coria worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2005 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coria has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coria has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6675. Plaintiff Lafayette Crawford is an individual residing in New Jersey. Crawford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crawford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crawford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6676. Plaintiff Leonardo Cuevas is an individual residing in New Jersey. Cuevas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cuevas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cuevas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6677. Plaintiff Kristian Cullins is an individual residing in New Jersey. Cullins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cullins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cullins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6678. Plaintiff Vincent Cutro is an individual residing in New Jersey. Cutro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2000 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cutro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cutro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6679. Plaintiff John Daidone is an individual residing in New Jersey. Daidone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Daidone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Daidone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6680. Plaintiff Darryl Dambrosio is an individual residing in Florida. Dambrosio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dambrosio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dambrosio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6681. Plaintiff Michael Dante is an individual residing in New Jersey. Dante worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dante has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dante has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6682. Plaintiff Franklin De La Cruz Bueno is an individual residing in New Jersey. De La Cruz Bueno worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. De La Cruz Bueno has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because De La Cruz Bueno has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6683. Plaintiff Juan Dela Cruz is an individual residing in New Jersey. Dela Cruz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dela Cruz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dela Cruz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6684. Plaintiff Eusebio Delacruz is an individual residing in New Jersey. Delacruz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Delacruz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Delacruz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6685. Plaintiff Gerard Delon is an individual residing in New Jersey. Delon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Delon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Delon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6686. Plaintiff Vincent Deluca is an individual residing in New Jersey. Deluca worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deluca has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deluca has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6687. Plaintiff Michael Demato is an individual residing in New Jersey. Demato worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Demato has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Demato has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6688. Plaintiff Carmine Velez is an individual residing in Indiana. Desrosier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Desrosier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Desrosier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6689. Plaintiff Jose Diaz is an individual residing in Florida. Diaz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2007 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Diaz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Diaz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6690. Plaintiff Tyler Dill is an individual residing in New Jersey. Dill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6691. Plaintiff James Doan is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Doan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6692. Plaintiff Chanelle Dokes is an individual residing in New Jersey. Dokes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dokes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dokes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6693. Plaintiff Moustapha Doumbia is an individual residing in New Jersey. Doumbia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doumbia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doumbia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6694. Plaintiff Lakisha Doyle is an individual residing in New Jersey. Doyle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doyle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doyle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6695. Plaintiff Alexandria Drake is an individual residing in New Jersey. Drake worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Drake has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Drake has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6696. Plaintiff Jalen Dunn is an individual residing in New Jersey. Dunn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dunn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dunn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6697. Plaintiff Tarel Dunn is an individual residing in New Jersey. Dunn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dunn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dunn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6698. Plaintiff Steven Dunne is an individual residing in New Jersey. Dunne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dunne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dunne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6699. Plaintiff Brian Dunster is an individual residing in New Jersey. Dunster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dunster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dunster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6700. Plaintiff Tomasz Dzienisik is an individual residing in New Jersey. Dzienisik worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dzienisik has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dzienisik has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6701. Plaintiff Shannicua Edward is an individual residing in New Jersey. Edward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6702. Plaintiff Sarah Edwards is an individual residing in New Jersey. Edwards worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edwards has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edwards has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6703. Plaintiff Robert Ekness is an individual residing in Arizona. Ekness worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ekness has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ekness has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6704. Plaintiff Dale English is an individual residing in New Jersey. English worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. English has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because English has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6705. Plaintiff Paul Ferrandino is an individual residing in New Jersey. Ferrandino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ferrandino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ferrandino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6706. Plaintiff Taylor Ford is an individual residing in New Jersey. Ford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6707. Plaintiff Steven Forman is an individual residing in New Jersey. Forman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2001 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Forman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Forman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6708. Plaintiff Arthur Foster is an individual residing in New Jersey. Foster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6709. Plaintiff Kevin Frankliln is an individual residing in New Jersey. Frankliln worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frankliln has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Franklin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6710. Plaintiff Edgar Garcia is an individual residing in New Jersey. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6711. Plaintiff Randix Garcia is an individual residing in New Jersey. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6712. Plaintiff Mark Gencarelli is an individual residing in New Jersey. Gencarelli worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gencarelli has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gencarelli has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6713. Plaintiff Kwadwo Genfi is an individual residing in New Jersey. Genfi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Genfi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Genfi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6714. Plaintiff Thomas Givens is an individual residing in New Jersey. Givens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Givens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Givens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6715. Plaintiff Dominic Gliottone is an individual residing in New Jersey. Gliottone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gliottone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gliottone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6716. Plaintiff Benito Gonzalez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6717. Plaintiff Jaime Gonzalez is an individual residing in New York. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6718. Plaintiff Anthony Goodwyn is an individual residing in New Jersey. Goodwyn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodwyn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodwyn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6719. Plaintiff Joel Gordon is an individual residing in New Jersey. Gordon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2009 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gordon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gordon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6720. Plaintiff Keith Goresh is an individual residing in New York. Goresh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goresh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goresh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6721. Plaintiff Mike Gorga is an individual residing in New Jersey. Gorga worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gorga has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gorga has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6722. Plaintiff James Grant is an individual residing in Florida. Grant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6723. Plaintiff Gerald Green is an individual residing in New Jersey. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6724. Plaintiff John Grey is an individual residing in New Jersey. Grey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2004 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6725. Plaintiff Thomas Grillo is an individual residing in New Jersey. Grillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6726. Plaintiff Vincent Guardiola is an individual residing in New York. Guardiola worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guardiola has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guardiola has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6727. Plaintiff Stephane Guillaume is an individual residing in New Jersey. Guillaume worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guillaume has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guillaume has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6728. Plaintiff Jerry Gutierrez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Gutierrez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gutierrez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gutierrez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6729. Plaintiff Derek Harden is an individual residing in New Jersey. Harden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6730. Plaintiff Saiquan Harris is an individual residing in New Jersey. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6731. Plaintiff Timothy Hawkins is an individual residing in New Jersey. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6732. Plaintiff Larry Henderson is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Henderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6733. Plaintiff Jose Hernandez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Hernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6734. Plaintiff Teodoro Herrera is an individual residing in Ohio. Herrera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herrera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herrera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6735. Plaintiff Keith Hinton is an individual residing in New Jersey. Hinton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hinton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hinton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6736. Plaintiff Howard Hoagland is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hoagland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hoagland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hoagland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6737. Plaintiff Clifton Hogue is an individual residing in New Jersey. Hogue worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hogue has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hogue has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6738. Plaintiff Lawrence Iannuzzi is an individual residing in New Jersey. Iannuzzi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Iannuzzi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Iannuzzi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6739. Plaintiff Chuvano Irizarry is an individual residing in Florida. Irizarry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Irizarry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Irizarry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6740. Plaintiff Brenton Irvine is an individual residing in New Jersey. Irvine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Irvine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Irvine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6741. Plaintiff Subanie Jaikaran is an individual residing in New Jersey. Jaikaran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jaikaran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jaikaran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6742. Plaintiff Mantironi Jean is an individual residing in New Jersey. Jean worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jean has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jean has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6743. Plaintiff Kinson Jean is an individual residing in New Jersey. Jean worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jean has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jean has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6744. Plaintiff Jean Jerome is an individual residing in New Jersey. Jerome worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jerome has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jerome has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6745. Plaintiff Yolanda Johnson is an individual residing in New Jersey. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2011 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6746. Plaintiff Carl Joseph is an individual residing in New Jersey. Joseph worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joseph has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joseph has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6747. Plaintiff David Joseph is an individual residing in New Jersey. Joseph worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joseph has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joseph has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6748. Plaintiff Andrew Julia is an individual residing in New Jersey. Julia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Julia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Julia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6749. Plaintiff Kelly Kane is an individual residing in New Jersey. Kane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6750. Plaintiff Serge Kanga is an individual residing in New Jersey. Kanga worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kanga has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kanga has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6751. Plaintiff Yevgeniy Karpenko is an individual residing in New Jersey. Karpenko worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Karpenko has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Karpenko has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6752. Plaintiff George Klesh is an individual residing in New Jersey. Klesh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Klesh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Klesh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6753. Plaintiff Zbigniew Kozlowski is an individual residing in New Jersey. Kozlowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Kozlowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kozlowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6754. Plaintiff Ronald Landy is an individual residing in Florida. Landy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Landy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Landy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6755. Plaintiff Steven Larsen is an individual residing in New Jersey. Larsen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2009 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Larsen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Larsen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6756. Plaintiff David Lascio is an individual residing in New Jersey. Lascio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lascio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lascio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6757. Plaintiff Michael Lassiter is an individual residing in New Jersey. Lassiter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lassiter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lassiter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6758. Plaintiff Korey Laws is an individual residing in New Jersey. Laws worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laws has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laws has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6759. Plaintiff Zoran Lazoroski is an individual residing in New Jersey. Lazoroski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lazoroski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lazoroski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6760. Plaintiff Raydolph Leary is an individual residing in New Jersey. Leary worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leary has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leary has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6761. Plaintiff Michael Leckow is an individual residing in New York. Leckow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leckow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leckow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6762. Plaintiff John Letts is an individual residing in New Jersey. Letts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Letts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Letts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6763. Plaintiff Andrew Lockman is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Lockman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lockman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lockman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6764. Plaintiff Pablo Lopez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6765. Plaintiff Michael Loscalzo Jr is an individual residing in New Jersey. Loscalzo Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loscalzo Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loscalzo Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6766. Plaintiff Michael Loschiavo is an individual residing in New Jersey. Loschiavo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loschiavo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loschiavo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6767. Plaintiff Eric Lozada is an individual residing in New Jersey. Lozada worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lozada has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lozada has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6768. Plaintiff Armond Lucas is an individual residing in New Jersey. Lucas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lucas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lucas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6769. Plaintiff Joseph Macenat is an individual residing in Maryland. Macenat worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Macenat has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Macenat has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6770. Plaintiff Tomasz Makowski is an individual residing in New Jersey. Makowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Makowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Makowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6771. Plaintiff Dustin Marrone is an individual residing in New Jersey. Marrone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marrone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marrone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6772. Plaintiff Thomas Marshall is an individual residing in New Jersey. Marshall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marshall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marshall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6773. Plaintiff James Martin is an individual residing in Maryland. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6774. Plaintiff Ralph Mastrangeli is an individual residing in New Jersey. Mastrangeli worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mastrangeli has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mastrangeli has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6775. Plaintiff Juan Cardenas is an individual residing in New Jersey. Mcallister worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcallister has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcallister has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6776. Plaintiff Peter Mccaffrey is an individual residing in New Jersey. Mccaffrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccaffrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccaffrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6777. Plaintiff Eric Mcclain is an individual residing in New Jersey. Mcclain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcclain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcclain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6778. Plaintiff Troy Mcclinton is an individual residing in New Jersey. Mcclinton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcclinton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcclinton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6779. Plaintiff Roderick Mcdougal is an individual residing in New Jersey. Mcdougal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcdougal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcdougal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6780. Plaintiff Tamika Mcgriff is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mcgriff worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey and Pennsylvania from approximately 2000 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcgriff has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcgriff has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6781. Plaintiff Kent Mcrae is an individual residing in New Jersey. Mcrae worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcrae has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcrae has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6782. Plaintiff Philip Meany is an individual residing in New Jersey. Meany worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meany has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meany has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6783. Plaintiff Anthony Mendez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Mendez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mendez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mendez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6784. Plaintiff Anthony Middleton is an individual residing in New Jersey. Middleton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Middleton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Middleton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6785. Plaintiff Shawn Miller is an individual residing in New Jersey. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6786. Plaintiff Francesco Mongelli is an individual residing in New Jersey. Mongelli worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mongelli has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mongelli has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6787. Plaintiff Franklyn Mora is an individual residing in New Jersey. Mora worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mora has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mora has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6788. Plaintiff Joseph Spells is an individual residing in New Jersey. Morales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6789. Plaintiff Luis Moran Galvez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Moran Galvez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moran Galvez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moran Galvez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6790. Plaintiff Yohanna Moreno is an individual residing in New Jersey. Moreno worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moreno has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moreno has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6791. Plaintiff Luciano Muniz is an individual residing in New Jersey. Muniz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Muniz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Muniz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6792. Plaintiff Wilfredo Navarro is an individual residing in New Jersey. Navarro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Navarro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Navarro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6793. Plaintiff Leshawn Neal is an individual residing in Virginia. Neal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Neal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Neal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6794. Plaintiff Brian Negrey is an individual residing in New Jersey. Negrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Negrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Negrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6795. Plaintiff Robert Nelson is an individual residing in New Jersey. Nelson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6796. Plaintiff Stephanie Nicholas is an individual residing in New Jersey. Nicholas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nicholas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nicholas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6797. Plaintiff Doris Novak is an individual residing in North Carolina. Novak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Novak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Novak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6798. Plaintiff Mike Novak is an individual residing in New Jersey. Novak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Novak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Novak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6799. Plaintiff Jose Nunez Ventura is an individual residing in New Jersey. Nunez Ventura worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nunez Ventura has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nunez Ventura has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6800. Plaintiff Nelson Olivas is an individual residing in New Jersey. Olivas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olivas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olivas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6801. Plaintiff Mikelin Oliver is an individual residing in New Jersey. Oliver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oliver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oliver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6802. Plaintiff Jorge Ormeno is an individual residing in New Jersey. Ormeno worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ormeno has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ormeno has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6803. Plaintiff Kenneth Orner is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Orner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Orner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Orner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6804. Plaintiff Luis Ortiz is an individual residing in New Jersey. Ortiz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ortiz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ortiz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6805. Plaintiff Jose Osorio is an individual residing in New Jersey. Osorio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2000 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Osorio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Osorio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6806. Plaintiff Tony Outerbridge is an individual residing in New Jersey. Outerbridge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Outerbridge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Outerbridge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6807. Plaintiff Kwane Outram is an individual residing in New York. Outram worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Outram has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Outram has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6808. Plaintiff Anthony Palovick is an individual residing in New Jersey. Palovick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palovick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palovick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6809. Plaintiff Christopher Panelli is an individual residing in Florida. Panelli worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Panelli has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Panelli has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6810. Plaintiff Jarmar Parker is an individual residing in New Jersey. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6811. Plaintiff Nelson Pena is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Pena worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pena has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pena has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6812. Plaintiff Christina Pender is an individual residing in New Jersey. Pender worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pender has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pender has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6813. Plaintiff Jaime Perero is an individual residing in Florida. Perero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6814. Plaintiff Serafin Perez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6815. Plaintiff Isaac Perez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6816. Plaintiff Juan Pineda-Torres is an individual residing in New Jersey. Pineda-Torres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pineda-Torres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pineda-Torres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6817. Plaintiff James Pinney is an individual residing in New Jersey. Pinney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pinney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pinney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6818. Plaintiff Darryl Pipes is an individual residing in New Jersey. Pipes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2001 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pipes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pipes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6819. Plaintiff Sandy Placencia is an individual residing in New Jersey. Placencia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Placencia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Placencia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6820. Plaintiff William Plummer is an individual residing in New Jersey. Plummer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Plummer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Plummer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6821. Plaintiff Thomas Polera is an individual residing in New Jersey. Polera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6822. Plaintiff Jamar Porter is an individual residing in New Jersey. Porter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Porter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Porter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6823. Plaintiff Brian Price is an individual residing in New Jersey. Price worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Price has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Price has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6824. Plaintiff Ragy Radwan is an individual residing in New Jersey. Radwan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Radwan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Radwan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6825. Plaintiff Theresa Rakebrandt is an individual residing in New Jersey. Rakebrandt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rakebrandt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rakebrandt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6826. Plaintiff Francisco Ramirez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Ramirez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramirez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramirez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6827. Plaintiff Jose Ramos is an individual residing in New Jersey. Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6828. Plaintiff Steven Ramos is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6829. Plaintiff Pastor Ramos Iii is an individual residing in New Jersey. Ramos Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6830. Plaintiff Jerome Rivera is an individual residing in New Jersey. Rivera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rivera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rivera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6831. Plaintiff Joseph Rizzo is an individual residing in Florida. Rizzo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rizzo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rizzo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6832. Plaintiff Antonio Roman is an individual residing in New Jersey. Roman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6833. Plaintiff Brandon Roman is an individual residing in New Jersey. Roman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6834. Plaintiff Amelvin Rosario is an individual residing in New Jersey. Rosario worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosario has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosario has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6835. Plaintiff Elvis Rosario is an individual residing in New Jersey. Rosario worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosario has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosario has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6836. Plaintiff Alexis Rosario is an individual residing in New Jersey. Rosario worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosario has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosario has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6837. Plaintiff Victoria Roscoe is an individual residing in New Jersey. Roscoe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roscoe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roscoe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6838. Plaintiff Brian Ruiz is an individual residing in Idaho. Ruiz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ruiz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ruiz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6839. Plaintiff Verdell Russell is an individual residing in New Jersey. Russell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Russell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Russell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6840. Plaintiff Paul Sabia is an individual residing in New Jersey. Sabia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sabia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sabia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6841. Plaintiff Wedner Saintelmy is an individual residing in New Jersey. Saintelmy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saintelmy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saintelmy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6842. Plaintiff Nickolaos Sakalis is an individual residing in New Jersey. Sakalis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sakalis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sakalis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6843. Plaintiff Santos Salaman is an individual residing in New Jersey. Salaman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salaman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salaman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6844. Plaintiff Milton Salgado is an individual residing in New Jersey. Salgado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2005 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salgado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salgado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6845. Plaintiff Elcid Saljooki is an individual residing in New Jersey. Saljooki worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saljooki has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saljooki has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6846. Plaintiff Henry Sanchez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Sanchez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanchez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanchez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6847. Plaintiff Wanda Sanchez is an individual residing in Florida. Sanchez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanchez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanchez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6848. Plaintiff Danielle Sanchez is an individual residing in Florida. Sanchez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanchez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanchez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6849. Plaintiff Leonardo Santiago is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Santiago worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santiago has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santiago has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6850. Plaintiff Raphael Santos is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Santos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6851. Plaintiff Richard Savar is an individual residing in New Jersey. Savar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Savar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Savar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6852. Plaintiff Carlon Schaffer is an individual residing in Florida. Schaffer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2003 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schaffer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schaffer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6853. Plaintiff Michael Schoettler is an individual residing in New Jersey. Schoettler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 1999 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schoettler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schoettler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6854. Plaintiff Vincenzo Scotto Dabusco is an individual residing in New York. Scotto Dabusco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scotto Dabusco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scotto Dabusco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6855. Plaintiff John Seidito is an individual residing in New York. Seidito worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Seidito has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Seidito has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6856. Plaintiff Jason Shaver is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Shaver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shaver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shaver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6857. Plaintiff Robert Sherwood is an individual residing in New Jersey. Sherwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sherwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sherwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6858. Plaintiff John Siaw is an individual residing in New Jersey. Siaw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Siaw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Siaw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6859. Plaintiff Antonio Sierra Jr. is an individual residing in New Jersey. Sierra Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2000 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sierra Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sierra Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6860. Plaintiff Robert Six is an individual residing in New Jersey. Six worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Six has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Six has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6861. Plaintiff Frank Smith is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6862. Plaintiff Tristan Smith is an individual residing in Virginia. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6863. Plaintiff Richard Snyder is an individual residing in New Jersey. Snyder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2001 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snyder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snyder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6864. Plaintiff Nabil Srouji is an individual residing in New Jersey. Srouji worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 1999 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Srouji has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Srouji has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6865. Plaintiff Jamal St Louis is an individual residing in New York. St Louis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. St Louis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because St Louis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6866. Plaintiff Craig Stanaway is an individual residing in New Jersey. Stanaway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stanaway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stanaway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6867. Plaintiff Derek Staples is an individual residing in Georgia. Staples worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Staples has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Staples has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6868. Plaintiff Oliver Stevanoski is an individual residing in New Jersey. Stevanoski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stevanoski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stevanoski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6869. Plaintiff Kevin Stokes is an individual residing in New Jersey. Stokes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stokes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stokes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6870. Plaintiff Christopher Stosko is an individual residing in New Jersey. Stosko worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stosko has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stosko has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6871. Plaintiff Clifford Streater is an individual residing in Delaware. Streater worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Streater has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Streater has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6872. Plaintiff Larenz Suggs is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Suggs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Suggs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Suggs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6873. Plaintiff Frank Suglia is an individual residing in New Jersey. Suglia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2002 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Suglia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Suglia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6874. Plaintiff Mohammed Swaray is an individual residing in New Jersey. Swaray worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swaray has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swaray has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6875. Plaintiff Joseph Sweat is an individual residing in New Jersey. Sweat worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sweat has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sweat has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6876. Plaintiff Wayne Tally is an individual residing in New Jersey. Tally worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tally has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tally has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6877. Plaintiff Sonny Telemaque is an individual residing in New Jersey. Telemaque worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Telemaque has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Telemaque has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6878. Plaintiff Vincent Tenpenny is an individual residing in New Jersey. Tenpenny worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tenpenny has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tenpenny has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6879. Plaintiff Wayne Thomas is an individual residing in New Jersey. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6880. Plaintiff India Thomas is an individual residing in New Jersey. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6881. Plaintiff Randolph Thompson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6882. Plaintiff Ramon Tiburcio is an individual residing in New Jersey. Tiburcio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tiburcio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tiburcio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6883. Plaintiff Ryan Tomaszewicz is an individual residing in New Jersey. Tomaszewicz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2006 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tomaszewicz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tomaszewicz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6884. Plaintiff Nelson Torres is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Torres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6885. Plaintiff Placido Torres-Rodriguez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Torres-Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Torres-Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Torres-Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6886. Plaintiff Philip Tosti is an individual residing in New Jersey. Tosti worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2000 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tosti has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tosti has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6887. Plaintiff Stephen Tucker is an individual residing in New Jersey. Tucker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tucker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tucker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6888. Plaintiff Javier Urrego is an individual residing in New Jersey. Urrego worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2001 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Urrego has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Urrego has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6889. Plaintiff Moses Valentin is an individual residing in New Jersey. Valentin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Valentin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Valentin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6890. Plaintiff Peter Van Name is an individual residing in New Jersey. Van Name worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Van Name has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Van Name has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6891. Plaintiff Vahan Varjabedian is an individual residing in New Jersey. Varjabedian worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2001 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Varjabedian has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Varjabedian has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6892. Plaintiff Gregorey Vazquez is an individual residing in New Jersey. Vazquez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vazquez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vazquez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6893. Plaintiff John Venditti is an individual residing in New Jersey. Venditti worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Venditti has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Venditti has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6894. Plaintiff Angel Vidal is an individual residing in New Jersey. Vidal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vidal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vidal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6895. Plaintiff Maurice Walker is an individual residing in New Jersey. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6896. Plaintiff Richard Wilkins is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wilkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wilkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wilkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6897. Plaintiff Marco Zambonino is an individual residing in New Jersey. Zambonino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Jersey from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Zambonino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Zambonino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6898. Plaintiff Omar Acosta is an individual residing in New Mexico. Acosta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Acosta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Acosta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6899. Plaintiff Travis Anderson is an individual residing in New Mexico. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6900. Plaintiff Ramon Andrade is an individual residing in New Mexico. Andrade worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Andrade has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Andrade has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6901. Plaintiff Carlos Apodaca is an individual residing in New Mexico. Apodaca worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2009 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Apodaca has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Apodaca has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6902. Plaintiff Max Archibeque is an individual residing in New Mexico. Archibeque worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Archibeque has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Archibeque has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6903. Plaintiff Dominique Archuleta is an individual residing in New Mexico. Archuleta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Archuleta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Archuleta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6904. Plaintiff Brenton Baker is an individual residing in Texas. Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6905. Plaintiff Chance Barnes is an individual residing in New Mexico. Barnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6906. Plaintiff Matthew Barranca is an individual residing in New Mexico. Barranca worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barranca has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barranca has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6907. Plaintiff Kylie Caraher is an individual residing in Colorado. Caraher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caraher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caraher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6908. Plaintiff Chris Carrasco New Mexico is an individual residing in New Mexico. Carrasco New Mexico worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carrasco New Mexico has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carrasco New Mexico has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6909. Plaintiff Joshua Chavez is an individual residing in New Mexico. Chavez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chavez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chavez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6910. Plaintiff Johnathon Cordova is an individual residing in New Mexico. Cordova worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cordova has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cordova has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6911. Plaintiff Michael Cordova is an individual residing in New Mexico. Cordova worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cordova has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cordova has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6912. Plaintiff Mykel Dorsey is an individual residing in Arizona. Dorsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dorsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dorsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6913. Plaintiff Craig Duran is an individual residing in New Mexico. Duran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6914. Plaintiff Vincent Garcia is an individual residing in New Mexico. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6915. Plaintiff Abad Garcia is an individual residing in Texas. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6916. Plaintiff Michael Garcia is an individual residing in New Mexico. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6917. Plaintiff Eric Garcia is an individual residing in New Mexico. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6918. Plaintiff Martin Garcilazo is an individual residing in New Mexico. Garcilazo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2007 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcilazo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcilazo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6919. Plaintiff Cecilio Gonzales is an individual residing in New Mexico. Gonzales worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzales has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzales has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6920. Plaintiff George Graham is an individual residing in New Mexico. Graham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Graham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Graham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6921. Plaintiff Milagros Guzman is an individual residing in New Mexico. Guzman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guzman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guzman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6922. Plaintiff Keegan Hayes is an individual residing in New Mexico. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6923. Plaintiff Lucas Hernandez is an individual residing in New Mexico. Hernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6924. Plaintiff Anastasia Iverson is an individual residing in New Mexico. Iverson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Iverson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Iverson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6925. Plaintiff Michael Jaramillo is an individual residing in Texas. Jaramillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jaramillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jaramillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6926. Plaintiff Christopher Jeantete is an individual residing in New Mexico. Jeantete worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jeantete has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jeantete has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6927. Plaintiff Joshua Ledesma is an individual residing in New Mexico. Ledesma worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ledesma has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ledesma has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6928. Plaintiff Jose Marco is an individual residing in Texas. Marco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6929. Plaintiff Alexandria Marks is an individual residing in New Mexico. Marks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6930. Plaintiff Michael Martinez is an individual residing in New Mexico. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6931. Plaintiff Jose Mercado is an individual residing in Texas. Mercado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico and Texas from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mercado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mercado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6932. Plaintiff Michael Nava is an individual residing in New Mexico. Nava worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nava has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nava has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6933. Plaintiff Estevan Ortega is an individual residing in New Mexico. Ortega worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ortega has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ortega has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6934. Plaintiff Jorge Perez Salazar is an individual residing in New Mexico. Perez Salazar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez Salazar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez Salazar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6935. Plaintiff Antonio Quezada Jr. is an individual residing in New Mexico. Quezada Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quezada Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quezada Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6936. Plaintiff Mateo Rael is an individual residing in New Mexico. Rael worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rael has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rael has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6937. Plaintiff Chris Raetz is an individual residing in Vermont. Raetz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Raetz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Raetz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6938. Plaintiff Francisco Saiz is an individual residing in New Mexico. Saiz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saiz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saiz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6939. Plaintiff Hector Santos is an individual residing in Arizona. Santos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6940. Plaintiff Donovan Sikes is an individual residing in New Mexico. Sikes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sikes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sikes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6941. Plaintiff Domenica Smith is an individual residing in New Mexico. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6942. Plaintiff Gregory Stover is an individual residing in New Mexico. Stover worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stover has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stover has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6943. Plaintiff Heather Telkamp is an individual residing in New Mexico. Telkamp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Telkamp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Telkamp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6944. Plaintiff Kyle Thompson is an individual residing in New Mexico. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6945. Plaintiff Steven Tomasello is an individual residing in New Mexico. Tomasello worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tomasello has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tomasello has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6946. Plaintiff Jeffery Tsosie is an individual residing in Arizona. Tsosie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tsosie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tsosie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6947. Plaintiff Anthony Valdez is an individual residing in New Mexico. Valdez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Valdez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Valdez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6948. Plaintiff Kevin Watson is an individual residing in New Mexico. Watson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New Mexico from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Watson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Watson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6949. Plaintiff Peter Abee is an individual residing in New York. Abee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6950. Plaintiff Anthony Abreu is an individual residing in New York. Abreu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abreu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abreu has driven a vehicle weighing

less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6951. Plaintiff Ramon Abreu is an individual residing in New York. Abreu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2004 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abreu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abreu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6952. Plaintiff Irving Acevedo is an individual residing in New York. Acevedo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Acevedo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Acevedo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6953. Plaintiff Kenneth Adsit is an individual residing in New York. Adsit worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adsit has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adsit has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6954. Plaintiff Eghosa Agho is an individual residing in New York. Agho worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Agho has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Agho has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6955. Plaintiff Faiz Ahmed is an individual residing in New York. Ahmed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ahmed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ahmed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6956. Plaintiff Nuradin Alamin is an individual residing in New York. Alamin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alamin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alamin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6957. Plaintiff Joseph Alba is an individual residing in New York. Alba worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alba has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alba has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6958. Plaintiff Enrique Aldaba is an individual residing in New York. Aldaba worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aldaba has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aldaba has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6959. Plaintiff Edward Aldridge is an individual residing in New York. Aldridge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aldridge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aldridge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6960. Plaintiff Steven Aldridge is an individual residing in New York. Aldridge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aldridge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aldridge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6961. Plaintiff Che Alexander is an individual residing in New York. Alexander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alexander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alexander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6962. Plaintiff Lionel Alexis is an individual residing in New York. Alexis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alexis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alexis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6963. Plaintiff Kevin Allen is an individual residing in New York. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6964. Plaintiff Myles Alleyne is an individual residing in New Jersey. Alleyne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York and New Jersey from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alleyne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alleyne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6965. Plaintiff Estevan Almonte is an individual residing in New York. Almonte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Almonte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Almonte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6966. Plaintiff William Althausen is an individual residing in Florida. Althausen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Althausen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Althausen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6967. Plaintiff Jose Alvarez is an individual residing in New York. Alvarez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alvarez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alvarez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6968. Plaintiff Francisco Alvarez is an individual residing in Florida. Alvarez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alvarez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alvarez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6969. Plaintiff Antonio Alves is an individual residing in New York. Alves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6970. Plaintiff Victor Alvia is an individual residing in Connecticut. Alvia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Alvia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Alvia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6971. Plaintiff Juan Amaya Riviera is an individual residing in New York. Amaya Riviera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Amaya Riviera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Amaya Riviera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6972. Plaintiff Craig Anderson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6973. Plaintiff Henry Angeles is an individual residing in New York. Angeles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Angeles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Angeles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6974. Plaintiff Dave Angelico is an individual residing in New York. Angelico worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Angelico has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Angelico has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6975. Plaintiff Joseph Antoine is an individual residing in New York. Antoine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Antoine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Antoine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6976. Plaintiff Chris Antoine Joseph is an individual residing in New York. Antoine Joseph worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Antoine Joseph has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Antoine Joseph has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6977. Plaintiff Juan Aracena Jr. is an individual residing in New York. Aracena Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aracena Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aracena Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6978. Plaintiff Jorge Aragonez is an individual residing in New York. Aragonez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aragonez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aragonez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6979. Plaintiff Christopher Arber is an individual residing in New York. Arber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6980. Plaintiff Frank Arduini is an individual residing in New York. Arduini worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arduini has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arduini has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6981. Plaintiff Edwin Arias is an individual residing in New York. Arias worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arias has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arias has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6982. Plaintiff Michael Armstrong is an individual residing in New York. Armstrong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Armstrong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armstrong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6983. Plaintiff Victor Arroyo is an individual residing in New York. Arroyo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Arroyo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Arroyo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6984. Plaintiff Dixon Asencio is an individual residing in New York. Asencio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Asencio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Asencio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6985. Plaintiff Konstantinos Atherinis is an individual residing in New York. Atherinis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Atherinis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Atherinis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6986. Plaintiff Darryl Atkins is an individual residing in New York. Atkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Atkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Atkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6987. Plaintiff Obnere Augustin is an individual residing in New York. Augustin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Augustin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Augustin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6988. Plaintiff Jean Avin is an individual residing in New York. Avin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Avin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Avin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6989. Plaintiff David Ayala is an individual residing in New York. Ayala worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ayala has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ayala has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6990. Plaintiff Kevin Ayoub is an individual residing in New York. Ayoub worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ayoub has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ayoub has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6991. Plaintiff Howard Ayres is an individual residing in New York. Ayres worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ayres has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ayres has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6992. Plaintiff John Bagnara is an individual residing in New York. Bagnara worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bagnara has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bagnara has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6993. Plaintiff Kenneth Bailey is an individual residing in New Jersey. Bailey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bailey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bailey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6994. Plaintiff Jessica Baker-Macmillen is an individual residing in New York. Baker-Macmillen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker-Macmillen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker-Macmillen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6995. Plaintiff Joanna Baldwin is an individual residing in New York. Baldwin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baldwin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baldwin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6996. Plaintiff James Balkam is an individual residing in New York. Balkam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Balkam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Balkam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6997. Plaintiff Angus Baptiste is an individual residing in New York. Baptiste worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baptiste has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baptiste has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6998. Plaintiff Sterson Baptiste is an individual residing in New York. Baptiste worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baptiste has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baptiste has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

6999. Plaintiff Mitchel Barber is an individual residing in New York. Barber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7000. Plaintiff Jeffery Barnett is an individual residing in New York. Barnett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7001. Plaintiff Yenifer Barreto Rivas is an individual residing in New York. Barreto Rivas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barreto Rivas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barreto Rivas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7002. Plaintiff Isabelle Bartter is an individual residing in Oregon. Bartter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bartter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bartter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7003. Plaintiff William Bauman is an individual residing in New York. Bauman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2008 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bauman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bauman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7004. Plaintiff Jason Beaudrot is an individual residing in New York. Beaudrot worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beaudrot has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beaudrot has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7005. Plaintiff James Beaver is an individual residing in New York. Beaver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beaver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beaver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7006. Plaintiff John Bedard is an individual residing in New York. Bedard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bedard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bedard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7007. Plaintiff Lester Bell is an individual residing in New York. Bell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7008. Plaintiff Stefhon Benjamin is an individual residing in New York. Benjamin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Benjamin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Benjamin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7009. Plaintiff Kelly Bennett is an individual residing in New York. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7010. Plaintiff Spencer Bennett is an individual residing in New York. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7011. Plaintiff Wayne Bennett is an individual residing in New York. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7012. Plaintiff Randy Bennett is an individual residing in New York. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7013. Plaintiff Shavonna Bentley is an individual residing in New York. Bentley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bentley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bentley has driven a vehicle

weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7014. Plaintiff Frank Berdine Iii is an individual residing in New York. Berdine Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2005 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Berdine Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Berdine Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7015. Plaintiff Christopher Berg is an individual residing in New York. Berg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Berg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Berg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7016. Plaintiff Brandon Bianchi is an individual residing in New York. Bianchi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bianchi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bianchi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7017. Plaintiff Dana Bidwell is an individual residing in New York. Bidwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bidwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bidwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7018. Plaintiff Orhan Biler is an individual residing in Maryland. Biler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Biler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Biler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7019. Plaintiff Amanda Billips is an individual residing in South Carolina. Billips worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Billips has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Billips has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7020. Plaintiff Amanda Birmingham is an individual residing in New York. Birmingham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Birmingham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Birmingham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7021. Plaintiff Kevin Blair is an individual residing in Florida. Blair worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blair has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blair has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7022. Plaintiff Joshua Blaise is an individual residing in New York. Blaise worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blaise has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blaise has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7023. Plaintiff Collin Blake is an individual residing in New York. Blake worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blake has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blake has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7024. Plaintiff John Bloom is an individual residing in New York. Bloom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bloom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bloom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7025. Plaintiff Luis Bolanos is an individual residing in New York. Bolanos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bolanos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bolanos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7026. Plaintiff John Boll Iii is an individual residing in New York. Boll Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boll Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boll Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7027. Plaintiff Antoine Bolton is an individual residing in New York. Bolton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bolton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bolton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7028. Plaintiff Jason Bond is an individual residing in New York. Bond worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bond has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bond has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7029. Plaintiff Jorge Bonilla is an individual residing in New York. Bonilla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bonilla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bonilla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7030. Plaintiff Anthony Booker is an individual residing in New York. Booker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Booker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Booker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7031. Plaintiff Michael Bosso is an individual residing in New York. Bosso worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bosso has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bosso has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7032. Plaintiff Roberto Bou is an individual residing in New York. Bou worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York and Connecticut but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bou has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bou has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7033. Plaintiff Jennifer Bouzidane is an individual residing in New York. Bouzidane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Bouزيدane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bouزيدane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7034. Plaintiff Terrence Bowen is an individual residing in Florida. Bowen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7035. Plaintiff Akeem Bowen is an individual residing in New York. Bowen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7036. Plaintiff Michael Boyd is an individual residing in New York. Boyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7037. Plaintiff Adam Boyer is an individual residing in New York. Boyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7038. Plaintiff Kyle Brackett is an individual residing in New York. Brackett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brackett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brackett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7039. Plaintiff Vince Bradley is an individual residing in New York. Bradley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bradley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bradley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7040. Plaintiff Eric Brennan is an individual residing in New York. Brennan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brennan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brennan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7041. Plaintiff Ryan Brilliant is an individual residing in New York. Brilliant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brilliant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brilliant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7042. Plaintiff Robert Briscoe is an individual residing in New York. Briscoe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Briscoe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Briscoe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7043. Plaintiff Malkeyah Broadus is an individual residing in New York. Broadus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Broadus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Broadus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7044. Plaintiff Onica Brooks is an individual residing in New York. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7045. Plaintiff George Brooks, Sr. is an individual residing in New York. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7046. Plaintiff Shaun Brown is an individual residing in New York. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7047. Plaintiff Arden Brown is an individual residing in New York. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7048. Plaintiff Richard Brown is an individual residing in New York. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2011 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7049. Plaintiff Abdur Brown is an individual residing in New York. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7050. Plaintiff Angela Brunelle is an individual residing in New York. Brunelle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brunelle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brunelle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7051. Plaintiff Tayron Bryant is an individual residing in New York. Bryant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bryant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bryant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7052. Plaintiff Amber Bundy is an individual residing in New York. Bundy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bundy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bundy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7053. Plaintiff Donald Burdek is an individual residing in New York. Burdek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2011 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burdek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burdek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7054. Plaintiff Anthony Burghezi is an individual residing in New York. Burghezi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burghezi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burghezi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7055. Plaintiff Joe Burke is an individual residing in New York. Burke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7056. Plaintiff Alexander Burrows is an individual residing in New York. Burrows worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burrows has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burrows has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7057. Plaintiff Darin Bynum is an individual residing in New York. Bynum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bynum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bynum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7058. Plaintiff Edwardt Cabral is an individual residing in New York. Cabral worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cabral has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cabral has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7059. Plaintiff Jonathan Cabrera is an individual residing in New York. Cabrera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cabrera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cabrera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7060. Plaintiff Rafael Cabrera is an individual residing in Rhode Island. Cabrera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cabrera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cabrera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7061. Plaintiff Francisco Caceres Jr. is an individual residing in New York. Caceres Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caceres Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caceres Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7062. Plaintiff Angelo Caggiano is an individual residing in Florida. Caggiano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 1995 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caggiano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caggiano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7063. Plaintiff Eli Calero is an individual residing in New York. Calero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Calero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Calero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7064. Plaintiff Branden Cameron is an individual residing in Kentucky. Cameron worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cameron has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cameron has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7065. Plaintiff Vincenzo Campanella is an individual residing in New York. Campanella worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Campanella has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Campanella has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7066. Plaintiff Orville Campbell is an individual residing in New Jersey. Campbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Campbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Campbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7067. Plaintiff Robenson Candio is an individual residing in New Jersey. Candio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Candio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Candio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7068. Plaintiff Steve Caraballo is an individual residing in New York. Caraballo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caraballo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caraballo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7069. Plaintiff Richard Carballo is an individual residing in New York. Carballo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carballo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carballo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7070. Plaintiff Joseph Carlino is an individual residing in New York. Carlino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2009 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carlino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carlino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7071. Plaintiff James Carrig is an individual residing in New York. Carrig worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carrig has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carrig has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7072. Plaintiff Richard Carroll is an individual residing in New York. Carroll worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carroll has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carroll has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7073. Plaintiff Zachary Collins is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Carter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7074. Plaintiff Oneja Caruth is an individual residing in New York. Caruth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caruth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caruth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7075. Plaintiff Juan Casanova is an individual residing in New York. Casanova worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Casanova has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Casanova has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7076. Plaintiff Anthony Cassisi is an individual residing in Florida. Cassisi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cassisi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cassisi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7077. Plaintiff Michael Castillo is an individual residing in New York. Castillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7078. Plaintiff Ivan Castillo is an individual residing in New York. Castillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7079. Plaintiff Kevin Castoire is an individual residing in New York. Castoire worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castoire has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castoire has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7080. Plaintiff Johanan Castro is an individual residing in New York. Castro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7081. Plaintiff Samuel Cephas is an individual residing in Florida. Cephas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cephas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cephas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7082. Plaintiff Walter Chamorro is an individual residing in Connecticut. Chamorro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chamorro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chamorro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7083. Plaintiff Bartholomew Charles is an individual residing in New York. Charles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Charles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Charles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7084. Plaintiff Spenser Charles is an individual residing in New York. Charles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Charles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Charles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7085. Plaintiff Craig Chenaille is an individual residing in Mississippi. Chenaille worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 1996 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chenaille has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chenaille has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7086. Plaintiff Sylwester Chochorek is an individual residing in New York. Chochorek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2023 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chochorek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chochorek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7087. Plaintiff Hyon Chung is an individual residing in New York. Chung worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chung has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chung has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7088. Plaintiff Joony Cinto is an individual residing in New York. Cinto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cinto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cinto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7089. Plaintiff Miguel Ciprian is an individual residing in New York. Ciprian worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ciprian has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ciprian has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7090. Plaintiff Mario Clarke is an individual residing in New York. Clarke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clarke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clarke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7091. Plaintiff Uriah Clarke is an individual residing in New York. Clarke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clarke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clarke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7092. Plaintiff Jonathan Claudio is an individual residing in New York. Claudio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Claudio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Claudio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7093. Plaintiff Jose Clausell is an individual residing in New York. Clausell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2007 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clausell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clausell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7094. Plaintiff Chester Cobb is an individual residing in New York. Cobb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cobb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cobb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7095. Plaintiff Cole Coghill is an individual residing in New York. Coghill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coghill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coghill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7096. Plaintiff Alexander Cole is an individual residing in New York. Cole worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cole has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cole has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7097. Plaintiff Kasey Coleman is an individual residing in New York. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7098. Plaintiff Frank Coleman is an individual residing in New York. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7099. Plaintiff Yovan Collado is an individual residing in New York. Collado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7100. Plaintiff Eric Collins is an individual residing in New York. Collins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7101. Plaintiff Ronald Collison is an individual residing in New York. Collison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7102. Plaintiff David Collver is an individual residing in New York. Collver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7103. Plaintiff Dane Colmenares is an individual residing in New York. Colmenares worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Colmenares has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Colmenares has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7104. Plaintiff Andrew Colombos is an individual residing in New York. Colombos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2005 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Colombos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Colombos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7105. Plaintiff Julian Colon is an individual residing in New York. Colon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Colon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Colon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7106. Plaintiff Sean Conde is an individual residing in New York. Conde worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conde has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conde has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7107. Plaintiff Donald Congdon is an individual residing in New York. Congdon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Congdon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Congdon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7108. Plaintiff James Conklin is an individual residing in New York. Conklin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conklin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conklin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7109. Plaintiff Jesse Conklin is an individual residing in New York. Conklin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conklin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conklin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7110. Plaintiff Leonard Corazza is an individual residing in New York. Corazza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Corazza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Corazza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7111. Plaintiff Luis Cordero is an individual residing in New York. Cordero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cordero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cordero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7112. Plaintiff Marvin Cordova is an individual residing in New York. Cordova worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cordova has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cordova has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7113. Plaintiff Samuel Cornish is an individual residing in New York. Cornish worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cornish has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cornish has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7114. Plaintiff Juan Cortes is an individual residing in New York. Cortes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cortes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cortes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7115. Plaintiff David Cosme is an individual residing in New York. Cosme worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cosme has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cosme has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7116. Plaintiff Joel Coss is an individual residing in New York. Coss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7117. Plaintiff Robert Couball is an individual residing in New York. Couball worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Couball has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Couball has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7118. Plaintiff Harold Cousar is an individual residing in New York. Cousar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cousar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cousar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7119. Plaintiff Christina Covington is an individual residing in New Jersey. Covington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Covington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Covington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7120. Plaintiff Philip Cronin is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Cronin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cronin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cronin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7121. Plaintiff Taron Crute is an individual residing in New York. Crute worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crute has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crute has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7122. Plaintiff Juan Cruz is an individual residing in New York. Cruz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cruz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cruz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7123. Plaintiff Jose Cruz is an individual residing in New York. Cruz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2007 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cruz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cruz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7124. Plaintiff Yecson Cruz Reyes is an individual residing in Arkansas. Cruz Reyes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cruz

Reyes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cruz Reyes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7125. Plaintiff Joseph Cucci is an individual residing in New York. Cucci worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cucci has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cucci has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7126. Plaintiff Yonatan Cuevas is an individual residing in New York. Cuevas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cuevas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cuevas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7127. Plaintiff Anthony Curci is an individual residing in New York. Curci worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Curci has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Curci has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7128. Plaintiff David Cuza is an individual residing in New York. Cuza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cuza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cuza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7129. Plaintiff Rockensy Dauphin is an individual residing in New York. Dauphin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dauphin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dauphin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7130. Plaintiff Ricky Davies is an individual residing in New York. Davies worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davies has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davies has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7131. Plaintiff Andre Davis is an individual residing in New York. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7132. Plaintiff Michael Davis is an individual residing in New York. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7133. Plaintiff Tavaun Davis is an individual residing in New York. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7134. Plaintiff Richard Dawes is an individual residing in New York. Dawes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dawes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dawes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7135. Plaintiff Manuel De La Cruz Iii is an individual residing in New York. De La Cruz Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. De La Cruz Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because De La Cruz Iii has driven a vehicle

weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7136. Plaintiff Misael De La Paz Soler is an individual residing in New York. De La Paz Soler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. De La Paz Soler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because De La Paz Soler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7137. Plaintiff Alex Martinez is an individual residing in New York. De Leon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. De Leon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because De Leon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7138. Plaintiff Luigi De Leon, Sr. is an individual residing in New York. De Leon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. De Leon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because De Leon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7139. Plaintiff Thomas December is an individual residing in New York. December worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

December has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because December has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7140. Plaintiff Maria Degiorgio is an individual residing in New York. Degiorgio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Degiorgio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Degiorgio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7141. Plaintiff Jonathan Dejesus is an individual residing in New York. Dejesus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dejesus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dejesus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7142. Plaintiff Sean Delaney is an individual residing in New York. Delaney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Delaney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Delaney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7143. Plaintiff Andrew Delcastillo is an individual residing in Texas. Delcastillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Delcastillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Delcastillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7144. Plaintiff Alexander Deleon is an individual residing in New York. Deleon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deleon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deleon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7145. Plaintiff Joseph Dellaripa Iii is an individual residing in New York. Dellaripa Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dellaripa Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dellaripa Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7146. Plaintiff Michael Delo is an individual residing in New York. Delo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Delo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Delo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7147. Plaintiff Sigmund Derkowski is an individual residing in New York. Derkowski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Derkowski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Derkowski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7148. Plaintiff John Deruscio is an individual residing in New York. Deruscio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deruscio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deruscio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7149. Plaintiff Tiffany Desouza is an individual residing in New York. Desouza worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Desouza has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Desouza has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7150. Plaintiff Rubens Destra is an individual residing in New Jersey. Destra worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Destra has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Destra has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7151. Plaintiff Damaso Diaz is an individual residing in Florida. Diaz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Diaz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Diaz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7152. Plaintiff Michael Dicanio is an individual residing in New York. Dicanio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dicanio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dicanio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7153. Plaintiff Michael Diegelman is an individual residing in New York. Diegelman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Diegelman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Diegelman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7154. Plaintiff Ivaylo Dimitrov is an individual residing in New York. Dimitrov worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dimitrov has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dimitrov has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7155. Plaintiff Scott Disbrow is an individual residing in New York. Disbrow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Disbrow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Disbrow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7156. Plaintiff Kevin Dobson is an individual residing in New York. Dobson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dobson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dobson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7157. Plaintiff Anthony Dominguez is an individual residing in New York. Dominguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dominguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dominguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7158. Plaintiff Mark Donholt is an individual residing in New York. Donholt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Donholt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Donholt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7159. Plaintiff Markeson Dorisma is an individual residing in New York. Dorisma worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dorisma has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dorisma has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7160. Plaintiff Manoach Dorisme is an individual residing in Connecticut. Dorisme worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dorisme has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dorisme has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7161. Plaintiff John Dorozynski is an individual residing in New York. Dorozynski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dorozynski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dorozynski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7162. Plaintiff Marc-Henry Dorsainvil is an individual residing in New York. Dorsainvil worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dorsainvil has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dorsainvil has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7163. Plaintiff Jonathan Dougherty is an individual residing in Connecticut. Dougherty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dougherty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dougherty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7164. Plaintiff Jesse Doyle is an individual residing in New York. Doyle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Doyle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Doyle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7165. Plaintiff Everton Drakes is an individual residing in New York. Drakes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2007 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Drakes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Drakes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7166. Plaintiff Gregory Dunn is an individual residing in New York. Dunn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dunn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dunn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7167. Plaintiff Cory Duquette is an individual residing in New York. Duquette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Duquette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Duquette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7168. Plaintiff Scott E Samsøe is an individual residing in Florida. E Samsøe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. E Samsøe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because E Samsøe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7169. Plaintiff Jonathan Earl is an individual residing in New York. Earl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2004 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Earl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Earl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7170. Plaintiff Antoine Easton is an individual residing in New Jersey. Easton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Easton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Easton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7171. Plaintiff Paul Eggleston is an individual residing in New York. Eggleston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eggleston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eggleston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7172. Plaintiff Paul Ehnle is an individual residing in New York. Ehnle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2009 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ehnle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ehnle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7173. Plaintiff Mohamed Elagami is an individual residing in New York. Elagami worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elagami has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elagami has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7174. Plaintiff Marquise Ellis is an individual residing in New York. Ellis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ellis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ellis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7175. Plaintiff Patrick Ellis is an individual residing in New York. Ellis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2009 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ellis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ellis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7176. Plaintiff Daniel Emma is an individual residing in New York. Emma worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Emma has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Emma has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7177. Plaintiff Robert Emmanuel-Lynch is an individual residing in New York. Emmanuel-Lynch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Emmanuel-Lynch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Emmanuel-Lynch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7178. Plaintiff Wilber Espinal is an individual residing in New York. Espinal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Espinal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Espinal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7179. Plaintiff Edwin Espinal is an individual residing in New York. Espinal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Espinal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Espinal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7180. Plaintiff Ronnie Espinal is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Espinal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Espinal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Espinal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7181. Plaintiff Andrio Estrada is an individual residing in New York. Estrada worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Estrada has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Estrada has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7182. Plaintiff Devon Estrada is an individual residing in New York. Estrada worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Estrada has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Estrada has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7183. Plaintiff Addison Estrella is an individual residing in North Carolina. Estrella worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Estrella has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Estrella has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7184. Plaintiff Patrick Eveillard is an individual residing in New York. Eveillard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eveillard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eveillard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7185. Plaintiff Chris Fabrizi is an individual residing in New York. Fabrizi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fabrizi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fabrizi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7186. Plaintiff Jaime Fana Aponte is an individual residing in New York. Fana Aponte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fana Aponte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fana Aponte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7187. Plaintiff Thomas Fanizzi is an individual residing in New York. Fanizzi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fanizzi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fanizzi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7188. Plaintiff Jesse Faxas is an individual residing in New York. Faxas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Faxas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Faxas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7189. Plaintiff Ramon Fernandez is an individual residing in New York. Fernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2004 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7190. Plaintiff Beyerliz Fernandez is an individual residing in New York. Fernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Fernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7191. Plaintiff Leonardo Fernandez is an individual residing in New York. Fernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7192. Plaintiff Christian Fico is an individual residing in Florida. Fico worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fico has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fico has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7193. Plaintiff Jason Figueiredo is an individual residing in New York. Figueiredo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Figueiredo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Figueiredo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7194. Plaintiff Ulson Filocsaint is an individual residing in New Jersey. Filocsaint worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Filocsaint has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Filocsaint has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7195. Plaintiff Nicholas Finn is an individual residing in New York. Finn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Finn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Finn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7196. Plaintiff Mark Fischer is an individual residing in New York. Fischer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fischer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fischer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7197. Plaintiff Alonzo Fitch is an individual residing in New York. Fitch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fitch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fitch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7198. Plaintiff Edmond Flanagan is an individual residing in New York. Flanagan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Flanagan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Flanagan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7199. Plaintiff Curtis Floyd is an individual residing in New York. Floyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Floyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Floyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7200. Plaintiff Jacqueline Fontaine is an individual residing in New York. Fontaine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fontaine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fontaine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7201. Plaintiff Alberto Fontanez is an individual residing in New York. Fontanez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fontanez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fontanez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7202. Plaintiff Mark Foran is an individual residing in New York. Foran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Foran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Foran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7203. Plaintiff Brandon Fox is an individual residing in New York. Fox worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fox has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fox has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7204. Plaintiff Darion Francis is an individual residing in New York. Francis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Francis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Francis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7205. Plaintiff Kevin Frank is an individual residing in New York. Frank worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frank has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frank has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7206. Plaintiff Hakeem Franklin is an individual residing in New York. Franklin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Franklin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Franklin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7207. Plaintiff Kiaron Frazier is an individual residing in New York. Frazier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frazier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frazier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7208. Plaintiff Marlon Frederick is an individual residing in New York. Frederick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frederick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frederick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7209. Plaintiff Jordan Friedlander is an individual residing in New York. Friedlander worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Friedlander has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Friedlander has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7210. Plaintiff Juan Fuentes-Martinez is an individual residing in New York. Fuentes-Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fuentes-Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fuentes-Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7211. Plaintiff Marquise Fulmore is an individual residing in New York. Fulmore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fulmore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fulmore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7212. Plaintiff Monique Gadley is an individual residing in New York. Gadley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gadley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gadley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7213. Plaintiff Frank Gallo is an individual residing in New York. Gallo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gallo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gallo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7214. Plaintiff Edward Garcia is an individual residing in New York. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7215. Plaintiff Eric Garcia is an individual residing in New York. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7216. Plaintiff Mark Garcia is an individual residing in New York. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7217. Plaintiff Raymond Garcia is an individual residing in New York. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7218. Plaintiff Kelvin Garcia is an individual residing in New York. Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7219. Plaintiff Berny Garcia - Ortiz is an individual residing in New York. Garcia - Ortiz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garcia - Ortiz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garcia - Ortiz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7220. Plaintiff James Garrow is an individual residing in New York. Garrow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garrow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garrow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7221. Plaintiff Carlemile Gay is an individual residing in New York. Gay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7222. Plaintiff Michael Gee is an individual residing in New York. Gee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7223. Plaintiff Eladio Gil Jr I is an individual residing in New York. Gil Jr I worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gil Jr I has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gil Jr I has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7224. Plaintiff Angel Gil Montesino is an individual residing in New York. Gil Montesino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gil Montesino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gil Montesino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7225. Plaintiff Wayne Gill is an individual residing in New York. Gill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2005 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7226. Plaintiff Anthony Gilmore is an individual residing in New York. Gilmore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2004 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilmore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilmore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7227. Plaintiff Michael Gledhill is an individual residing in New York. Gledhill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gledhill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gledhill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7228. Plaintiff Wayne Gleeson is an individual residing in New York. Gleeson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gleeson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gleeson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7229. Plaintiff Nicholas Goban is an individual residing in New York. Goban worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goban has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goban has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7230. Plaintiff Carlos Gomez is an individual residing in Connecticut. Gomez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 1989 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gomez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gomez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7231. Plaintiff Michael Gonzalez is an individual residing in Connecticut. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7232. Plaintiff Anibal Gonzalez is an individual residing in New York. Gonzalez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gonzalez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gonzalez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7233. Plaintiff Timothy Good is an individual residing in New York. Good worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Good has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Good has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7234. Plaintiff Richard Goodwin is an individual residing in New York. Goodwin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Goodwin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Goodwin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7235. Plaintiff Vincent Gordon is an individual residing in New Jersey. Gordon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gordon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gordon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7236. Plaintiff Shanda Gordon is an individual residing in New York. Gordon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gordon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gordon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7237. Plaintiff Kevin Gordon is an individual residing in New York. Gordon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gordon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gordon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7238. Plaintiff Jason Gordon is an individual residing in New York. Gordon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gordon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gordon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7239. Plaintiff Stephen Gorzynski is an individual residing in New York. Gorzynski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2000 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gorzynski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gorzynski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7240. Plaintiff Stephen Graham is an individual residing in New York. Graham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Graham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Graham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7241. Plaintiff Ryan Gratton is an individual residing in New York. Gratton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gratton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gratton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7242. Plaintiff Darik Greaves is an individual residing in New York. Greaves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Greaves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Greaves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7243. Plaintiff Brandy Green is an individual residing in New York. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7244. Plaintiff Brad Green is an individual residing in New York. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7245. Plaintiff George Green is an individual residing in New York. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7246. Plaintiff Piotr Gregorczuk is an individual residing in New York. Gregorczuk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gregorczuk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gregorczuk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7247. Plaintiff Geuseppe Grimaldi is an individual residing in Texas. Grimaldi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grimaldi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grimaldi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7248. Plaintiff Collin Grogan is an individual residing in New York. Grogan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grogan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grogan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7249. Plaintiff Michael Groover is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Groover worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Groover has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Groover has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7250. Plaintiff Andrew Grosso is an individual residing in New York. Grosso worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grosso has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grosso has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7251. Plaintiff Bryan Grounds is an individual residing in New York. Grounds worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2005 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grounds has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grounds has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7252. Plaintiff Mario Guerrero is an individual residing in New York. Guerrero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guerrero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guerrero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7253. Plaintiff Brandon Guest is an individual residing in New York. Guest worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guest has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guest has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7254. Plaintiff Charles Guiliano is an individual residing in New York. Guiliano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guiliano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guiliano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7255. Plaintiff Mosely Guity is an individual residing in New York. Guity worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guity has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guity has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7256. Plaintiff Brett Gurnick is an individual residing in New York. Gurnick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gurnick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gurnick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7257. Plaintiff Anthony Gutierrez is an individual residing in New York. Gutierrez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gutierrez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gutierrez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7258. Plaintiff Jose Guzman is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Guzman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York and Pennsylvania from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guzman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guzman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7259. Plaintiff Jerry Guzman is an individual residing in New York. Guzman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guzman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guzman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7260. Plaintiff Mazen Hamdan is an individual residing in Florida. Hamdan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamdan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamdan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7261. Plaintiff Antoine Hanberry is an individual residing in New York. Hanberry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hanberry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hanberry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7262. Plaintiff Forest Hancock is an individual residing in California. Hancock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York and North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hancock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hancock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7263. Plaintiff Barbara Hargrove is an individual residing in Virginia. Hargrove worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hargrove has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hargrove has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7264. Plaintiff Hosea Harris is an individual residing in New York. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7265. Plaintiff Ryan Harris is an individual residing in New York. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7266. Plaintiff Jerry Harrison is an individual residing in Wyoming. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York and Wyoming but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7267. Plaintiff Stephen Harry is an individual residing in New York. Harry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7268. Plaintiff Khalif Hart is an individual residing in New York. Hart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7269. Plaintiff Anthony Hartwell is an individual residing in Georgia. Hartwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hartwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hartwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7270. Plaintiff Eric Hawley is an individual residing in New York. Hawley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7271. Plaintiff Aurelia Hayduke is an individual residing in New York. Hayduke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayduke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayduke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7272. Plaintiff Jackson Hayes is an individual residing in New York. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7273. Plaintiff Joseph Hayes is an individual residing in New York. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7274. Plaintiff Willis Hayslett is an individual residing in New York. Hayslett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayslett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayslett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7275. Plaintiff Moshe Hazan is an individual residing in New York. Hazan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2000 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hazan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hazan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7276. Plaintiff Michael Helwig is an individual residing in New York. Helwig worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Helwig has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Helwig has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7277. Plaintiff John Hemmy is an individual residing in New York. Hemmy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hemmy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hemmy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7278. Plaintiff Jonathan Henderson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Henderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7279. Plaintiff Jason Hennig is an individual residing in New York. Hennig worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hennig has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hennig has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7280. Plaintiff Yomibel Hererra Silvestre is an individual residing in Illinois. Hererra Silvestre worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hererra Silvestre has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hererra Silvestre has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7281. Plaintiff Shane Herr is an individual residing in New York. Herr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7282. Plaintiff Kaddier Herrans Pagab is an individual residing in New York. Herrans Pagab worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herrans Pagab has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herrans Pagab has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7283. Plaintiff Barrington Hhunter is an individual residing in New York. Hhunter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hhunter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hhunter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7284. Plaintiff Arkem Hicks is an individual residing in New York. Hicks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hicks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hicks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7285. Plaintiff Anthony Hidalgo is an individual residing in New York. Hidalgo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hidalgo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hidalgo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7286. Plaintiff Jonathan Hill is an individual residing in Florida. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7287. Plaintiff Scott Hines is an individual residing in New York. Hines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7288. Plaintiff Brett Hoffay is an individual residing in New York. Hoffay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hoffay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hoffay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7289. Plaintiff David Hogan is an individual residing in New York. Hogan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hogan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hogan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7290. Plaintiff Craig Horzempa is an individual residing in New York. Horzempa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Horzempa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Horzempa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7291. Plaintiff Michelle Hough is an individual residing in Georgia. Hough worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hough has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hough has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7292. Plaintiff Christopher Howard is an individual residing in Georgia. Howard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7293. Plaintiff Yasmine Howell is an individual residing in New York. Howell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7294. Plaintiff Dexter Hoyte is an individual residing in New York. Hoyte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hoyte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hoyte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7295. Plaintiff Brendan Hubbard is an individual residing in New York. Hubbard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hubbard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hubbard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7296. Plaintiff Ronald Hubbell is an individual residing in New York. Hubbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hubbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hubbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7297. Plaintiff Calvin Hudson is an individual residing in New York. Hudson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hudson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hudson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7298. Plaintiff James Hughes is an individual residing in New York. Hughes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hughes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hughes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7299. Plaintiff Eugene Huguens is an individual residing in New York. Huguens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Huguens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Huguens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7300. Plaintiff Nichol Iacobazzi is an individual residing in New York. Iacobazzi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Iacobazzi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Iacobazzi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7301. Plaintiff Spencer Ingram is an individual residing in New York. Ingram worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ingram has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ingram has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7302. Plaintiff Bryan Isbell is an individual residing in New York. Isbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Isbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Isbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7303. Plaintiff Shawn Jarrett is an individual residing in Virginia. Jarrett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jarrett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jarrett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7304. Plaintiff Wendy Jean-Louis is an individual residing in New York. Jean-Louis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jean-Louis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jean-Louis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7305. Plaintiff Reginald Jenkins is an individual residing in New York. Jenkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jenkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jenkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7306. Plaintiff Paul Jimenez is an individual residing in New York. Jimenez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jimenez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jimenez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7307. Plaintiff Jeremy Jock is an individual residing in New York. Jock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7308. Plaintiff Richie Jodharam is an individual residing in Indiana. Jodharam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jodharam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jodharam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7309. Plaintiff John Johnson is an individual residing in New York. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7310. Plaintiff Ezra Johnson is an individual residing in New York. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7311. Plaintiff Danny Johnson is an individual residing in Maryland. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7312. Plaintiff Keith Johnson II is an individual residing in New York. Johnson II worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson II has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson II has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7313. Plaintiff Scott Johntry is an individual residing in New York. Johntry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johntry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johntry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7314. Plaintiff Vinson Jones is an individual residing in New York. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7315. Plaintiff Equan Jones is an individual residing in New York. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7316. Plaintiff Allan Joseph is an individual residing in New York. Joseph worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joseph has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joseph has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7317. Plaintiff Kehvyn Joslyn is an individual residing in New York. Joslyn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joslyn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joslyn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7318. Plaintiff Robert Jurbala is an individual residing in New York. Jurbala worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jurbala has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jurbala has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7319. Plaintiff Daniel Kant is an individual residing in New York. Kant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7320. Plaintiff Shyrene Kashmerick is an individual residing in New York. Kashmerick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kashmerick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kashmerick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7321. Plaintiff Robert Kassel is an individual residing in New York. Kassel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kassel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kassel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7322. Plaintiff Alfred Kelley is an individual residing in New York. Kelley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7323. Plaintiff Christopher Kelly is an individual residing in New York. Kelly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7324. Plaintiff Edward Kelly is an individual residing in New York. Kelly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 1998 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7325. Plaintiff Seung Kim is an individual residing in New Jersey. Kim worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kim has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kim has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7326. Plaintiff Johancy King is an individual residing in New York. King worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. King has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because King has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7327. Plaintiff Michael Kirkland is an individual residing in New York. Kirkland worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kirkland has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kirkland has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7328. Plaintiff Boris Kitaychik is an individual residing in New York. Kitaychik worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2004 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kitaychik has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kitaychik has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7329. Plaintiff Jacob Klein is an individual residing in New York. Klein worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Klein has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Klein has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7330. Plaintiff Kristina Knapp is an individual residing in New York. Knapp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knapp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knapp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7331. Plaintiff Kenneth Knickerbocker is an individual residing in New York. Knickerbocker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knickerbocker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knickerbocker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7332. Plaintiff Matthew Knowles is an individual residing in New York. Knowles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knowles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knowles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7333. Plaintiff James Kontak is an individual residing in New York. Kontak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kontak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kontak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7334. Plaintiff John Kosinsky is an individual residing in New York. Kosinsky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kosinsky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kosinsky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7335. Plaintiff Derek Koszuta is an individual residing in New York. Koszuta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Koszuta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Koszuta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7336. Plaintiff Jeremy Krauss is an individual residing in New Jersey. Krauss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Krauss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Krauss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7337. Plaintiff Yuriy Kupetsky is an individual residing in New York. Kupetsky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kupetsky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kupetsky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7338. Plaintiff Tomas Kuzma is an individual residing in Illinois. Kuzma worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2002 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kuzma has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kuzma has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7339. Plaintiff Bodwin Kwanda is an individual residing in New York. Kwanda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kwanda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kwanda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7340. Plaintiff Shane Lafountain is an individual residing in New York. Lafountain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lafountain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lafountain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7341. Plaintiff Jamie Lafountain is an individual residing in New York. Lafountain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lafountain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lafountain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7342. Plaintiff Adrian Lamberty is an individual residing in New York. Lamberty worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lamberty has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lamberty has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7343. Plaintiff John Lambrose is an individual residing in Florida. Lambrose worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lambrose has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lambrose has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7344. Plaintiff Anthony Lamonica is an individual residing in New York. Lamonica worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lamonica has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lamonica has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7345. Plaintiff Joshua Lana is an individual residing in Michigan. Lana worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York and Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lana has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lana has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7346. Plaintiff Lamont Lanham is an individual residing in New Jersey. Lanham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lanham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lanham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7347. Plaintiff Mardochee Lavalas is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Lavalas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lavalas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lavalas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7348. Plaintiff Kareem Lawrence is an individual residing in New York. Lawrence worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawrence has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawrence has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7349. Plaintiff Allan Leandre is an individual residing in New York. Leandre worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leandre has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leandre has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7350. Plaintiff Jamie Leblanc is an individual residing in Virginia. Leblanc worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leblanc has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leblanc has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7351. Plaintiff Kelvin Lee is an individual residing in New York. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7352. Plaintiff Brandon Lee is an individual residing in New York. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7353. Plaintiff Randolph Leidl is an individual residing in New York. Leidl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leidl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leidl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7354. Plaintiff Tamika Lemonious Campbell is an individual residing in New York. Lemonious Campbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lemonious Campbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lemonious Campbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7355. Plaintiff Sharieff Lenihan is an individual residing in New York. Lenihan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lenihan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lenihan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7356. Plaintiff Kyle Lent is an individual residing in South Carolina. Lent worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lent has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lent has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7357. Plaintiff William Leonick is an individual residing in Delaware. Leonick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leonick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leonick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7358. Plaintiff Louis Lercara is an individual residing in New York. Lercara worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lercara has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lercara has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7359. Plaintiff Quan-Tez Lewis is an individual residing in New York. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7360. Plaintiff Mike Licata is an individual residing in New York. Licata worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Licata has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Licata has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7361. Plaintiff Daniel Lindsey is an individual residing in Georgia. Lindsey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lindsey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lindsey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7362. Plaintiff Jesus Liriano Guzman is an individual residing in New York. Liriano Guzman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Liriano Guzman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Liriano Guzman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7363. Plaintiff Jamel Lloyd is an individual residing in New York. Lloyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lloyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lloyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7364. Plaintiff Gavin Lloyd is an individual residing in New York. Lloyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2004 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lloyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lloyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7365. Plaintiff Joseph Logan is an individual residing in New York. Logan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Logan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Logan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7366. Plaintiff John Logan is an individual residing in New York. Logan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Logan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Logan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7367. Plaintiff Carlos Londono is an individual residing in New York. Londono worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Londono has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Londono has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7368. Plaintiff Freddie Lopez is an individual residing in New York. Lopez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lopez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7369. Plaintiff Julian Lopez Coronel is an individual residing in New York. Lopez Coronel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Lopez Coronel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lopez Coronel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7370. Plaintiff Robert Lorini is an individual residing in New York. Lorini worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lorini has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lorini has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7371. Plaintiff Lance Losapio is an individual residing in New York. Losapio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2005 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Losapio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Losapio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7372. Plaintiff Kevin Lovell is an individual residing in New York. Lovell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lovell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lovell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7373. Plaintiff Spenchelle Lowery is an individual residing in New York. Lowery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lowery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lowery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7374. Plaintiff Luis Lozano Padierna is an individual residing in Florida. Lozano Padierna worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lozano Padierna has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lozano Padierna has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7375. Plaintiff Richard Lubecki is an individual residing in New York. Lubecki worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lubecki has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lubecki has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7376. Plaintiff Victor Lum is an individual residing in New York. Lum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7377. Plaintiff Luis Luna is an individual residing in New York. Luna worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luna has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luna has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7378. Plaintiff Alex Luna-Garcia is an individual residing in New York. Luna-Garcia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luna-Garcia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luna-Garcia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7379. Plaintiff Valentin Luzon is an individual residing in New Jersey. Luzon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luzon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luzon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7380. Plaintiff Dalton Lyons is an individual residing in New York. Lyons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7381. Plaintiff John Lyons is an individual residing in New York. Lyons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7382. Plaintiff Shawn Maclorrain is an individual residing in New York. Maclorrain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maclorrain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maclorrain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7383. Plaintiff Anthony Maggio Jr is an individual residing in New York. Maggio Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maggio Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maggio Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7384. Plaintiff Rajendra Mahadeo is an individual residing in New York. Mahadeo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mahadeo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mahadeo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7385. Plaintiff Lisa Mahoney is an individual residing in New York. Mahoney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mahoney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mahoney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7386. Plaintiff Kenneth Mailhot is an individual residing in Vermont. Mailhot worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mailhot has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mailhot has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7387. Plaintiff Larry Mallett is an individual residing in New York. Mallett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 1989 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mallett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mallett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7388. Plaintiff Patrick Malone is an individual residing in New York. Malone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Malone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Malone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7389. Plaintiff Derek Maltese is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Maltese worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maltese has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maltese has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7390. Plaintiff Leonard Manginelli is an individual residing in New York. Manginelli worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Manginelli has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Manginelli has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7391. Plaintiff Vinny Manno is an individual residing in New York. Manno worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Manno has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Manno has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7392. Plaintiff Juan Manon is an individual residing in New York. Manon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Manon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Manon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7393. Plaintiff Douglas Marchelos is an individual residing in Florida. Marchelos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Marchelos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marchelos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7394. Plaintiff Kevin Marquez is an individual residing in New York. Marquez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marquez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marquez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7395. Plaintiff Clayton Marte is an individual residing in New York. Marte worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marte has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marte has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7396. Plaintiff Franyerd Marti is an individual residing in Florida. Marti worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marti has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marti has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7397. Plaintiff Eduardo Martiinez is an individual residing in New York. Martiinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2004 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martiinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martiinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7398. Plaintiff Jason Martinez is an individual residing in New York. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7399. Plaintiff Diomedes Martinez is an individual residing in New York. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2004 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7400. Plaintiff Silvio Martinez is an individual residing in New York. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7401. Plaintiff Joseph Martins is an individual residing in New York. Martins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7402. Plaintiff Ashley Marvin is an individual residing in New York. Marvin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marvin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marvin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7403. Plaintiff Jonathan Mata is an individual residing in New York. Mata worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mata has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mata has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7404. Plaintiff Geraldo Mateo is an individual residing in Florida. Mateo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mateo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mateo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7405. Plaintiff Manuel Mateo is an individual residing in New York. Mateo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mateo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mateo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7406. Plaintiff Tristan Matthews is an individual residing in New York. Matthews worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Matthews has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Matthews has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7407. Plaintiff David Maurer is an individual residing in New York. Maurer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maurer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maurer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7408. Plaintiff Edgar Mays is an individual residing in Nevada. Mays worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mays has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mays has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7409. Plaintiff Ali Mazeh is an individual residing in New York. Mazeh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mazeh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mazeh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7410. Plaintiff Robert Mccaffrey is an individual residing in New York. Mccaffrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccaffrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccaffrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7411. Plaintiff Penny Mccarthy is an individual residing in New York. Mccarthy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccarthy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccarthy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7412. Plaintiff John McCormick is an individual residing in New York. McCormick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McCormick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McCormick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7413. Plaintiff Denise McDonald is an individual residing in New York. McDonald worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McDonald has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McDonald has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7414. Plaintiff George Mcelroy is an individual residing in New York. Mcelroy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcelroy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcelroy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7415. Plaintiff Nicholas McGovern is an individual residing in New York. McGovern worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McGovern has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McGovern has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7416. Plaintiff John McGraw is an individual residing in New York. McGraw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McGraw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McGraw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7417. Plaintiff Ryan Mckinney is an individual residing in New York. Mckinney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mckinney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckinney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7418. Plaintiff Kenneth McNally is an individual residing in New York. McNally worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McNally has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McNally has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7419. Plaintiff Charlene Mehnert is an individual residing in New York. Mehnert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mehnert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mehnert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7420. Plaintiff Paul Meikle is an individual residing in New York. Meikle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meikle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meikle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7421. Plaintiff Gabriel Mejias is an individual residing in New York. Mejias worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mejias has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mejias has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7422. Plaintiff Damian Melendez is an individual residing in Connecticut. Melendez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Melendez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Melendez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7423. Plaintiff Martin Mena is an individual residing in New York. Mena worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mena has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mena has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7424. Plaintiff Hector Mendez is an individual residing in New York. Mendez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mendez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mendez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7425. Plaintiff Rafael Mendez is an individual residing in New York. Mendez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mendez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mendez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7426. Plaintiff Starlin Mendez Nunez is an individual residing in New York. Mendez Nunez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mendez Nunez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mendez Nunez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7427. Plaintiff Christian Mercado is an individual residing in New York. Mercado worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mercado has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mercado has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7428. Plaintiff Roberto Merino is an individual residing in North Carolina. Merino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Merino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Merino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7429. Plaintiff Marc Merrill is an individual residing in Florida. Merrill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2008 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Merrill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Merrill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7430. Plaintiff Marat Mesh is an individual residing in New Jersey. Mesh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mesh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mesh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7431. Plaintiff William Meyer is an individual residing in New York. Meyer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Meyer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Meyer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7432. Plaintiff Kyle Mickens is an individual residing in New York. Mickens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mickens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mickens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7433. Plaintiff Richard Mikulski is an individual residing in New York. Mikulski worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mikulski has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mikulski has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7434. Plaintiff Matthew Milde is an individual residing in New York. Milde worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Milde has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Milde has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7435. Plaintiff John Miller is an individual residing in New York. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7436. Plaintiff Tim Miller is an individual residing in New York. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7437. Plaintiff Stanley Miller is an individual residing in Florida. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 1997 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7438. Plaintiff Mark Minasi is an individual residing in New York. Minasi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Minasi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Minasi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7439. Plaintiff Josue Minaya is an individual residing in New York. Minaya worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Minaya has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Minaya has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7440. Plaintiff John Miner is an individual residing in New York. Miner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7441. Plaintiff James Miner is an individual residing in New York. Miner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7442. Plaintiff Jerome Miner II is an individual residing in New York. Miner II worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miner II has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miner II has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7443. Plaintiff Carl Miosi is an individual residing in New York. Miosi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miosi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miosi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7444. Plaintiff Charles Missoh is an individual residing in New York. Missoh worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Missoh has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Missoh has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7445. Plaintiff Mike Mobus is an individual residing in New York. Mobus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mobus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mobus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7446. Plaintiff Frank Monson is an individual residing in New York. Monson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Monson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Monson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7447. Plaintiff Cristian Montano is an individual residing in New York. Montano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Montano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Montano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7448. Plaintiff Andrew Monteverde is an individual residing in New York. Monteverde worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Monteverde has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Monteverde has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7449. Plaintiff Du-Wayne Moody is an individual residing in New York. Moody worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moody has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moody has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7450. Plaintiff Scott Moon is an individual residing in New York. Moon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7451. Plaintiff Thomas Morabito is an individual residing in New York. Morabito worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 1990 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morabito has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morabito has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7452. Plaintiff Kenneth Moran is an individual residing in New York. Moran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7453. Plaintiff Emanuel Moreno is an individual residing in New York. Moreno worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moreno has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moreno has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7454. Plaintiff Marcus Morgan is an individual residing in New York. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7455. Plaintiff Rohon Morgan is an individual residing in New York. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7456. Plaintiff Nakita Morgan is an individual residing in New York. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7457. Plaintiff Joseph Morris is an individual residing in New York. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7458. Plaintiff Charles Moss is an individual residing in New York. Moss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7459. Plaintiff James Mueller is an individual residing in New York. Mueller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2001 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mueller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mueller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7460. Plaintiff Akiel Mulgrave is an individual residing in Georgia. Mulgrave worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mulgrave has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mulgrave has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7461. Plaintiff Alexandria Muro is an individual residing in New York. Muro worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Muro has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Muro has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7462. Plaintiff George Murphy is an individual residing in New York. Murphy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murphy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murphy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7463. Plaintiff Steven Myrick is an individual residing in New York. Myrick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Myrick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Myrick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7464. Plaintiff Joseph Myrttil is an individual residing in New York. Myrttil worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Myrttil has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Myrttil has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7465. Plaintiff Vladimir Nebrat is an individual residing in New York. Nebrat worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nebrat has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nebrat has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7466. Plaintiff Martin Nobles is an individual residing in New York. Nobles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2001 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nobles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nobles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7467. Plaintiff William Norman is an individual residing in New York. Norman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 1992 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Norman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Norman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7468. Plaintiff Luis Nunez is an individual residing in New York. Nunez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nunez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nunez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7469. Plaintiff Okechukwu Nwofor is an individual residing in New York. Nwofor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nwofor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nwofor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7470. Plaintiff Johnny Ocasio is an individual residing in New York. Ocasio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ocasio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ocasio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7471. Plaintiff Jeffri Olivo is an individual residing in New Jersey. Olivo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olivo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olivo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7472. Plaintiff Garfield Olliver is an individual residing in New York. Olliver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olliver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olliver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7473. Plaintiff Daniel Olmo is an individual residing in New York. Olmo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olmo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olmo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7474. Plaintiff John Olsen is an individual residing in New York. Olsen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Olsen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Olsen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7475. Plaintiff Julio Onofre is an individual residing in New York. Onofre worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Onofre has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Onofre has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7476. Plaintiff Vadym Onyshchenko is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Onyshchenko worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Onyshchenko has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Onyshchenko has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7477. Plaintiff Jean Orisma is an individual residing in New Jersey. Orisma worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Orisma has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Orisma has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7478. Plaintiff Jeleal Osbourne is an individual residing in New York. Osbourne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Osbourne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Osbourne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7479. Plaintiff John Ostune is an individual residing in New York. Ostune worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ostune has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ostune has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7480. Plaintiff Dale Outtrim is an individual residing in New York. Outtrim worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Outtrim has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Outtrim has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7481. Plaintiff George Pacheco is an individual residing in New York. Pacheco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pacheco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pacheco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7482. Plaintiff Jason Chisholm is an individual residing in New York. Packwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Packwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Packwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7483. Plaintiff Pedro Padovani is an individual residing in New York. Padovani worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Padovani has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Padovani has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7484. Plaintiff Jorge Paez is an individual residing in New York. Paez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Paez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Paez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7485. Plaintiff Erny Pagan is an individual residing in New York. Pagan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pagan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pagan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7486. Plaintiff Kaddier Pagan is an individual residing in New York. Pagan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pagan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pagan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7487. Plaintiff James Paigo Jr. is an individual residing in New York. Paigo Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Paigo Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Paigo Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7488. Plaintiff Ricky Palmer is an individual residing in New York. Palmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Palmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Palmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7489. Plaintiff Craig Panzica is an individual residing in New York. Panzica worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Panzica has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Panzica has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7490. Plaintiff Alexander Paredes is an individual residing in New York. Paredes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Paredes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Paredes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7491. Plaintiff Alban Parllaku is an individual residing in New York. Parllaku worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parllaku has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parllaku has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7492. Plaintiff Cheryl Parton is an individual residing in New York. Parton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7493. Plaintiff Angel Pascasio is an individual residing in North Carolina. Pascasio worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pascasio has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pascasio has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7494. Plaintiff Christopher Paulino is an individual residing in New York. Paulino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Paulino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Paulino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7495. Plaintiff Jeritson Paulino is an individual residing in New York. Paulino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Paulino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Paulino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7496. Plaintiff Carlos Pedrosa is an individual residing in New York. Pedrosa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pedrosa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pedrosa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7497. Plaintiff Johnny Peguero is an individual residing in New York. Peguero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peguero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peguero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7498. Plaintiff Kurt Peltier is an individual residing in New York. Peltier worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peltier has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peltier has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7499. Plaintiff Eduard Pena Santana is an individual residing in New York. Pena Santana worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pena Santana has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pena Santana has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7500. Plaintiff Justin Peralta is an individual residing in New York. Peralta worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peralta has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peralta has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7501. Plaintiff Markus Perez is an individual residing in New York. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7502. Plaintiff Jose Perez is an individual residing in New York. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7503. Plaintiff Ferdinand Perez is an individual residing in New York. Perez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7504. Plaintiff Fabian Perlaza Balgazar is an individual residing in New York. Perlaza Balgazar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perlaza Balgazar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perlaza Balgazar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7505. Plaintiff Vincent Perri is an individual residing in New York. Perri worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2002 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perri has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perri has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7506. Plaintiff Christopher Peterson is an individual residing in New York. Peterson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Peterson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Peterson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7507. Plaintiff Dmitri Petreanu is an individual residing in New York. Petreanu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Petreanu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Petreanu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7508. Plaintiff Kyle Pettit is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Pettit worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pettit has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pettit has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7509. Plaintiff Josh Pickreign is an individual residing in New York. Pickreign worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pickreign has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pickreign has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7510. Plaintiff William Piechocki is an individual residing in New York. Piechocki worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Piechocki has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Piechocki has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7511. Plaintiff Fred Piperata is an individual residing in New York. Piperata worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Piperata has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Piperata has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7512. Plaintiff Shawn Pitts is an individual residing in New York. Pitts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pitts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pitts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7513. Plaintiff Paul Pizzo is an individual residing in New York. Pizzo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pizzo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pizzo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7514. Plaintiff Philip Plunkett is an individual residing in New York. Plunkett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Plunkett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Plunkett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7515. Plaintiff Franklin Polanco is an individual residing in New Jersey. Polanco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polanco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polanco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7516. Plaintiff Felix Polanco, Sr. is an individual residing in New York. Polanco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polanco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polanco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7517. Plaintiff Noelfi Polanco Bonilla, Sr. is an individual residing in New York. Polanco Bonilla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polanco Bonilla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polanco Bonilla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7518. Plaintiff Daniel Poreda is an individual residing in New York. Poreda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Poreda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Poreda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7519. Plaintiff Jamarl Poulson is an individual residing in New York. Poulson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Poulson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Poulson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7520. Plaintiff Christopher Powell is an individual residing in New York. Powell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7521. Plaintiff Brian Powers is an individual residing in New York. Powers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2009 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7522. Plaintiff Barry Powers is an individual residing in New Jersey. Powers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7523. Plaintiff Anthony Prentice is an individual residing in New York. Prentice worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prentice has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prentice has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7524. Plaintiff Dennis Profitt is an individual residing in New York. Profitt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Profitt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Profitt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7525. Plaintiff Wesley Pucci is an individual residing in New York. Pucci worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pucci has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pucci has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7526. Plaintiff Robert Putman is an individual residing in New York. Putman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Putman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Putman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7527. Plaintiff Dirk Radnai is an individual residing in New York. Radnai worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Radnai has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Radnai has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7528. Plaintiff Kevin Ragnauth is an individual residing in New York. Ragnauth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ragnauth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ragnauth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7529. Plaintiff Ariel Ramirez is an individual residing in New York. Ramirez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2009 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramirez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramirez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7530. Plaintiff Thomas Starro is an individual residing in New York. Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7531. Plaintiff Rafael Ramos is an individual residing in New York. Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7532. Plaintiff Ricardo Ramos is an individual residing in New York. Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7533. Plaintiff Roberto Ramos is an individual residing in New York. Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7534. Plaintiff Justin Randt is an individual residing in New York. Randt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Randt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Randt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7535. Plaintiff Franklin Rauch is an individual residing in New York. Rauch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rauch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rauch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7536. Plaintiff Corey Ravenel is an individual residing in New York. Ravenel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ravenel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ravenel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7537. Plaintiff Fayyad Reda is an individual residing in Florida. Reda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7538. Plaintiff Ramel Reed is an individual residing in New York. Reed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7539. Plaintiff Zachary Reese is an individual residing in New York. Reese worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reese has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reese has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7540. Plaintiff Mark Reeves is an individual residing in New York. Reeves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 1992 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reeves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reeves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7541. Plaintiff Crystal Reid is an individual residing in New York. Reid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7542. Plaintiff Kevin Reitz is an individual residing in New York. Reitz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reitz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reitz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7543. Plaintiff Raymond Rennie is an individual residing in New York. Rennie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rennie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rennie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7544. Plaintiff Thomas Reynolds is an individual residing in New York. Reynolds worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2009 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reynolds has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reynolds has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7545. Plaintiff Amaury Reynoso is an individual residing in New York. Reynoso worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reynoso has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reynoso has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7546. Plaintiff Pierre Richard is an individual residing in New York. Richard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Richard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Richard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7547. Plaintiff Thomas Riley is an individual residing in New York. Riley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 1999 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7548. Plaintiff Mario Rincon is an individual residing in New York. Rincon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rincon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rincon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7549. Plaintiff Kevin Rios is an individual residing in New York. Rios worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rios has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rios has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7550. Plaintiff Sandra Rios is an individual residing in New York. Rios worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rios has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rios has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7551. Plaintiff David Schiff is an individual residing in New York. Ritter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ritter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ritter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7552. Plaintiff Alberto Rivera is an individual residing in New York. Rivera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rivera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rivera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7553. Plaintiff Carlos Rivera is an individual residing in New York. Rivera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rivera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rivera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7554. Plaintiff Jose Riveras is an individual residing in New York. Riveras worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riveras has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riveras has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7555. Plaintiff Ronald Rizzo is an individual residing in New York. Rizzo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rizzo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rizzo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7556. Plaintiff Paul Roach is an individual residing in New York. Roach worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roach has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roach has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7557. Plaintiff Albert Roberts is an individual residing in New York. Roberts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7558. Plaintiff Joseph Robertson is an individual residing in New Mexico. Robertson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robertson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robertson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7559. Plaintiff Keith Robinson is an individual residing in New York. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7560. Plaintiff Andre Robles is an individual residing in North Carolina. Robles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7561. Plaintiff Richard Rodriguez is an individual residing in New York. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7562. Plaintiff Yadelis Rodriguez is an individual residing in Arizona. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7563. Plaintiff Michael Rodriguez is an individual residing in New York. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7564. Plaintiff Joel Rodriguez is an individual residing in New York. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7565. Plaintiff Jose Rodriguez is an individual residing in New York. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7566. Plaintiff Anwar Rodriguez is an individual residing in New York. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2003 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7567. Plaintiff Paul Rodriguez is an individual residing in New York. Rodriguez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7568. Plaintiff Stevens Rodriguez Iv is an individual residing in New York. Rodriguez Iv worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rodriguez Iv has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rodriguez Iv has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7569. Plaintiff Daniel Rogers is an individual residing in New York. Rogers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rogers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rogers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7570. Plaintiff Joe Roman is an individual residing in New York. Roman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7571. Plaintiff Jonathan Rosado Feliciano is an individual residing in New York. Rosado Feliciano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosado Feliciano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosado Feliciano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7572. Plaintiff John Rosario is an individual residing in Connecticut. Rosario worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosario has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosario has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7573. Plaintiff Tyler Rosler is an individual residing in New York. Rosler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rosler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rosler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7574. Plaintiff Michael Royster is an individual residing in New York. Royster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Royster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Royster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7575. Plaintiff Jarrett Royster is an individual residing in New York. Royster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Royster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Royster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7576. Plaintiff Brian Rudow is an individual residing in North Carolina. Rudow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rudow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rudow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7577. Plaintiff Miguel Rueda is an individual residing in New Jersey. Rueda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rueda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rueda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7578. Plaintiff Brandon Ruggiero is an individual residing in New York. Ruggiero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ruggiero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ruggiero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7579. Plaintiff Michael Rusciano is an individual residing in Connecticut. Rusciano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rusciano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rusciano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7580. Plaintiff Francisco Salinas Cazares is an individual residing in New York. Salinas Cazares worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salinas Cazares has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salinas Cazares has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7581. Plaintiff Cody Sanford is an individual residing in New York. Sanford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7582. Plaintiff Salvatore Sangeniti is an individual residing in New York. Sangeniti worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sangeniti has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sangeniti has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7583. Plaintiff Rob Santa Ines is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Santa Ines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santa Ines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santa Ines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7584. Plaintiff Jose Santana is an individual residing in Georgia. Santana worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santana has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santana has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7585. Plaintiff Ryan Santelli is an individual residing in South Carolina. Santelli worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santelli has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santelli has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7586. Plaintiff Jeancarlo Santi is an individual residing in New York. Santi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7587. Plaintiff Martin Santiago is an individual residing in New York. Santiago worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santiago has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santiago has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7588. Plaintiff J Santiagocastillo is an individual residing in New York. Santiagocastillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santiagocastillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santiagocastillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7589. Plaintiff Robert Santini is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Santini worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2000 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Santini has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Santini has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7590. Plaintiff Hector Saravia is an individual residing in New York. Saravia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saravia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saravia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7591. Plaintiff Ronald Saravia is an individual residing in New York. Saravia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saravia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saravia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7592. Plaintiff Maya Sauberman is an individual residing in New York. Sauberman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sauberman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sauberman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7593. Plaintiff Anthony Saunders is an individual residing in New York. Saunders worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saunders has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saunders has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7594. Plaintiff Scott Savage is an individual residing in South Carolina. Savage worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2007 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Savage has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Savage has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7595. Plaintiff Ryan Scarisbrick is an individual residing in New York. Scarisbrick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scarisbrick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scarisbrick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7596. Plaintiff William Scharp is an individual residing in New York. Scharp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scharp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scharp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7597. Plaintiff Bryan Schefferine is an individual residing in New York. Schefferine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Schefferine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schefferine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7598. Plaintiff Anthony Schmidt is an individual residing in Florida. Schmidt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schmidt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schmidt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7599. Plaintiff Brian Semler is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Semler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York and Massachusetts from approximately 2022 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Semler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Semler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7600. Plaintiff Scott Sender is an individual residing in New York. Sender worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sender has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sender has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7601. Plaintiff Jonathan Sessa is an individual residing in New York. Sessa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sessa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sessa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7602. Plaintiff James Sharkey is an individual residing in New York. Sharkey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sharkey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sharkey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7603. Plaintiff Brandon Shaver is an individual residing in New York. Shaver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shaver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shaver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7604. Plaintiff Rashawn Shaw is an individual residing in New York. Shaw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shaw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shaw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7605. Plaintiff Avery Shelmidine is an individual residing in Florida. Shelmidine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shelmidine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shelmidine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7606. Plaintiff Tony Shelton is an individual residing in New York. Shelton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2009 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shelton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shelton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7607. Plaintiff Joseph Sheppard is an individual residing in New York. Sheppard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sheppard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sheppard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7608. Plaintiff Julio Shicay is an individual residing in Connecticut. Shicay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shicay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shicay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7609. Plaintiff Dakota Shultis is an individual residing in New York. Shultis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shultis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shultis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7610. Plaintiff Michael Siciliano is an individual residing in New York. Siciliano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Siciliano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Siciliano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7611. Plaintiff Andres Silva is an individual residing in New York. Silva worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Silva has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Silva has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7612. Plaintiff Charles Simmons is an individual residing in New York. Simmons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Simmons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Simmons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7613. Plaintiff Gaoussou Sissoko is an individual residing in New Jersey. Sissoko worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sissoko has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sissoko has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7614. Plaintiff Corey Smith is an individual residing in New York. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2006 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7615. Plaintiff Cedain Smith is an individual residing in New York. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7616. Plaintiff Adriene Smith is an individual residing in New York. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7617. Plaintiff Cody Smith is an individual residing in New York. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7618. Plaintiff Ronald Snell is an individual residing in New York. Snell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7619. Plaintiff Nicole Snyder is an individual residing in New York. Snyder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snyder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snyder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7620. Plaintiff James Snyder is an individual residing in New York. Snyder worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snyder has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snyder has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7621. Plaintiff Steven Soderstrom is an individual residing in New York. Soderstrom worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soderstrom has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soderstrom has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7622. Plaintiff Alejandro Solis is an individual residing in New York. Solis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Solis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Solis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7623. Plaintiff Diamonds Sommerville is an individual residing in New York. Sommerville worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sommerville has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sommerville has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7624. Plaintiff Joshua Soto is an individual residing in New York. Soto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 1996 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7625. Plaintiff Princelli Soto is an individual residing in New York. Soto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7626. Plaintiff Princelli Soto is an individual residing in New York. Soto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7627. Plaintiff Tammy Sparling is an individual residing in New York. Sparling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sparling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sparling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7628. Plaintiff Jabneel Springer is an individual residing in Virginia. Springer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Springer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Springer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7629. Plaintiff John Stafford is an individual residing in New York. Stafford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stafford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stafford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7630. Plaintiff Robert Stahl is an individual residing in New York. Stahl worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stahl has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stahl has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7631. Plaintiff Daniel Stankovskiy is an individual residing in New York. Stankovskiy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stankovskiy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stankovskiy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7632. Plaintiff Nicolas Stassi is an individual residing in New York. Stassi worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stassi has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stassi has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7633. Plaintiff James Staudle is an individual residing in New York. Staudle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Staudle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Staudle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7634. Plaintiff Emmanuel Stewart is an individual residing in New York. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7635. Plaintiff Carlos Stewart is an individual residing in New York. Stewart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stewart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stewart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7636. Plaintiff Adan Suero is an individual residing in New York. Suero worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2009 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Suero has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Suero has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7637. Plaintiff Dereck Sukhu is an individual residing in New York. Sukhu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sukhu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sukhu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7638. Plaintiff Symon Sumner is an individual residing in New York. Sumner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sumner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sumner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7639. Plaintiff Julio Suriel is an individual residing in New York. Suriel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Suriel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Suriel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7640. Plaintiff Shawn Sweet is an individual residing in New York. Sweet worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sweet has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sweet has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7641. Plaintiff John Swift is an individual residing in New York. Swift worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Swift has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Swift has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7642. Plaintiff Begzod Takhirdjanov is an individual residing in New York. Takhirdjanov worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2008 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Takhirdjanov has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Takhirdjanov has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7643. Plaintiff Norman Talmadge is an individual residing in New York. Talmadge worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Talmadge has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Talmadge has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7644. Plaintiff Burak Tavacioglu is an individual residing in New York. Tavacioglu worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tavacioglu has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tavacioglu has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7645. Plaintiff Rafael Taveras is an individual residing in New York. Taveras worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taveras has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taveras has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7646. Plaintiff Ross Taylor is an individual residing in New York. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7647. Plaintiff Patrick Taylor is an individual residing in Connecticut. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7648. Plaintiff Robert Taylor is an individual residing in New York. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7649. Plaintiff Chris Taylor is an individual residing in Florida. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7650. Plaintiff Joel Taylor is an individual residing in New York. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7651. Plaintiff George Taylor is an individual residing in New York. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7652. Plaintiff Steven Taylor is an individual residing in New York. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7653. Plaintiff Christian Tejada is an individual residing in New York. Tejada worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tejada has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tejada has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7654. Plaintiff Jimmy Tejada is an individual residing in New York. Tejada worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tejada has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tejada has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7655. Plaintiff Delroy Thomas is an individual residing in Florida. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7656. Plaintiff Johnathan Thompson is an individual residing in New York. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7657. Plaintiff Joseph Thompson is an individual residing in New York. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7658. Plaintiff James Thornton is an individual residing in North Carolina. Thornton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thornton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thornton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7659. Plaintiff Azell Thrasher is an individual residing in New York. Thrasher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thrasher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thrasher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7660. Plaintiff Jerome Thrasher is an individual residing in New York. Thrasher worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thrasher has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thrasher has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7661. Plaintiff Ronald Tinney is an individual residing in New York. Tinney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tinney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tinney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7662. Plaintiff Darrick Tisdale is an individual residing in New York. Tisdale worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tisdale has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tisdale has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7663. Plaintiff Graydon Tokke is an individual residing in New York. Tokke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tokke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tokke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7664. Plaintiff Andrew Tolpa is an individual residing in New York. Tolpa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tolpa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tolpa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7665. Plaintiff Mark Tompkins is an individual residing in New York. Tompkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Tompkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tompkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7666. Plaintiff John Trapp is an individual residing in New York. Trapp worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trapp has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trapp has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7667. Plaintiff Rachelle Treat is an individual residing in New York. Treat worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Treat has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Treat has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7668. Plaintiff Haliegh Trescott-Harrington is an individual residing in New York. Trescott-Harrington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trescott-Harrington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trescott-Harrington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7669. Plaintiff Javier Troche is an individual residing in New York. Troche worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Troche has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Troche has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7670. Plaintiff Patrick Tullis is an individual residing in Texas. Tullis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tullis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tullis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7671. Plaintiff Serhiy Tyshyk is an individual residing in New York. Tyshyk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tyshyk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tyshyk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7672. Plaintiff Michael Ules is an individual residing in New York. Ules worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ules has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ules has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7673. Plaintiff Dariel Urena is an individual residing in New York. Urena worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Urena has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Urena has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7674. Plaintiff Emanuel Vargas is an individual residing in New York. Vargas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vargas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vargas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7675. Plaintiff Michael Vargas is an individual residing in New York. Vargas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vargas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vargas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7676. Plaintiff Hector Vargas is an individual residing in New York. Vargas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vargas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vargas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7677. Plaintiff Javon Vassel is an individual residing in New York. Vassel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vassel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vassel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7678. Plaintiff Edwin Vega Jr. is an individual residing in New York. Vega Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vega Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vega Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7679. Plaintiff Joseph Verney is an individual residing in New York. Verney worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Verney has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Verney has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7680. Plaintiff Michael Vetrino is an individual residing in New York. Vetrino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vetrino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vetrino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7681. Plaintiff Jeffrey Vorholzer is an individual residing in New York. Vorholzer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2012 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vorholzer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vorholzer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7682. Plaintiff Brandon Waddel is an individual residing in New York. Waddel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Waddel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Waddel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7683. Plaintiff Lance Waithe is an individual residing in New York. Waithe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Waithe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Waithe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7684. Plaintiff Norris Walker is an individual residing in New York. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7685. Plaintiff Derron Walters is an individual residing in New York. Walters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7686. Plaintiff Dalton Walters is an individual residing in New York. Walters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7687. Plaintiff James Ward is an individual residing in New York. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7688. Plaintiff Edward Ward is an individual residing in New York. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7689. Plaintiff Edward Warner is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Warner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2013 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Warner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Warner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7690. Plaintiff Louis Washington is an individual residing in New York. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7691. Plaintiff Jaret Washington is an individual residing in New York. Washington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Washington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Washington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7692. Plaintiff Steven Weatherly is an individual residing in Florida. Weatherly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weatherly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weatherly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7693. Plaintiff Ashley Weatherwalks is an individual residing in Massachusetts. Weatherwalks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weatherwalks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weatherwalks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7694. Plaintiff Samuel Weaver is an individual residing in New York. Weaver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weaver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weaver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7695. Plaintiff Bryan Weber is an individual residing in New York. Weber worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weber has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weber has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7696. Plaintiff Kershma Webster is an individual residing in New York. Webster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7697. Plaintiff Brandon Webster is an individual residing in New York. Webster worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Webster has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Webster has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7698. Plaintiff John Weidner is an individual residing in New York. Weidner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weidner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weidner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7699. Plaintiff Colleen West is an individual residing in New York. West worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. West has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because West has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7700. Plaintiff Francis Wheeler is an individual residing in Florida. Wheeler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wheeler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wheeler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7701. Plaintiff Alexander Espinal Checo is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Wise worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wise has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wise has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7702. Plaintiff Marianne Woodbrey is an individual residing in Utah. Woodbrey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Woodbrey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Woodbrey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7703. Plaintiff Justin Worrell is an individual residing in New York. Worrell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Worrell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Worrell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7704. Plaintiff George Yancey is an individual residing in New York. Yancey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yancey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yancey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7705. Plaintiff William Yetto is an individual residing in South Carolina. Yetto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in New York from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yetto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yetto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7706. Plaintiff Mussie Abraha is an individual residing in North Carolina. Abraha worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abraha has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abraha has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7707. Plaintiff Aaliyah Adams is an individual residing in North Carolina. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7708. Plaintiff Brian Aguilar is an individual residing in North Carolina. Aguilar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2009 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aguilar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aguilar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7709. Plaintiff Travis Agurs is an individual residing in South Carolina. Agurs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Agurs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Agurs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7710. Plaintiff Laura Anderson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina and South Carolina from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7711. Plaintiff Alan Anderson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7712. Plaintiff Philip Annas is an individual residing in North Carolina. Annas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Annas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Annas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7713. Plaintiff Nicholas Archible is an individual residing in North Carolina. Archible worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Archible has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Archible has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7714. Plaintiff Brint Argall is an individual residing in Tennessee. Argall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Argall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Argall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7715. Plaintiff Cyrelle Armstrong is an individual residing in North Carolina. Armstrong worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Armstrong has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Armstrong has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7716. Plaintiff Cornell Artis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Artis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Artis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Artis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7717. Plaintiff Beth Ash is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ash worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ash has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ash has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7718. Plaintiff Neamia Baker is an individual residing in North Carolina. Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7719. Plaintiff Benjamin Ballard is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ballard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ballard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ballard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7720. Plaintiff Leonard Barber Iii is an individual residing in North Carolina. Barber Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barber Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barber Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7721. Plaintiff Larry Barnes is an individual residing in North Carolina. Barnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7722. Plaintiff Bethany Barnes is an individual residing in North Carolina. Barnes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barnes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barnes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7723. Plaintiff Olive Barrett is an individual residing in North Carolina. Barrett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barrett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barrett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7724. Plaintiff Joey Barton is an individual residing in North Carolina. Barton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2000 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7725. Plaintiff Karan Bates is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bates worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bates has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bates has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7726. Plaintiff Larry Beardin is an individual residing in Texas. Beardin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beardin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beardin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7727. Plaintiff James Beck is an individual residing in North Carolina. Beck worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beck has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beck has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7728. Plaintiff Andrew Beeman is an individual residing in Arizona. Beeman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina and Arizona from approximately 2013 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beeman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beeman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7729. Plaintiff Eric Belk is an individual residing in North Carolina. Belk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Belk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Belk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7730. Plaintiff Gabrielle Benitez is an individual residing in North Carolina. Benitez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Benitez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Benitez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7731. Plaintiff Nicholas Bennett is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7732. Plaintiff Jenny Bennett is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bennett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bennett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bennett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7733. Plaintiff Hicham Berraho is an individual residing in North Carolina. Berraho worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Berraho has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Berraho has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7734. Plaintiff Jerry Bethea is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bethea worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2007 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bethea has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bethea has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7735. Plaintiff Denise Bishop is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bishop worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bishop has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bishop has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7736. Plaintiff Lisa Bissett - Leviner is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bissett - Leviner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2021 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bissett - Leviner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bissett - Leviner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7737. Plaintiff Christian Blackmire is an individual residing in North Carolina. Blackmire worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blackmire has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blackmire has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7738. Plaintiff Juan Bloomfield is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bloomfield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bloomfield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bloomfield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7739. Plaintiff Terry Blount is an individual residing in Delaware. Blount worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blount has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blount has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7740. Plaintiff Eric Bond is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bond worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bond has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bond has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7741. Plaintiff Jonathan Boone is an individual residing in North Carolina. Boone worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boone has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boone has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7742. Plaintiff Marquis Boston is an individual residing in North Carolina. Boston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7743. Plaintiff Dustin Bowers is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bowers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7744. Plaintiff Ronyel Boyd is an individual residing in North Carolina. Boyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7745. Plaintiff Gerald Bozarth is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bozarth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bozarth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bozarth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7746. Plaintiff Richard Brady is an individual residing in North Carolina. Brady worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brady has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brady has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7747. Plaintiff Markeshia Branch is an individual residing in North Carolina. Branch worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Branch has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Branch has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7748. Plaintiff Dakota Brewer is an individual residing in North Carolina. Brewer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brewer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brewer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7749. Plaintiff Melaney Bridges is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bridges worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bridges has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bridges has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7750. Plaintiff Janelle Bright is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7751. Plaintiff David Bril is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bril worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bril has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bril has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7752. Plaintiff Don Brooks is an individual residing in North Carolina. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7753. Plaintiff Maya Brooks is an individual residing in North Carolina. Brooks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brooks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brooks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7754. Plaintiff Donald Brown is an individual residing in North Carolina. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina and South Carolina from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7755. Plaintiff Anthony Brown is an individual residing in North Carolina. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7756. Plaintiff Vashti Brown is an individual residing in North Carolina. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7757. Plaintiff Travis Brown is an individual residing in North Carolina. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7758. Plaintiff Yvette Brown is an individual residing in North Carolina. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7759. Plaintiff Nicole Bryant is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bryant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bryant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bryant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7760. Plaintiff Anthony Bryant is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bryant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bryant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bryant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7761. Plaintiff Richard Buffalo is an individual residing in North Carolina. Buffalo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buffalo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buffalo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7762. Plaintiff Teira Bullock is an individual residing in North Carolina. Bullock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bullock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bullock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7763. Plaintiff Cathy Buntic is an individual residing in North Carolina. Buntic worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Buntic has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Buntic has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7764. Plaintiff Robert Burnett is an individual residing in North Carolina. Burnett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2004 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burnett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burnett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7765. Plaintiff Marvel Burton is an individual residing in North Carolina. Burton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7766. Plaintiff Jeffrey Byrd is an individual residing in North Carolina. Byrd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Byrd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Byrd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7767. Plaintiff Robert Caggiano is an individual residing in North Carolina. Caggiano worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Caggiano has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caggiano has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7768. Plaintiff Alicia Cagle is an individual residing in North Carolina. Cagle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cagle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cagle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7769. Plaintiff Dakota Cagle is an individual residing in North Carolina. Cagle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cagle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cagle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7770. Plaintiff Justin Caldwell is an individual residing in North Carolina. Caldwell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Caldwell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Caldwell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7771. Plaintiff Marc Campbell is an individual residing in North Carolina. Campbell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Campbell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Campbell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7772. Plaintiff Matthew Carpenter is an individual residing in North Carolina. Carpenter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carpenter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carpenter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7773. Plaintiff Terrence Carr is an individual residing in North Carolina. Carr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2005 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7774. Plaintiff Darren Carroll is an individual residing in North Carolina. Carroll worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carroll has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carroll has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7775. Plaintiff Edward Carugno is an individual residing in Florida. Carugno worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carugno has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carugno has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7776. Plaintiff Terry Carver is an individual residing in North Carolina. Carver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7777. Plaintiff Azael Castaneda is an individual residing in North Carolina. Castaneda worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Castaneda has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Castaneda has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7778. Plaintiff Brian Cencere is an individual residing in Texas. Cencere worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cencere has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cencere has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7779. Plaintiff Christopher Chamberlain is an individual residing in North Carolina. Chamberlain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chamberlain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chamberlain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7780. Plaintiff Donterio Cherry is an individual residing in South Carolina. Cherry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cherry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cherry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7781. Plaintiff Patrick Chia is an individual residing in North Carolina. Chia worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chia has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chia has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7782. Plaintiff Giovanni Christian is an individual residing in North Carolina. Christian worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Christian has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Christian has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7783. Plaintiff Nathan Clark is an individual residing in North Carolina. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7784. Plaintiff Mcdayne Clay is an individual residing in North Carolina. Clay worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clay has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clay has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7785. Plaintiff Noah Clayton is an individual residing in North Carolina. Clayton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clayton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clayton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7786. Plaintiff Christopher Cleaver is an individual residing in North Carolina. Cleaver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cleaver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cleaver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7787. Plaintiff Thomas Cochran is an individual residing in California. Cochran worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cochran has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cochran has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7788. Plaintiff Donald Cofield is an individual residing in North Carolina. Cofield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2001 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cofield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cofield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7789. Plaintiff Maria Cofield is an individual residing in North Carolina. Cofield worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2007 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cofield has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cofield has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7790. Plaintiff Jamaal Coleman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7791. Plaintiff Mitica Coleman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7792. Plaintiff Emory Coleman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Coleman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Coleman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coleman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7793. Plaintiff Christopher Coley is an individual residing in North Carolina. Coley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Coley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Coley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7794. Plaintiff Robert Conselyea is an individual residing in North Carolina. Conselyea worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conselyea has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conselyea has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7795. Plaintiff Lawanda Cooper is an individual residing in Georgia. Cooper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cooper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cooper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7796. Plaintiff Shannise Corbett is an individual residing in North Carolina. Corbett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Corbett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Corbett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7797. Plaintiff Tyrone Corpening is an individual residing in North Carolina. Corpening worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Corpening has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Corpening has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7798. Plaintiff Daniel Costner is an individual residing in North Carolina. Costner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Costner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Costner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7799. Plaintiff Albert Craddock is an individual residing in North Carolina. Craddock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Craddock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Craddock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7800. Plaintiff Janee Craig is an individual residing in North Carolina. Craig worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Craig has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Craig has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7801. Plaintiff Brent Crockett is an individual residing in North Carolina. Crockett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2005 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Crockett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crockett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7802. Plaintiff Frederick Crooms is an individual residing in North Carolina. Crooms worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crooms has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crooms has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7803. Plaintiff Fred Crowell is an individual residing in North Carolina. Crowell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Crowell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Crowell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7804. Plaintiff James Cruse II is an individual residing in North Carolina. Cruse II worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cruse II has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cruse II has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7805. Plaintiff Kejuan Cummings is an individual residing in North Carolina. Cummings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cummings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cummings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7806. Plaintiff Nieves Cunningham is an individual residing in Virginia. Cunningham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cunningham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cunningham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7807. Plaintiff Billy Currie is an individual residing in North Carolina. Currie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Currie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Currie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7808. Plaintiff Antoine Davis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7809. Plaintiff Eric Mcduffife is an individual residing in North Carolina. De Leon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2005 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. De Leon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because De Leon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7810. Plaintiff George Deon is an individual residing in North Carolina. Deon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Deon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Deon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7811. Plaintiff Connor Dill is an individual residing in North Carolina. Dill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7812. Plaintiff Derrick Dobbins is an individual residing in North Carolina. Dobbins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dobbins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dobbins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7813. Plaintiff Bradley Dolce is an individual residing in North Carolina. Dolce worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dolce has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dolce has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7814. Plaintiff Dallas Domagala is an individual residing in North Carolina. Domagala worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Domagala has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Domagala has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7815. Plaintiff Tyrone Douglas is an individual residing in North Carolina. Douglas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Douglas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Douglas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7816. Plaintiff Anthony Drake is an individual residing in North Carolina. Drake worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Drake has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Drake has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7817. Plaintiff Clay Driessen is an individual residing in North Carolina. Driessen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Driessen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Driessen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7818. Plaintiff Latasha Dublin is an individual residing in North Carolina. Dublin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dublin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dublin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7819. Plaintiff Charlton Eason is an individual residing in North Carolina. Eason worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eason has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eason has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7820. Plaintiff Erica Easterling is an individual residing in North Carolina. Easterling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2020 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Easterling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Easterling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7821. Plaintiff Richard Eaton is an individual residing in North Carolina. Eaton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eaton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eaton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7822. Plaintiff Jamie Ebert is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ebert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ebert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ebert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7823. Plaintiff James Edmond Iii is an individual residing in North Carolina. Edmond Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Edmond Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Edmond Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7824. Plaintiff Kenneth Elkie is an individual residing in North Carolina. Elkie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elkie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elkie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7825. Plaintiff Christy Ellinger is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ellinger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Ellinger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ellinger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7826. Plaintiff Rita Elliott is an individual residing in North Carolina. Elliott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2002 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Elliott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Elliott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7827. Plaintiff Jimmy Ellis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ellis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ellis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ellis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7828. Plaintiff Langston Fair is an individual residing in North Carolina. Fair worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fair has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fair has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7829. Plaintiff Nick Farmer is an individual residing in North Carolina. Farmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Farmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Farmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7830. Plaintiff Alicia Farrior is an individual residing in North Carolina. Farrior worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Farrior has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Farrior has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7831. Plaintiff Marty Farthing is an individual residing in North Carolina. Farthing worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Farthing has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Farthing has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7832. Plaintiff Luis Ferrara is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ferrara worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ferrara has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ferrara has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7833. Plaintiff Ernest Fields is an individual residing in North Carolina. Fields worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fields has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fields has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7834. Plaintiff Angela Ford is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7835. Plaintiff Blake Frenette is an individual residing in North Carolina. Frenette worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Frenette has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Frenette has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7836. Plaintiff Johnny Fuller is an individual residing in North Carolina. Fuller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fuller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fuller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7837. Plaintiff Rodney Gaither is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gaither worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Gaither has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gaither has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7838. Plaintiff Paul Gaither is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gaither worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gaither has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gaither has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7839. Plaintiff Alexander Galluzzo is an individual residing in North Carolina. Galluzzo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Galluzzo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Galluzzo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7840. Plaintiff Theorpheus Gamble is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gamble worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gamble has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gamble has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7841. Plaintiff Kenneth Gamboa is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gamboa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gamboa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gamboa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7842. Plaintiff Anthony Garrett is an individual residing in North Carolina. Garrett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garrett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garrett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7843. Plaintiff Aaron Garrow is an individual residing in North Carolina. Garrow worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Garrow has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Garrow has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7844. Plaintiff Lloyd Gatling is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gatling worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2008 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gatling has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gatling has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7845. Plaintiff Matthew Gattis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gattis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gattis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gattis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7846. Plaintiff Mitchell Gaulden is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gaulden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gaulden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gaulden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7847. Plaintiff Shakeda Gibbs is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gibbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gibbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gibbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7848. Plaintiff Brian Gillentine is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gillentine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gillentine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gillentine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7849. Plaintiff Sharon Gillespie is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gillespie worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gillespie has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gillespie has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7850. Plaintiff John Gilliam is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gilliam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gilliam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gilliam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7851. Plaintiff Peter Glenn is an individual residing in North Carolina. Glenn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glenn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glenn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7852. Plaintiff Wendell Glover is an individual residing in North Carolina. Glover worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2004 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Glover has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glover has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7853. Plaintiff Nathaniel Glover is an individual residing in North Carolina. Glover worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 1985 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Glover has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Glover has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7854. Plaintiff Vickie Godley is an individual residing in North Carolina. Godley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Godley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Godley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7855. Plaintiff Jeffrey Godwin is an individual residing in North Carolina. Godwin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Godwin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Godwin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7856. Plaintiff Rachael Graham is an individual residing in North Carolina. Graham worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Graham has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Graham has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7857. Plaintiff Erick Grant is an individual residing in North Carolina. Grant worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grant has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grant has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7858. Plaintiff James Graves is an individual residing in North Carolina. Graves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Graves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Graves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7859. Plaintiff Charles Green is an individual residing in North Carolina. Green worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2005 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Green has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Green has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7860. Plaintiff Kristfer Gregory is an individual residing in Colorado. Gregory worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gregory has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gregory has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7861. Plaintiff Rakeem Grimes is an individual residing in North Carolina. Grimes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grimes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grimes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7862. Plaintiff John Grissom Iii is an individual residing in North Carolina. Grissom Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Grissom Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Grissom Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7863. Plaintiff Keith Guarino is an individual residing in North Carolina. Guarino worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guarino has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guarino has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7864. Plaintiff Bryon Guilford is an individual residing in North Carolina. Guilford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2008 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guilford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guilford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7865. Plaintiff Daphne Guillory is an individual residing in Kansas. Guillory worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Guillory has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Guillory has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7866. Plaintiff Travarus Gunter is an individual residing in North Carolina. Gunter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gunter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gunter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7867. Plaintiff Donald Haddock is an individual residing in North Carolina. Haddock worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2004 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haddock has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haddock has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7868. Plaintiff Robert Hager is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hager worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hager has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hager has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7869. Plaintiff Franz Haidegger is an individual residing in North Carolina. Haidegger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Haidegger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Haidegger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7870. Plaintiff Jeffery Hall is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7871. Plaintiff Kayla Hall is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2021 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7872. Plaintiff Karen Hall is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7873. Plaintiff Harold Hall is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7874. Plaintiff Christopher Hall is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hall worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hall has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hall has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7875. Plaintiff Xavier Hambrick is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hambrick worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hambrick has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hambrick has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7876. Plaintiff Dario Hamilton is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hamilton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hamilton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hamilton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7877. Plaintiff Jessica Hardin is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hardin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hardin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hardin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7878. Plaintiff Ricky Hardin is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hardin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2006 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hardin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hardin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7879. Plaintiff Bobby Hare is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hare worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hare has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hare has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7880. Plaintiff William Harrington is an individual residing in North Carolina. Harrington worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrington has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrington has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7881. Plaintiff Kia Harris is an individual residing in North Carolina. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2022 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7882. Plaintiff Dequann Harris is an individual residing in North Carolina. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7883. Plaintiff Jason Harris is an individual residing in North Carolina. Harris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7884. Plaintiff Raymond Harrison is an individual residing in North Carolina. Harrison worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Harrison has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Harrison has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7885. Plaintiff Tyrone Hawkins is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7886. Plaintiff Cuberate Hawkins is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hawkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hawkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hawkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7887. Plaintiff Mitchell Hayden is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hayden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7888. Plaintiff Joan Hayes is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hayes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hayes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hayes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7889. Plaintiff Michael Heath is an individual residing in Maine. Heath worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Heath has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Heath has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7890. Plaintiff James Henderson Jr. is an individual residing in North Carolina. Henderson Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henderson Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henderson Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7891. Plaintiff Andrew Henley is an individual residing in North Carolina. Henley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2002 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Henley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Henley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7892. Plaintiff Aldrin Hernandez is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hernandez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hernandez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hernandez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7893. Plaintiff Gregory Herring is an individual residing in North Carolina. Herring worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Herring has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Herring has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7894. Plaintiff David Hildebrandt is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hildebrandt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hildebrandt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hildebrandt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7895. Plaintiff Dametri Hill is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hill worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hill has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hill has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7896. Plaintiff James Hines is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7897. Plaintiff Sarah Hines is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hines worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hines has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hines has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7898. Plaintiff Anthony Hogan is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hogan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hogan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hogan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7899. Plaintiff Richard Hollar is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hollar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hollar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hollar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7900. Plaintiff Darlene Holley is an individual residing in North Carolina. Holley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7901. Plaintiff Jermaine Holley is an individual residing in North Carolina. Holley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7902. Plaintiff Denise Hollingsworth is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hollingsworth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hollingsworth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hollingsworth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7903. Plaintiff Tommy Hollingsworth is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hollingsworth worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hollingsworth has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hollingsworth has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7904. Plaintiff Patrick Hollis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hollis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hollis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hollis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7905. Plaintiff Charles Holloway is an individual residing in North Carolina. Holloway worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Holloway has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Holloway has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7906. Plaintiff Shawn Hoodye is an individual residing in California. Hoodye worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hoodye has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hoodye has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7907. Plaintiff Malik Horton is an individual residing in North Carolina. Horton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Horton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Horton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7908. Plaintiff Ami House is an individual residing in North Carolina. House worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2007 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. House has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because House has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7909. Plaintiff Kedrick Houston is an individual residing in North Carolina. Houston worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Houston has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Houston has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7910. Plaintiff Ron Howard is an individual residing in North Carolina. Howard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 1996 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Howard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Howard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7911. Plaintiff Dwayne Hyman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Hyman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hyman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hyman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7912. Plaintiff Carlos Irving is an individual residing in North Carolina. Irving worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Irving has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Irving has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7913. Plaintiff Steven Jackson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Jackson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7914. Plaintiff Crystal Jackson Formerly Hickman is an individual residing in Maryland. Jackson Formerly Hickman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jackson Formerly Hickman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jackson Formerly Hickman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7915. Plaintiff Richard James is an individual residing in South Carolina. James worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. James has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because James has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7916. Plaintiff Joel Jarvis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Jarvis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jarvis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jarvis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7917. Plaintiff Amanda Jenkins is an individual residing in North Carolina. Jenkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jenkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jenkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7918. Plaintiff Kevin Jennings is an individual residing in North Carolina. Jennings worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jennings has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jennings has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7919. Plaintiff Dustin Jett is an individual residing in North Carolina. Jett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7920. Plaintiff James Johnson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7921. Plaintiff Andera Johnson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2002 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7922. Plaintiff Kiszy Johnson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7923. Plaintiff Ricky Johnson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2002 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7924. Plaintiff Lucius Johnson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7925. Plaintiff Christopher Johnson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7926. Plaintiff Cameron Johnson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7927. Plaintiff Kameron Johnson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Johnson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Johnson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Johnson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7928. Plaintiff Kevin Jones is an individual residing in North Carolina. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7929. Plaintiff Latesha Jones is an individual residing in North Carolina. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7930. Plaintiff Jerney Jones is an individual residing in North Carolina. Jones worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Jones has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Jones has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7931. Plaintiff Tracy Joseph is an individual residing in North Carolina. Joseph worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Joseph has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Joseph has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7932. Plaintiff Dickie Kallam is an individual residing in North Carolina. Kallam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kallam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kallam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7933. Plaintiff Melissa Kelly is an individual residing in North Carolina. Kelly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kelly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kelly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7934. Plaintiff Jason Kincaid is an individual residing in North Carolina. Kincaid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kincaid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kincaid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7935. Plaintiff Danielle King is an individual residing in North Carolina. King worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. King has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because King has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7936. Plaintiff Richard King is an individual residing in North Carolina. King worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. King has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because King has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7937. Plaintiff Joshua Kirk is an individual residing in North Carolina. Kirk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kirk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kirk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7938. Plaintiff Jarred Knight is an individual residing in North Carolina. Knight worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knight has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knight has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7939. Plaintiff Thomas Knott is an individual residing in South Carolina. Knott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7940. Plaintiff Gabriel Kuel is an individual residing in North Carolina. Kuel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kuel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kuel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7941. Plaintiff Justin Lackey is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lackey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lackey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lackey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7942. Plaintiff Eric Larue is an individual residing in Kansas. Larue worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Larue has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Larue has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7943. Plaintiff Jarrious Lassiter Iii is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lassiter Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lassiter Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lassiter Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7944. Plaintiff Derrick Lawrence is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lawrence worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lawrence has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lawrence has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7945. Plaintiff Sandra Laxton is an individual residing in North Carolina. Laxton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Laxton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Laxton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7946. Plaintiff Jerry Leathers is an individual residing in North Carolina. Leathers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2002 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leathers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leathers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7947. Plaintiff James Ledford is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ledford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ledford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ledford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7948. Plaintiff Justin Lee is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7949. Plaintiff Sean Lee is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lee worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lee has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lee has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7950. Plaintiff Bonita Lewis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7951. Plaintiff Jerry Lewis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7952. Plaintiff David Lewis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lewis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7953. Plaintiff James Lewis Jr. is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lewis Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lewis Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lewis Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7954. Plaintiff Darrell Liles is an individual residing in North Carolina. Liles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Liles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Liles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7955. Plaintiff Steve Lizak is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lizak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lizak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lizak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7956. Plaintiff Talmadge Locke is an individual residing in North Carolina. Locke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Locke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Locke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7957. Plaintiff Darris Long is an individual residing in North Carolina. Long worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2008 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Long has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Long has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7958. Plaintiff Sarah Loria is an individual residing in North Carolina. Loria worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loria has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loria has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7959. Plaintiff Michael Loughlin is an individual residing in North Carolina. Loughlin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loughlin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loughlin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7960. Plaintiff Innocent Loukoutou is an individual residing in North Carolina. Loukoutou worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Loukoutou has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Loukoutou has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7961. Plaintiff Charles Lowe is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lowe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lowe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lowe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7962. Plaintiff Michael Lowe is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lowe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lowe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lowe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7963. Plaintiff Cynthia Lowery is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lowery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lowery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lowery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7964. Plaintiff Anuar Luna Tavera is an individual residing in North Carolina. Luna Tavera worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Luna Tavera has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Luna Tavera has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7965. Plaintiff Joseph Lunnerman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lunnerman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lunnerman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lunnerman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7966. Plaintiff Risharda Lyles is an individual residing in North Carolina. Lyles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lyles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lyles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7967. Plaintiff Ian Mack is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mack worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mack has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mack has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7968. Plaintiff Ryan Maki is an individual residing in North Carolina. Maki worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Maki has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Maki has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7969. Plaintiff James Malloy is an individual residing in North Carolina. Malloy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Malloy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Malloy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7970. Plaintiff Andres Mangual is an individual residing in Connecticut. Mangual worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mangual has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mangual has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7971. Plaintiff Herman Manley is an individual residing in North Carolina. Manley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Manley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Manley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7972. Plaintiff Ferrell Marcus is an individual residing in North Carolina. Marcus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Marcus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Marcus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7973. Plaintiff John Martin is an individual residing in North Carolina. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7974. Plaintiff Kari Martin is an individual residing in California. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7975. Plaintiff Donna Martin is an individual residing in North Carolina. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7976. Plaintiff Juancarlos Martinez is an individual residing in North Carolina. Martinez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martinez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martinez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7977. Plaintiff Melvin Mayo is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mayo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mayo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mayo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7978. Plaintiff Brandon Mays is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mays worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mays has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mays has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7979. Plaintiff Momodou Mbye is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mbye worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mbye has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mbye has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7980. Plaintiff Jawon McBryde is an individual residing in North Carolina. McBryde worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McBryde has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McBryde has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7981. Plaintiff Bronson McCain is an individual residing in North Carolina. McCain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McCain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McCain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7982. Plaintiff Tabitha McCarthy is an individual residing in North Carolina. McCarthy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McCarthy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McCarthy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7983. Plaintiff Eddie McCoy is an individual residing in North Carolina. McCoy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McCoy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McCoy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7984. Plaintiff Joshua McGrew is an individual residing in North Carolina. McGrew worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. McGrew has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because McGrew has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7985. Plaintiff Glennis Mcilwain is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mcilwain worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcilwain has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcilwain has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7986. Plaintiff Patrick Mckeithan is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mckeithan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mckeithan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mckeithan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7987. Plaintiff Garry Mcmillan is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mcmillan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mcmillan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mcmillan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7988. Plaintiff Cheryl Measmer is an individual residing in North Carolina. Measmer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Measmer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Measmer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7989. Plaintiff Danny Medlin is an individual residing in North Carolina. Medlin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2008 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Medlin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Medlin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7990. Plaintiff Bernard Mensah is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mensah worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mensah has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mensah has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7991. Plaintiff Brandon Metcalf is an individual residing in North Carolina. Metcalf worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Metcalf has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Metcalf has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7992. Plaintiff Keith Miller is an individual residing in North Carolina. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7993. Plaintiff Antonio Miller is an individual residing in North Carolina. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7994. Plaintiff Manekia Miller is an individual residing in North Carolina. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7995. Plaintiff Darius Miller is an individual residing in North Carolina. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7996. Plaintiff Joseph Miller is an individual residing in North Carolina. Miller worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Miller has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Miller has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7997. Plaintiff Jacob Mingus is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mingus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mingus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mingus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7998. Plaintiff Brian Mitchell is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

7999. Plaintiff Gary Mitchell is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8000. Plaintiff Antonio Mitchell is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mitchell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mitchell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mitchell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8001. Plaintiff Ahmed Mohamed is an individual residing in North Carolina. Mohamed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mohamed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mohamed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8002. Plaintiff Candace Montgomery is an individual residing in North Carolina. Montgomery worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Montgomery has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Montgomery has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8003. Plaintiff Ramiel Moore is an individual residing in North Carolina. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8004. Plaintiff Darece Moore is an individual residing in North Carolina. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8005. Plaintiff Malcolm Moore is an individual residing in North Carolina. Moore worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moore has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moore has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8006. Plaintiff Shirley Moreau is an individual residing in North Carolina. Moreau worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Moreau has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moreau has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8007. Plaintiff George Morgan is an individual residing in North Carolina. Morgan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morgan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morgan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8008. Plaintiff Carlos Morris is an individual residing in North Carolina. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8009. Plaintiff Kenya Morris is an individual residing in North Carolina. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8010. Plaintiff Robert Morris is an individual residing in Arizona. Morris worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Morris has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Morris has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8011. Plaintiff Keisha Murphy is an individual residing in North Carolina. Murphy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murphy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murphy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8012. Plaintiff Joseph Murphy is an individual residing in North Carolina. Murphy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2001 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murphy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murphy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8013. Plaintiff Gary Murphy is an individual residing in North Carolina. Murphy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2005 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murphy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murphy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8014. Plaintiff Donald Murry is an individual residing in North Carolina. Murry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 1999 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Murry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Murry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8015. Plaintiff Anthony Muscarella is an individual residing in North Carolina. Muscarella worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Muscarella has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Muscarella has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8016. Plaintiff Matthew Nagle is an individual residing in North Carolina. Nagle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nagle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nagle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8017. Plaintiff Kenneth Nelson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Nelson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina and Virginia from approximately 2001 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nelson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nelson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8018. Plaintiff Terry Nichols is an individual residing in North Carolina. Nichols worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Nichols has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Nichols has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8019. Plaintiff Keenan Norman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Norman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Norman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Norman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8020. Plaintiff Benjamin Oakley is an individual residing in North Carolina. Oakley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oakley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oakley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8021. Plaintiff Jimmy Oates is an individual residing in North Carolina. Oates worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oates has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oates has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8022. Plaintiff Quaowu Ohin is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ohin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2007 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ohin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ohin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8023. Plaintiff Rahsaan Oneal is an individual residing in North Carolina. Oneal worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Oneal has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Oneal has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8024. Plaintiff Orlando Ortega is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ortega worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ortega has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ortega has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8025. Plaintiff Darleen Outlaw is an individual residing in North Carolina. Outlaw worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Outlaw has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Outlaw has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8026. Plaintiff Baron Owens is an individual residing in North Carolina. Owens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Owens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Owens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8027. Plaintiff Jonathan Booker is an individual residing in North Carolina. Packwood worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Packwood has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Packwood has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8028. Plaintiff Jose Padilla is an individual residing in North Carolina. Padilla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Padilla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Padilla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8029. Plaintiff Rishaun Page is an individual residing in North Carolina. Page worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Page has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Page has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8030. Plaintiff Michael Parker is an individual residing in Georgia. Parker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8031. Plaintiff Brittany Parsons is an individual residing in North Carolina. Parsons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Parsons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Parsons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8032. Plaintiff Shawn Patillo is an individual residing in North Carolina. Patillo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patillo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patillo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8033. Plaintiff Charles Patteson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Patteson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Patteson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Patteson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8034. Plaintiff Nathan Pegram is an individual residing in North Carolina. Pegram worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Pegram has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pegram has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8035. Plaintiff Scott Pemberton is an individual residing in Florida. Pemberton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pemberton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pemberton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8036. Plaintiff Alona Pepper is an individual residing in North Carolina. Pepper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pepper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pepper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8037. Plaintiff Lucero Perdomo is an individual residing in North Carolina. Perdomo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perdomo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perdomo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8038. Plaintiff Randie Perry is an individual residing in North Carolina. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2012 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8039. Plaintiff Major Perry is an individual residing in North Carolina. Perry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Perry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Perry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8040. Plaintiff Reginald Piper is an individual residing in North Carolina. Piper worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Piper has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Piper has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8041. Plaintiff Christopher Pippa is an individual residing in North Carolina. Pippa worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pippa has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pippa has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8042. Plaintiff William Pittman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Pittman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pittman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pittman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8043. Plaintiff Charisma Pittman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Pittman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2020 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pittman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pittman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8044. Plaintiff Steven Chisholm is an individual residing in North Carolina. Polanco worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Polanco has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Polanco has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8045. Plaintiff Russell Poppe is an individual residing in North Carolina. Poppe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2004 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Poppe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Poppe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8046. Plaintiff Malik Powell is an individual residing in North Carolina. Powell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8047. Plaintiff Virginia Powell is an individual residing in North Carolina. Powell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8048. Plaintiff Lakisha Powell is an individual residing in North Carolina. Powell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8049. Plaintiff David Powers is an individual residing in South Carolina. Powers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Powers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Powers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8050. Plaintiff Jeffery Prichard, Sr is an individual residing in North Carolina. Prichard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prichard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prichard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8051. Plaintiff Scott Prime is an individual residing in South Carolina. Prime worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prime has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prime has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8052. Plaintiff Kevin Prince is an individual residing in North Carolina. Prince worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Prince has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Prince has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8053. Plaintiff Matthew Pruitt is an individual residing in North Carolina. Pruitt worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Pruitt has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Pruitt has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8054. Plaintiff Carl Purvis is an individual residing in Colorado. Purvis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Purvis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Purvis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8055. Plaintiff Jodi Purvis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Purvis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Purvis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Purvis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8056. Plaintiff Anthony Quattlebaum is an individual residing in North Carolina. Quattlebaum worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quattlebaum has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quattlebaum has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8057. Plaintiff Douglas Raiford is an individual residing in North Carolina. Raiford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Raiford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Raiford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8058. Plaintiff Charles Rainey is an individual residing in North Carolina. Rainey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rainey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rainey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8059. Plaintiff Nathan Rains is an individual residing in North Carolina. Rains worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rains has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rains has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8060. Plaintiff Pamela Storey is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ramos worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ramos has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ramos has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8061. Plaintiff Anthony Reagan is an individual residing in North Carolina. Reagan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Reagan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reagan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8062. Plaintiff Terry Reaves is an individual residing in North Carolina. Reaves worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 1997 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reaves has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reaves has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8063. Plaintiff Adam Reebel is an individual residing in North Carolina. Reebel worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reebel has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reebel has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8064. Plaintiff Derrick Reed is an individual residing in North Carolina. Reed worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reed has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reed has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8065. Plaintiff Robert Reid is an individual residing in North Carolina. Reid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8066. Plaintiff Walter Reid is an individual residing in North Carolina. Reid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8067. Plaintiff Michael Reives is an individual residing in North Carolina. Reives worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Reives has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Reives has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8068. Plaintiff Patrick Retort is an individual residing in North Carolina. Retort worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Retort has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Retort has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8069. Plaintiff Anthony Rhodes is an individual residing in North Carolina. Rhodes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rhodes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rhodes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8070. Plaintiff Ronald Ricks is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ricks worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ricks has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ricks has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8071. Plaintiff Phillip Riggs is an individual residing in North Carolina. Riggs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Riggs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Riggs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8072. Plaintiff James Roberson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Roberson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8073. Plaintiff Lajameia Roberson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Roberson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8074. Plaintiff Jennifer Roberts is an individual residing in North Carolina. Roberts worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roberts has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roberts has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8075. Plaintiff Glenwood Robinson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Robinson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robinson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robinson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8076. Plaintiff Ruben Robles is an individual residing in California. Robles worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Robles has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Robles has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8077. Plaintiff Delrio Rogers-Davis is an individual residing in North Carolina. Rogers-Davis worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Rogers-Davis has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Rogers-Davis has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8078. Plaintiff David Roman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Roman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8079. Plaintiff Antonio Roundtree is an individual residing in North Carolina. Roundtree worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Roundtree has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Roundtree has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8080. Plaintiff Aaron Runion is an individual residing in North Carolina. Runion worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Runion has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Runion has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8081. Plaintiff Israel Salazar is an individual residing in North Carolina. Salazar worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salazar has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salazar has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8082. Plaintiff Walter Salisbury II is an individual residing in North Carolina. Salisbury II worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Salisbury II has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Salisbury II has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8083. Plaintiff Andrez Samuels is an individual residing in South Dakota. Samuels worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Samuels has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Samuels has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8084. Plaintiff Nelson Sanchez is an individual residing in North Carolina. Sanchez worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sanchez has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sanchez has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8085. Plaintiff Paris Saunders is an individual residing in North Carolina. Saunders worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saunders has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saunders has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8086. Plaintiff Tanya Savage is an individual residing in North Carolina. Savage worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Savage has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Savage has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8087. Plaintiff Jackie Saye is an individual residing in North Carolina. Saye worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Saye has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Saye has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8088. Plaintiff Steven Scarlett is an individual residing in North Carolina. Scarlett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Scarlett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scarlett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8089. Plaintiff Ken Schliewe is an individual residing in North Carolina. Schliewe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Schliewe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Schliewe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8090. Plaintiff Brent Scott is an individual residing in North Carolina. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8091. Plaintiff Jymell Scott is an individual residing in North Carolina. Scott worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Scott has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Scott has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8092. Plaintiff Pavel Sedlak is an individual residing in North Carolina. Sedlak worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sedlak has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sedlak has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8093. Plaintiff Shaunda Shane is an individual residing in North Carolina. Shane worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shane has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shane has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8094. Plaintiff Alberta Sharpe is an individual residing in North Carolina. Sharpe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sharpe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sharpe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8095. Plaintiff Ronald Shaub is an individual residing in North Carolina. Shaub worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Shaub has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Shaub has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8096. Plaintiff David Sigler is an individual residing in North Carolina. Sigler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sigler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sigler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8097. Plaintiff Richard Sinclair is an individual residing in North Carolina. Sinclair worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sinclair has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sinclair has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8098. Plaintiff Donald Sisk is an individual residing in North Carolina. Sisk worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sisk has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sisk has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8099. Plaintiff Micheal Sistare is an individual residing in South Carolina. Sistare worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sistare has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sistare has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8100. Plaintiff Braxton Smith is an individual residing in North Carolina. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8101. Plaintiff Thomas Smith is an individual residing in North Carolina. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8102. Plaintiff Willis Smith is an individual residing in North Carolina. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8103. Plaintiff Bronwyn Smith is an individual residing in North Carolina. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8104. Plaintiff Quinton Smith is an individual residing in North Carolina. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8105. Plaintiff Brewster Smith is an individual residing in North Carolina. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8106. Plaintiff Jalisa Smith is an individual residing in North Carolina. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8107. Plaintiff Antoinio Smith is an individual residing in North Carolina. Smith worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Smith has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Smith has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8108. Plaintiff Jan Snipes is an individual residing in North Carolina. Snipes worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Snipes has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Snipes has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8109. Plaintiff Harold Sockriter Jr. is an individual residing in North Carolina. Sockriter worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sockriter has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sockriter has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8110. Plaintiff Franklin Soto is an individual residing in New Jersey. Soto worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2022 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Soto has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Soto has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8111. Plaintiff Gregory Spencer Jr is an individual residing in North Carolina. Spencer Jr worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Spencer Jr has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Spencer Jr has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8112. Plaintiff Frederick Stanford is an individual residing in North Carolina. Stanford worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stanford has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stanford has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8113. Plaintiff Joshua Stephens is an individual residing in North Carolina. Stephens worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stephens has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stephens has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8114. Plaintiff Gregory Stomierosky is an individual residing in North Carolina. Stomierosky worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 1990 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stomierosky has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stomierosky has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8115. Plaintiff Gerald Stubbs is an individual residing in New York. Stubbs worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Stubbs has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Stubbs has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8116. Plaintiff Monica Sullins is an individual residing in North Carolina. Sullins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sullins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sullins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8117. Plaintiff Richard Summers is an individual residing in North Carolina. Summers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2008 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Summers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Summers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8118. Plaintiff Greg Svedek is an individual residing in North Carolina. Svedek worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2011 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Svedek has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Svedek has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8119. Plaintiff Perry Tankard is an individual residing in North Carolina. Tankard worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tankard has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tankard has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8120. Plaintiff Christine Tarlton is an individual residing in North Carolina. Tarlton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tarlton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tarlton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8121. Plaintiff Michael Taylor is an individual residing in North Carolina. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2021 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8122. Plaintiff Jeffrey Taylor is an individual residing in North Carolina. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8123. Plaintiff William Taylor is an individual residing in North Carolina. Taylor worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Taylor has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Taylor has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8124. Plaintiff Charles Thomas is an individual residing in North Carolina. Thomas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thomas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thomas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8125. Plaintiff Jermaine Thompson is an individual residing in South Carolina. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8126. Plaintiff Benjamin Thompson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Thompson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thompson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thompson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8127. Plaintiff Joseph Thorley is an individual residing in North Carolina. Thorley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thorley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thorley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8128. Plaintiff Parker Tighe is an individual residing in North Carolina. Tighe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tighe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tighe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8129. Plaintiff Stephen Tillman is an individual residing in North Carolina. Tillman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tillman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tillman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8130. Plaintiff Michael Trollinger is an individual residing in North Carolina. Trollinger worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trollinger has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trollinger has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8131. Plaintiff Tracy Truett is an individual residing in North Carolina. Truett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Truett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Truett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8132. Plaintiff Chris Turner is an individual residing in North Carolina. Turner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Turner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Turner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8133. Plaintiff Chonsetta Tyler is an individual residing in North Carolina. Tyler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tyler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tyler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8134. Plaintiff Carla Tyner is an individual residing in North Carolina. Tyner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tyner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tyner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8135. Plaintiff Kendrick Tyson is an individual residing in North Carolina. Tyson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2015 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Tyson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tyson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8136. Plaintiff Rudolf Ulrich Iii is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ulrich Iii worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ulrich Iii has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ulrich Iii has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8137. Plaintiff Steven Vanover is an individual residing in North Carolina. Vanover worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vanover has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vanover has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8138. Plaintiff Edwin Vivas is an individual residing in North Carolina. Vivas worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Vivas has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Vivas has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8139. Plaintiff Ronald Waldroup is an individual residing in North Carolina. Waldroup worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Waldroup has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Waldroup has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8140. Plaintiff Michael Walker is an individual residing in North Carolina. Walker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8141. Plaintiff Sandor Walkup is an individual residing in North Carolina. Walkup worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walkup has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walkup has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8142. Plaintiff Anita Wallace is an individual residing in North Carolina. Wallace worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wallace has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wallace has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8143. Plaintiff Taresa Walton is an individual residing in North Carolina. Walton worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2013 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walton has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walton has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8144. Plaintiff Daniel Ward is an individual residing in North Carolina. Ward worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2020 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ward has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ward has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8145. Plaintiff Michael Weathersbe is an individual residing in North Carolina. Weathersbe worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 1990 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weathersbe has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weathersbe has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8146. Plaintiff Karl Wells is an individual residing in North Carolina. Wells worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wells has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wells has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8147. Plaintiff Sean Wheeler is an individual residing in North Carolina. Wheeler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wheeler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wheeler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8148. Plaintiff Antonio Worrells is an individual residing in South Carolina. Worrells worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Worrells has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Worrells has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8149. Plaintiff Chad Wright is an individual residing in Florida. Wright worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Wright has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Wright has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8150. Plaintiff Donquel Yancy is an individual residing in Arizona. Yancy worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Carolina but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Yancy has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Yancy has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8151. Plaintiff David Baumgart is an individual residing in North Dakota. Baumgart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baumgart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baumgart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8152. Plaintiff Ronald Bodine is an individual residing in North Dakota. Bodine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2018 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bodine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bodine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8153. Plaintiff Peggi Bork is an individual residing in North Dakota. Bork worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bork has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bork has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8154. Plaintiff Floyd Cmela is an individual residing in Minnesota. Cmela worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cmela has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cmela has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8155. Plaintiff Christian Creech is an individual residing in North Dakota. Creech worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Creech has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Creech has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8156. Plaintiff Robert Dickson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Dickson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dickson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dickson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8157. Plaintiff Aaron Dye is an individual residing in South Dakota. Dye worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Dye has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Dye has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8158. Plaintiff Amanda Eberly is an individual residing in South Dakota. Eberly worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Eberly has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Eberly has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8159. Plaintiff Quennon Echols is an individual residing in North Dakota. Echols worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Echols has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Echols has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8160. Plaintiff Mark Enders is an individual residing in North Dakota. Enders worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Enders has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Enders has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8161. Plaintiff Tony Erickson is an individual residing in Minnesota. Erickson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Erickson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Erickson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8162. Plaintiff Alexander Fischer is an individual residing in North Dakota. Fischer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Fischer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Fischer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8163. Plaintiff Jessica Gores is an individual residing in North Dakota. Gores worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gores has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gores has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8164. Plaintiff Roger Gullickson is an individual residing in North Dakota. Gullickson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Gullickson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Gullickson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8165. Plaintiff Abdikarim Hassan is an individual residing in Minnesota. Hassan worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hassan has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hassan has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8166. Plaintiff Benjamin Hilsen is an individual residing in North Dakota. Hilsen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Hilsen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Hilsen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8167. Plaintiff Alexander Kauffman is an individual residing in North Dakota. Kauffman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2013 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kauffman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kauffman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8168. Plaintiff Steven Knudson is an individual residing in North Dakota. Knudson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2019 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Knudson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Knudson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8169. Plaintiff Nick Kraft is an individual residing in North Dakota. Kraft worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2017 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Kraft has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Kraft has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8170. Plaintiff Jerry Lantz is an individual residing in North Dakota. Lantz worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Lantz has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Lantz has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8171. Plaintiff Bruce Leiss is an individual residing in North Dakota. Leiss worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Leiss has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Leiss has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8172. Plaintiff Randell Martin is an individual residing in North Dakota. Martin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Martin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Martin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8173. Plaintiff Jeffrey Mattern is an individual residing in North Dakota. Mattern worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mattern has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mattern has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8174. Plaintiff Aaron Mccann is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Mccann worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2014 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mccann has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mccann has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8175. Plaintiff Mambu Momo is an individual residing in North Dakota. Momo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Momo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Momo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8176. Plaintiff Justin Mondry is an individual residing in North Dakota. Mondry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Mondry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Mondry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8177. Plaintiff Greg Moser is an individual residing in North Dakota. Moser worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moser has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moser has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8178. Plaintiff Nathaniel Moses is an individual residing in Minnesota. Moses worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Moses has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Moses has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8179. Plaintiff Matthew Quiggle is an individual residing in Minnesota. Quiggle worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Quiggle has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Quiggle has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8180. Plaintiff Nathaniel Seifert is an individual residing in Wisconsin. Seifert worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Seifert has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Seifert has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8181. Plaintiff Kyle Sheldrew is an individual residing in Colorado. Sheldrew worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Sheldrew has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Sheldrew has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8182. Plaintiff Tanya Silver is an individual residing in North Carolina. Silver worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2012 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Silver has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Silver has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8183. Plaintiff Jamey Summers is an individual residing in North Dakota. Summers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Summers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Summers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8184. Plaintiff Shane Tahrán is an individual residing in Minnesota. Tahrán worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2019 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Tahrán has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Tahrán has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8185. Plaintiff Jason Thacker is an individual residing in North Carolina. Thacker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Thacker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thacker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8186. Plaintiff Christopher Thielke is an individual residing in North Dakota. Thielke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Thielke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Thielke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8187. Plaintiff Tom Trehus is an individual residing in North Dakota. Trehus worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2004 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Trehus has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Trehus has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8188. Plaintiff Julie Ulberg is an individual residing in North Dakota. Ulberg worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ulberg has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ulberg has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8189. Plaintiff Marlon Walters is an individual residing in North Dakota. Walters worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Walters has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Walters has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8190. Plaintiff Dale Weiler is an individual residing in North Dakota. Weiler worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in North Dakota from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Weiler has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Weiler has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8191. Plaintiff Darlene Signoracci is an individual residing in Ohio. Signoracci worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Northern Mariana Islands from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Signoracci has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Signoracci has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8192. Plaintiff Mahmoud Abueid is an individual residing in Ohio. Abueid worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2011 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Abueid has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Abueid has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8193. Plaintiff John Adams is an individual residing in Ohio. Adams worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2001 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adams has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adams has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8194. Plaintiff Shelia Adkins is an individual residing in Ohio. Adkins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Adkins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Adkins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8195. Plaintiff Akiley Agambilla is an individual residing in Ohio. Agambilla worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Agambilla has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Agambilla has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8196. Plaintiff Sameh Ahmad is an individual residing in Ohio. Ahmad worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ahmad has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ahmad has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8197. Plaintiff Thomas Allen is an individual residing in Kentucky. Allen worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8198. Plaintiff Wendell Allen Jr. is an individual residing in Ohio. Allen Jr. worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allen Jr. has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allen Jr. has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8199. Plaintiff Meghan Allwine is an individual residing in Ohio. Allwine worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Allwine has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Allwine has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8200. Plaintiff Jeffrey Ally is an individual residing in Ohio. Ally worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ally has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ally has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8201. Plaintiff Bill Anderson is an individual residing in Ohio. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 1995 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8202. Plaintiff Sellick Anderson is an individual residing in Ohio. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8203. Plaintiff Bob Anderson is an individual residing in Ohio. Anderson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Anderson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Anderson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8204. Plaintiff Nicolas Appelhans is an individual residing in Ohio. Appelhans worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Appelhans has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Appelhans has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8205. Plaintiff Jimmy Aragon is an individual residing in Ohio. Aragon worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Aragon has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Aragon has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8206. Plaintiff Justin Argo is an individual residing in Ohio. Argo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Argo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Argo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8207. Plaintiff Philip Ayers is an individual residing in Ohio. Ayers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ayers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ayers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8208. Plaintiff Timothy Baker is an individual residing in Ohio. Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8209. Plaintiff Jason Baker is an individual residing in Ohio. Baker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8210. Plaintiff Ricky Ball is an individual residing in Ohio. Ball worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Ball has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Ball has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8211. Plaintiff Christopher Bargainer is an individual residing in Ohio. Bargainer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers.

Bargainer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bargainer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8212. Plaintiff Talmadge Barker is an individual residing in Ohio. Barker worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2010 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Barker has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Barker has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8213. Plaintiff Eric Baumgart is an individual residing in Ohio. Baumgart worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2013 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baumgart has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baumgart has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8214. Plaintiff Paul Baumhauer is an individual residing in Ohio. Baumhauer worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2019 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Baumhauer has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Baumhauer has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8215. Plaintiff Timothy Beam is an individual residing in Kentucky. Beam worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beam has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beam has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8216. Plaintiff Carlos Beasley is an individual residing in Ohio. Beasley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Beasley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Beasley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8217. Plaintiff Marshall Benson is an individual residing in Ohio. Benson worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Benson has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Benson has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8218. Plaintiff Diondre Berry is an individual residing in Ohio. Berry worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Berry has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Berry has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8219. Plaintiff Jeff Bicknell is an individual residing in Ohio. Bicknell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bicknell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bicknell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8220. Plaintiff Anthony Bicknell is an individual residing in Ohio. Bicknell worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2005 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bicknell has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bicknell has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8221. Plaintiff Daniel Bitner is an individual residing in Ohio. Bitner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bitner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bitner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8222. Plaintiff Tammy Black is an individual residing in Ohio. Black worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Black has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Black has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8223. Plaintiff Joseph Blaede is an individual residing in Ohio. Blaede worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blaede has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blaede has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8224. Plaintiff Cerano Blasingame is an individual residing in Ohio. Blasingame worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blasingame has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blasingame has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8225. Plaintiff Matthew Blaugrund is an individual residing in Ohio. Blaugrund worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Blaugrund has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Blaugrund has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8226. Plaintiff Randin Bolin is an individual residing in Ohio. Bolin worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bolin has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bolin has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8227. Plaintiff Scott Booso is an individual residing in Ohio. Booso worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2015 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Booso has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Booso has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8228. Plaintiff Robert Bourne is an individual residing in Ohio. Bourne worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2020 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bourne has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bourne has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8229. Plaintiff John Bowman is an individual residing in Ohio. Bowman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 1992 to 2016 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8230. Plaintiff Robert Bowman is an individual residing in Ohio. Bowman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 1993 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8231. Plaintiff Angela Bowman is an individual residing in Ohio. Bowman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Bowman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Bowman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8232. Plaintiff Shawn Boyd is an individual residing in Ohio. Boyd worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Boyd has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Boyd has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8233. Plaintiff Brett Braden is an individual residing in Ohio. Braden worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Braden has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Braden has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8234. Plaintiff Bruce Brent is an individual residing in Ohio. Brent worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brent has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brent has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8235. Plaintiff Justin Brown is an individual residing in Ohio. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2011 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8236. Plaintiff Frederick Brown is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8237. Plaintiff Amyere Brown is an individual residing in Ohio. Brown worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brown has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brown has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8238. Plaintiff John Brunner is an individual residing in Ohio. Brunner worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Brunner has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Brunner has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8239. Plaintiff Jordan Burnett is an individual residing in Ohio. Burnett worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Burnett has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Burnett has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8240. Plaintiff Robert Cairo is an individual residing in Ohio. Cairo worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cairo has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cairo has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8241. Plaintiff Brenda Canady is an individual residing in Ohio. Canady worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Canady has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Canady has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8242. Plaintiff Jacob Carey is an individual residing in Kentucky. Carey worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Carey has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Carey has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8243. Plaintiff Matthew Chambers is an individual residing in Ohio. Chambers worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2023 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chambers has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chambers has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8244. Plaintiff Robert Chapline is an individual residing in Ohio. Chapline worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chapline has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chapline has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8245. Plaintiff Anthony Chinn is an individual residing in Ohio. Chinn worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chinn has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chinn has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8246. Plaintiff Andrew Chrisman is an individual residing in Ohio. Chrisman worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2003 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Chrisman has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Chrisman has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8247. Plaintiff Jarvis Christian is an individual residing in South Carolina. Christian worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2018 to 2024 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Christian has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Christian has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8248. Plaintiff Kai Clark is an individual residing in Ohio. Clark worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clark has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clark has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8249. Plaintiff Kim Clarke is an individual residing in Pennsylvania. Clarke worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clarke has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clarke has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8250. Plaintiff Dustin Claypool is an individual residing in Florida. Claypool worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2006 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Claypool has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Claypool has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8251. Plaintiff David Clemons is an individual residing in Ohio. Clemons worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2014 to 2019 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Clemons has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Clemons has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8252. Plaintiff Robin Cline is an individual residing in Ohio. Cline worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 1900 to 2021 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cline has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cline has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8253. Plaintiff Christopher Cloud is an individual residing in Ohio. Cloud worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2017 to 2020 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cloud has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cloud has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8254. Plaintiff Jeffery Cobb is an individual residing in Ohio. Cobb worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2016 to 2022 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Cobb has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Cobb has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8255. Plaintiff Antoine Collins, Sr. is an individual residing in Ohio. Collins worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Collins has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Collins has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8256. Plaintiff Pierre Conley is an individual residing in Ohio. Conley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2012 to 2017 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8257. Plaintiff Megan Conley is an individual residing in Ohio. Conley worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conley has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conley has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

8258. Plaintiff Kevin Conti is an individual residing in Ohio. Conti worked as a delivery driver for FedEx in Ohio from approximately 2008 to 2018 but was employed through intermediary entities that FedEx calls independent service providers. Conti has been eligible to receive overtime pay under the FLSA because Conti has driven a vehicle weighing less than 10,001 pounds but has not received overtime pay for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week.

